Morse To Continue Delays

India, China Heads Ready To Negotiate

Nehru Says He Does Not Believe Dispute Will Lead To War

TOKYO (AP) — Talk of burying the hatchet swelled anew Friday in both Red China and India. Government leaders of each professed readiness to submit at least some elements of their border quarrel to negotiation.

In New Delhi, Prime Minister Nehru disclaimed any desire for allies and said he does not believe the dispute will lead to war, not even a small one. He said India would accept mediation or arbitration to dispose of some small territorial squabbles, but not "the large areas being claimed on Chinese maps."

Reiterates Claim

In Peiping, Premier Chou En-lai reiterated China's historical claim to thousands of square miles under the Indian flag, but said the two nations must try to settle their problems on the basis of "mutual sympathy, mutual understanding, fairness and reason." Reiterating a declaration he made in a letter to Nehru earlier this week, Chou said China is ready for peaceful talks to work out a partial or temporary agreement.

The display of sweetness and light, shifting emphasis from mutual charges of aggression, came just four days before Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev is due in Washington for a discussion of world affairs with President Eisenhower.

Don't Take Sides

The Soviets made clear in a statement issued by the Soviet news agency Tass Wednesday that they do not want their Asian friends to rock the boat. Without taking sides, the statement urged Red China and India to settle their row and warned the West not to try to exploit it.

Nehru told a New Delhi news conference he appreciated the Tass statement very much.

"Presumably this represents the Soviet government view. Considering everything, it is a very fair statement. It is also a very unusual statement for the Soviet government to sponsor," Nehru said.

Speculation arose in the Indian capital that the Soviet Union may take active hand in settling the dispute.

Maria Callas Sails To Greece

VENICE, Italy (AP) — Maria Meneghini Callas and Aristotle Onassis sailed for Greece Friday night on Onassis' big white yacht Christina, named for his wife.

Aboard the yacht in addition to the New York-born opera star and her multimillionaire host were Miss Callas' dwarf poodle, Toy; Onassis' sister, Artemis; his cousin, Cula; and a 43-man crew. Onassis' wife is in Paris.

The yacht's captain told port authorities they were sailing to Greece. They had flown here earlier in the day from Milan.

Their trip together aboard Onassis' airplane in the wake of annoucements that Miss Callas' 10-year-old marriage had gone on the rocks added fuel to reports of a new romance. The 35-year-old opera star and the Greek shipping operator, 55, have denied it. He has said "I love her like a sister."

Blonde Christina Onassis, 29, remained in Paris, reportedly talking things over with her parents. And Italian brick and building material manufacturer, Giovan Battista Meneghini, 62, was conferring with his lawyers about the terms of a separation from Miss Callas.

Four Occupants Die In Crash Of Small Plane

SEWANEE, Tenn. (AP)—A single engine plane crashed and burst into flames near the Sewanee Airport Friday night. Witnesses said the four occupants were killed.

Two bodies were reported removed from the wreckage but witnesses said the flames prevented the immediate recover of the other two. The victims were described as three men and a woman.

Police said a billfold taken from one body gave the name of Mark Thomas Walter of Middletown, Md.

Governors Try To Get Ike In Steel Dispute

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Governors Conference, acting under a "national crisis" resolution, launched a move Friday aimed at bringing President Eisenhower into the worsening nationwide steel strike.

The step was taken in the face of reports that the strike's effects, slowly pyramiding during the past two months of the work stoppage, are approaching crippling proportions for the nation's economy.

Steel inventories are running out. Many small firms are quietly halting production. And an Associated Press survey showed that layoffs in allied industries have reached an estimated 175,000. This figure is in addition to the half million idle United Steelworkers of America.

The immediate goal of the Governors Conference was a hoped-for meeting between the President and the governors of some of the states most seriously hit by the 59-day-old strike.

Negotiations between the steel industry and the Steelworkers continued meanwhile in New York but there was no evidence of progress toward a settlement of the dispute.

Earlier in the day, R. Conrad Cooper, chief industry negotiator, flatly rejected a suggestion by two U.S. senators that President Eisenhower set up a fact-finding committee in an effort to bring the strike to and end.

Cooper reiterated that industry wants open collective bargaining rather than federal intervention.

Masquerade Taunts Khrushchev Visit

Dutch Royal Heiress Takes Manhattan

NEW YORK (AP) — A young Dutch princess, with a smile and a toss of her blonde curls, Friday recaptured for the moment the isle of Manhattan, which long ago was a part of her realm.

"We still feel a most particular affection for what was once Nieuw Amsterdam," Princess Beatrix of the Netherlands told Mayor Robert F. Wagner at a City Hall ceremony.

The 21-year-old heiress presumptive to the Dutch throne received a typical, colorful Manhattan welcome as she arrived here for the 350th anniversary of the Dutch exploration of the Hudson Valley. She is the eldest child of Queen Juliana and is in line to succeed her mother on the throne some day.

There was a noisy harbor welcome as Beatrix arrived aboard the spanking new Dutch liner Rotterdam, on its maiden voyage. There was a red carpet greeting at the Battery, then a ticker tape parade up Broadway. Finally, there was an official city reception at City Hall.

The pink-cheeked princess, took the fanfare with a fetching smile. She's spending 10 days in this country, retracing the steps of the first Dutch settlers in the new world. Also, she has a Washington visit scheduled with President Eisenhower.

Aboard ship during the Atlantic crossing, Beatrix appeared at times in blue jeans and bathing suit. But Friday she was every inch royalty in blue wool suit with white collar, close-fitting cornflower blue hat and blue pumps. Diamonds twinkled on her collar and wrist.

Mother, Six Children Die As Train Hits Automobile

WASECA, Minn (AP)—A farm mother and her six young children were killed Friday when a freight train slammed into their station wagon within sight of their classmates and school.

Bodies of the victims were strewn over a 100-foot section of the track in this south-central Minnesota community.

The tragedy stunned the students and faculty of Sacred Heart School.

All grades at the Catholic school prayed in their rooms, and the students later gathered in the church to mourn the James Zimmerman family.

Killed at the scene, where the Minneapolis & St. Louis Railway tracks intersect Highway 14, were Michael, 10, Connie, 8, Barbara, 7, James Jr., 5, and Janice, 2.

Mrs. Zimmerman, 39, a farm woman and her eldest child, Kathryn, 13, died a short time later at a local hospital.

The crash occurred shortly after 8 a.m. as Mrs. Zimmerman was driving the children to school.

"It only sounded like a small thud," said Dean Fleming, who heard the crash from his nearby store. "It sounded like somebody dropped something on the floor."

Sheriff Stan Bailey said the train's crew told him the freight was traveling 45 miles per hour, four miles under the train speed limit here. The right side of the car was torn off and the vehicle was hurled into a loading dock from where it careened another 50 feet before slamming into the rear of a sided boxcar.

Warning bells and flashing lights were operating when the crash came, Bailey said.

Fisher, Liz Return From Long Honeymoon

NEW YORK (UPI) — Eddie Fisher and Elizabeth Taylor returned from a four-month honeymoon in Europe Friday. It took them two hours to get their 59 pieces of luggage through customs at Idlewild Airport.

The couple paid $1,600 in duties, mostly for original Christian Dior dresses and other clothing.

They were accompanied by Miss Taylor's two children by British actor Michael Wilding and a daughter by the late producer Mike Todd. They also had two dogs with them.

Fisher and his wife went from the airport to a Manhattan Hotel, where they will remain four days before traveling to Las Vegas, Nev.

AF Sgt. Ends Capsule Test

KEY WEST, Fla., (UPI) — An Air Force sergeant who spent three days in a plastic "bubble" capsule floating on the ocean said Friday he was "a little stiff" but otherwise all right.

The Air Force meanwhile dropped another man into the ocean in a similar escape capsule in another 72-hour test of how a man fares in such a predicament. The tests are being made to develop a floating capsule in which airmen may bail out of supersonic planes over water and survive until they are picked up.

T. Sgt. Jimmy Graves, 31, of Harriman, Tenn., who finished his endurance test in the capsule Friday, said he emerged wanting only a "quiet corner and a good bed."

"After getting a good meal, plenty of water, a comfortable bed and a quiet corner I slept all night," he said. The stiffness he experienced was minor and "moving around is working it out," he said.

Graves was hospitalized for tests and observation after leaving the capsule.

M. Sgt. William C. Barbour, 33, of Baltimore, was lowered into the water at 4 p.m. to spend 72 hours in a similar capsule made by a different company.

Graves said the capsule rode the rough seas very well and that he opened the hatch part of the time to catch rain water.

Graves said when he was not fully occupied during most of the test, he had an intense desire to run.

UN Team Puts Damper On Laos Fighting

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP) — The impending arrival of a U.N. fact-finding team apparently has put a damper on fighting in Laos.

"Not a shot has been fired anywhere in Laos in the past 24 hours," Information Minister Sisouk Na Champassak told reporters Friday. "Maybe it's because the U.N. observers are arriving soon."

Earlier, Laotian military circles and foreign diplomats said invaders from Communist North Viet Nam began pulling back over the Laotian-North Vietnamese border when the United Nations began studying Laotian charges of Red aggression.

Although French and British diplomats here doubt the observers will find proof that North Vietnamese troops have fought on Laotian territory, they agree that Hanoi, capital of North Viet Nam, is directing and supplying the Communist Pathet Lao rebels in northern Laos.

U.S. officials are convinced North Vietnamese troops have been operating in northern Laos and some indicate Laos may be able to furnish at least partial proof of direct aggression.

U.S. military aid supplies continue to arrive in Vientiane, including three single-engine planes to be used for dropping food and ammunition to royal advance posts in threatened Sam Neua and Phong Saly provinces.

In Tokyo, the Japanese Socialist party filed a protest against the U.S. Embassy there for shipping military supplies to Laos, the newspaper Asahi reported. The paper said a similar protest was filed against the Japanese government on the ground Japan could be drawn into war if the United States uses bases in Japan to ship military supplies to Laos.

GI Actions In Iceland Protested

Officials Forced To Lie In Puddle By U.S. Sentry

WASHINGTON (AP) — Iceland protested to Washington Friday that an American sentry had forced two Icelandic officials at gunpoint to lie in a puddle, arms outstretched, for 10 minutes.

The State Department promptly expressed concern over this and another recent GI incident in Iceland. It promised fast action to prevent such incidents from happening again.

The affair seems on its way to friendly solution between the two governments.

Bristles Indignantly

Icelandic Ambassador Thor Thors, who was bristling indignantly as he carried the protest in to Foy Kohler, acting assistant secretary for European affairs, emerged an hour later saying they had had an amicable meeting.

Thors indicated that a relatively inactive Icelandic-U.S. defense council, aimed at curbing friction between the U.S. troops and Icelanders, would meet more frequently hereafter.

State Department press officer Francis W. Tully Jr. said an investigation was already under way before Thors' protest arrived. He said he did not know whether any punishment is being meted out to offending servicemen.

Iceland is host to 5,000 U.S. troops at the North Atlantic Treaty Organization base at Keflavik International Airport. U.S. strategists consider this an important link to the North Atlantic defense chain.

Relations Not Best

Relations with the civilian populace never have been the best since U.S. forces moved in eight years ago, and the puddle incident was said to have touched off a new wave of anti-American feeling.

Tully did not dispute the version of the incidents told by the Icelanders. The incidents took place last Saturday and Sunday. According to the Icelandic version:

1. Two officials of the Icelandic civil aviation agency were escorting two German civilian pilots to a hangar on the airfield in the dark. The Icelanders looked for U.S. guards. Not finding any, they proceeded.

After the group had gone 10 to 20 yards, a U.S. sentry appeared. He ordered the Icelandic officials to lie down in a puddle, arms outstretched and fingers spread apart. He kept them there for 10 minutes.

It is customary for a sentry to require suspected persons to lean against a wall, or to lie down, while they are searched or while the sentry waits for reinforcements.

According to this account by Thors, the Icelanders could not voice objection because the American sentry "said if they opened their mouths he would shoot them right away, would kill them."

2. Two U.S. enlisted men got into an argument with each other at an Icelandic hotel at the airport. This incident was said not to have involved any Icelanders and was not covered in Friday's protest.

ACTOR DIES—Paul Douglas, 52, stage, television and screen actor died yesterday at his Hollywood, Calif., home of an apparent heart attack. His wife, Actress Jan Sterling, was with him when he died. (AP Photofax)

Paul Douglas, Video, Movie Actor, Dies

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Actor Paul Douglas, who once admitted that he ate, drank and talked too much, died Friday of a heart attack that hit without cue.

Douglas, 52, spent Thursday night at home, awakened at 8:30 a.m. to go to the bathroom. There he collapsed and died before a fire department rescue crew could reach him with oxygen.

His wife, actress Jan Sterling, was sitting on the floor cradling Douglas' head in her arms when a physician arrived and pronounced the actor dead.

The 6-foot, 200-pound actor, famed as much for his blunt comments as his acting, had been fighting paunchiness for some years.

"If I could cut out those morning martinis," he once told a reporter, "I think I could look like Tony Curtis."

Miss Sterling, 36, currently co-starring in the stage play "The Gazebo," was overcome at her husband's sudden death. She will not appear on stage Friday night, a friend said. They were married in 1950 and have a son Adams, born in 1955.

Douglas, long considered an actor's actor and one of the most professional performers in the business, became a star overnight in his first stage play.

During the 1930s, Douglas was one of the nation's top sports and radio announcers. Then he became Jack Benny's first announcer-straight man in radio, later doing the same chore for Fred Allen.

Douglas wanted to be an actor but none of his important pals would take him seriously. Garson Kanin, meanwhile, wrote "Born Yesterday" and had trouble casting the role of the rough-talking junk tycoon.

"It needs a Paul Douglas type who can act," Kanin moaned one day to his wife, Ruth Gordon.

"Why not get Douglas?" asked the wife. With Judy Holliday as costar, Douglas became an overnight acting sensation.

He came to Hollywood to play in "A Letter to Three Wives," and became one of the movies' and later television's busiest actors. Among his movie hits were "Beau James," "The Solid Gold Cadillac," "Executive Suite," "Panic in the Streets," "Clash by Night" and lately "The Mating Season."

Bandit Slain, Two Hurt In Market Holdup Melee

GLENDALE, Calif. (AP) — A market manager who saw a bandit shoot his pregnant wife twice in the abdomen grabbed the man's gun and killed him Thursday night.

The gunman stabbed the manager and a young employe after his gun was wrested from him in a wild melee during a holdup attempt.

Police identified the robber as William Coleroff, 46, an ex-convict from Philadelphia. In his papers they found the address, 2551 No. 33rd St., Pittsburgh, Pa.

Two persons were critically wounded. They are Mrs. Sally Benson, 20, wife of Manager Kenneth E. Benson, 26, and Richard M. Lifsey, 17, a box boy. Mrs. Benson lost her baby, which was due next month.

Police Capt. W. E. Hegi gave this account:

The bandit, armed with a .38 caliber revolver, held up Benson and Lifsey as they set the burglar alarm before closing up the market.

He marched them to the check stand where Mrs. Benson stood and forced them to load the money bags.

"We'll all get in your car," the gunman told Benson.

As Coleroff herded the trio toward the door, Mrs. Benson and Lifsey lagged behind. The youth swung a bag of quarters and felled the bandit, who fired three times, two of the shots striking Mrs. Benson.

Her husband, oblivious of his own safety, seized the revolver and shot the robber three times—in the heart, groin and side.

Casts Doubt On Congress Adjournment

House Passes Farm Surplus Disposal Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Wayne Morse (D-Ore) said Friday he will do his utmost to stem Congress' homeward rush well into next week.

Morse's stated determination to keep up his delaying tactics cast doubt on whether the Senate and House can quit work Monday, let alone Saturday as some members had hoped.

The House, with its calendar virtually wiped clean, passed a $4,100,000,000 farm surplus disposal bill Friday, then began marking time until the slower-paced Senate catches up.

A few hours after the House acted, the Senate completed passage of the compromise surplus disposal bill, which would allow the Agriculture Department to put in operation a food stmp plan to benefit the needy. Both House and Senate acted by voice vote, sending the bill to President Eisenhower.

Foreign Aid Bill

Still ahead of the Senate is the $3,200,000,000 foreign aid bill which it will take up Saturday.

There was the possibility of a full-blown fight over civil rights, although backstage efforts were under way to persuade Southern senators to limit their speeches against a two-year extension of the Civil Rights Commission.

Another sticky issue to be resolved lies in a bill to allow the Treasury to raise interest rates on series E and H savings bonds. Senate-House conferees again were unable to reach agreement. They planned another try Saturday.

None of the legislative problems appeared big enough to hold up for long adjournment of this first session of the 86th congress—a session that began last January.

For a week, the Morse has been waging a single-handed fight to slow down the Senate. His reason, he says, is to prevent "a lot of bad legislation" from going through in the dash for adjournment.

Effective Tactic

His most effective tactic has been to block most efforts of Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas to speed action by short-cut routes requiring unanimous consent of the Senate.

Without mentioning Morse by name, Sen. J. William Fulbright (D-Ark) cautioned against abuse of Senate rules.

"It is quite possible for a determined person to so use the rules as to effectively paralyze the work of the Senate or, in the alternative, to dominate its deliberations by a threat of a paralysis," Fulbright told the Senate.

"I hope the Senate does not finally degenerate into a pettyfogging circus, preoccupied with rules which, when enforced, finally result in complete frustration and futility."

Rockefeller Draft Urged

CONCORD, N.H. (AP)—A potential Nixon-Rockefeller battle in New Hampshire's first-in-the-nation presidential primary moved a step closer to reality Friday with the launching of a campaign to draft the New York governor.

A group of 40 prominent Granite State residents urged Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller to declare himself a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination and enter the early-bird primary next March 8.

In New York City, Rockefeller had no immediate comment but his New Hampshire supporters said he has promised to give serious consideration to their request.

Although neither Vice President Richard M. Nixon nor the governor have announced future political plans, their followers here are convinced the two will clash in the country's first 1960 test of voter sentiment.

Rockefeller's boosters hailed news of the draft and said it was a grass roots movement reminiscent of a 1952 New Hampshire campaign that started Dwight D. Eisenhower on the road to the White House.

But Nixon's backers scoffed at such an idea.

They said the vice president would trounce the New York governor in any primary contest. They pointed to the unprecedented 23,000 write-in votes which Nixon received here in the 1956 primary at a time when there was talk of dumping him from the GOP ticket.

Fallout Level Extremely High In Maryland

By LOU PANOS

OCEAN CITY, Md. (AP) — A State official said Friday that eight times the permissible amount level of Strontium-90, a result of radioactive fallout, has been found in Maryland alfalfa.

David Hume, a member of the Board of Natural Resources and a treasurer of the state's Democratic party, said Republican officeholders had thwarted his efforts to learn how much Strontium-90 is in other Maryland crops.

In a speech to a convention of Young Democrats of Maryland, Hume recalled the 1956 warnings against radiation issued by Democratic presidential candidate Adlai Stevenson.

"The day before the election," said Hume, "the Republican campaign leaders dredged up the imminent scientist, Dr. Edward Keller, who in company with another of his colleagues issued a declaration which focused on a statement that radioactivity from atomic tests was 'insignificant'," Hume said.

The Maryland Democrat said this left the Democrats "no time for an answer. . no time for the truth."

He then said recent tests by the government showed that alfalfa in Nebraska contained one and one-half times the permissible maximum level of Strontium-90.

"Compared with Maryland, Nebraska is in pretty good shape," Hume declared.

"We in Maryland have not one and one-half times, but eight times the permissible maximum level of Strontium-90 in alfalfa.

"What about other crops? What about milk? he asked.

"Try to find out. I can't. Reporters on some of the major newspapers can't."

Hume said if his listeners wanted "a real exercise in frustration" they should "try to find out from Republican officeholders."

"Or try to get a concise report on progress towards finding the connection between fallout and cancer, now being determined by a crew of scientists in Hagerstown," he suggested.

Commenting on Vice President Nixon's proposal to halt atomic tests during his recent trip to the Soviet Union, Hume declared:

"In 1956 this dedicated opportunist said the Stevenson charges were 'catastrophic nonsense'."

Hume told the delegates that what is important in his discussion of radioactive fallout is not the evil of a few men, but the unspeakable damage that may result to the American people when party politics is put above the national interest."

About 75 delegates were among early arrivals for the convention at this ocean resort. Before Hume spoke they heard Rep. Johnson (D-Md) deliver a keynote address in which he announced he will seek renomination in 1960. The two-day convention will wind up Saturday after the adoption of resolutions and election of officers.

Leonard Lockhart, a trial magistrate from Elkton, appeared Friday night to be unopposed for the presidency now held by Thomas Ellicott of Towson.

Police Are Led Merry Chase

WASHINGTON (AP) — A gasoline station attendant in a borrowed sports car led police on a chase Friday that at one point attained a speed of 140 m.p.h.

The wild race from Jessups, Md. to northeast Washington ended when the car hit a brick wall.

Sitting calmly nearby and sipping a soft drink, police said, was Larry M. Weaver, 18, of Washington.

They said Weaver, tall and slender, had climbed from the wreckage, walked to a near-by service station and told the attendant he had just witnessed an accident. He said the driver was short and stocky. But Pvt. Tyrus Peele of the Park Police, who arrived soon after, said he recognized Weaver as the driver.

He was charged with exceeding 70 m.p.h., reckless driving, failing to obey a policeman's order and failing to have a driver's permit.

Peele said he was patroling the Baltimore - Washington Parkway near Jessups when a Corvette flew past him. Peele pushed his souped-up police cruiser to 140 m.p.h. but the other car left him behind.

Prince Georges County Police set up a roadblock at the Riverdale road interchange. Weaver, police said, evaded it and headed for Bladensburg on U.S. 50. At Bladensburg he evaded another roadblock.

It was at an intersection in northeast Washington that Weaver's ride ended.

Police quoted Weaver as saying he had borrowed the car from a customer.

Khrush Blasts Capitalism But Uses Some Of Methods

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
Associated Press News Analyst

Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev, while damning capitalism, doesn't hesitate to adopt some of its methods.

He has announced that for the Soviet economy to flourish there must be material incentive for increased agricultural and industrial production.

His promises about outstripping the United States in all phases of production, including the consumer side, sound like promises of a system which would out-capitalist the capitalists.

Khrushchev's unorthodox notions might shock a dogmatic Communist. But he snorts that such a man refuses "to get off the old nag, for fear a new horse will throw him." Is it wrong, he demands, "to grease our ideology with butter?"

Whatever it is Khrushchev intends, he has swept the main opposition aside. Men who ranked far above him in the Stalin hierarchy he has outfoxed, much like a formidable machine politician in the old days of the United States. Georgi Malenkov has been labeled plotter, Lazar Kaganovich an old windbag, V. M. Molotov an ignoramus, Nikolai Bulganin a bungler. All were called "anti-party," and Khrushchev now is the party.

The main opposition has been exiled to minor, faraway jobs and silenced. But Khrushchev still has opponents and troubles.

Khrushchev's promises have due dates. He has promised that after 1963, the end of the current seven-year plan, the U.S.S.R. will be ready with a strong internal economy to take on the United States in economic competition. By 1968, he says, the ruble will batter its way into the world markets, pushing the American dollar aside. Until then, he adds, the consumers must make sacrifices to heavy industry, which builds power.

The Soviet public may not be that patient any more. It has had many contacts with Westerners since Stalin died. It has a vague idea of what it has been missing, of the things that should be its own in a land which is second most powerful on earth.

Old terror methods of Stalin's day won't work any more, and Khrushchev, recognizing this, boasts there are no more trials for political crimes.

Much of Khrushchev's worry stems from younger people. They are more demanding than their fathers. They want adequate housing, for example, and Khrushchev concedes it will take up to 15 years to satisfy the demand. Many are bored. Addressing the Young Communist (Komsomol) Congress last year, Khrushchev warned them to "stop complaining about being bored."

Privileged youngsters with parents in high positions are beginning to act like a privileged class. This, too, can be dangerous.

Khrushchev has huge manpower problems. In his sudden reform of education, he has instituted a "work while you learn" program between secondary and higher schooling.

All children, after finishing seven or eight school years, must "take part in socially useful labor at enterprises, collective farms and other places of work," says Khrushchev.

The boss has trouble with writers. The post - Stalin relaxations produced hints of defiance. Now, says Khrushchev, it is time to call a halt. Writers must devote themselves to developing "principles of Communist morality," and must become "engineers of the human soul."

Most of all, Khrushchev has troubles with the growing class of people with good incomes, who want consumer goods to match. He is making promises, delivering a bit more each year, but the going is tough.

Convict Admits Holdup In Which Two Sentenced

BALTIMORE (AP) — A man serving a 20 year prison term for one bank robbery told a federal judge Friday he helped stage a bank holdup for which two Washington area men are serving 25 year terms.

Martin J. McNicholas, 23, appeared before Judge R. Dorsey Watkins in support of new trial motions filed in behalf of Tyrus F. Jones, 29, of Capital Heights, Md., and Robert T. Princeler, 28 of Mount Rainier, Md.

Jones and Princeler were convicted by a jury last year of the $17,000 holdup of a Marlow Heights branch bank near Washington Jan. 26, 1958. McNicholas is serving a 20 year term for the $35,289 robbery of the Provident Savings Bank at Sparrows Point on Feb. 12, 1958.

McNicholas told Judge Watkins that he and a man he met in a Washington bar, and known only as "Mac", were the masked pair who abducted the teller and took the money from the Marlow Heights bank.

McNicholas said that he and "Mac" drove to the apartment of the bank teller in Silver Spring. He said he held a gun on the teller's wife while his companion forced the teller to drive to the bank and open the night depository.

Judge Watkins, who presided at the trial last year, questioned McNicholas closely on his account of the holdup, the weapons used and furnishings in the apartment. Jones and Princeler asked new trials on the ground new evidence had been uncovered recently.

Under questioning by Deputy U.S. Atty. John R. Harsgrove, McNicholas denied discussing the holdup with Jones while both were held in the Baltimore City Jail. He said they didn't talk about the robbery until after McNicholas said he "confessed" the Marlow Heights robbery to an FBI agent. This occurred while both men were in the Atlanta penitentiary.

At the trial, there was testimony that a sawed-off shotgun and two masks were found within 200 yards of the home of Jones' parents. One witness also testified that he saw one of Jones' brothers throw an object off an Anacostia River bridge. The object was recovered and identified as the end of a barrel sawed off the gun used in the holdup.

Two Indicted In Bank Holdup

BALTIMORE (AP) — A federal grand jury has indicted an Alexandria, Va. grocery clerk and a Washington man for the $28,000 robbery of a Southern Maryland bank.

The indictments returned Thursday named Robert L. Couch, 22, of Alexandria, and Charles E. Lawrenson, 41, of Washington.

They are charged with tying and gagging three women tellers in the County Trust Co. at Mechanicsville, St. Marys County, on Sept. 4 and taking $28,037.

Loan Firm, Trio Plead Innocent

BALTIMORE (AP)—A savings and loan firm and three individuals Thursday pleaded innocent to government charges that they devised a scheme to defraud investors by use of the mails.

The pleas were entered for the Commercial Savings and Loan Assn. Inc., with offices in Baltimore, Silver Spring and Bethesda; its president, Robert F. Suchman of Baltimore, and two Chicago residents, C. Oran Mensik and Miss Marianne Barto.

The arraignment in U.S. District Court came more than a year after the defendants were first indicted by a Federal grand jury. Trial of the case is set for Oct. 19, but certain pre-trial motions will be heard Sept. 25. These include motions by Mensik and Miss Barton for separate trials.

Russian Poet Attends Concert At Moscow

MOSCOW (AP) — Boris Pasternak, Russian poet and novelist, reappeared in public Friday. He turned up unannounced at a concert of the New York Philharmonic and cheered, applauded and kissed Conductor Leonard Bernstein.

Pasternak had lived in seclusion many months since he was awarded the 1958 Nobel Prize for literature after publication abroad of his novel "Doctor Zhivago." It was banned from publication in the Soviet Union and he rejected the prize after first accepting it.

Pasternak appeared in blooming health. He told reporters he is living well and working at capacity.

But he was too concerned immediately with Bernstein and the Philharmonic music to pause for discussion of the controversial "Doctor Zhivago," or to say what he is writing now.

Making his way to Bernstein's dressing room at intermission, Pasternak said: "I've never felt so close to the aesthetic truth."

"When I hear you I know why you were born," he told Bernstein.

(While the Soviet Union never took any open official action to punish Pasternak for the political shafts and implications of "Doctor Zhivago," he was made an outcast by the Soviet writers' union and branded a pig by former colleagues. His surprise emergence in public came amid a surge of expedients leading to Premier Nikita Khrushchev's departure Monday on his historic mission to America and talks with President Eisenhower. The Pasternak case has been a rallying cry for demonstrators against Soviet supresssions of freedom).

Jury Reports On Hospitals

BALTIMORE (AP)—Conditions at the State's three mental hospitals are "shocking beyond belief" and immediate steps should be taken to correct the "horrors," existing, the Baltimore Criminal Court grand jury reported Friday.

Foreman Jay G. Engle said the panel found "it difficult to understand the attitude of 'the powers that be' in not rectifying horrors that we have seen in such institutions as Spring Grove, Springfield and Rosewood."

The jurors reacted with "dismay and displeasure" at what they observed at the two hospitals and training school.

"Time does not permit going into these details," the report continued, "but the grand jury strongly recommends that more money be spent in cleaning and building of these three institutions even if it means possibly less money spent for other projects."

"The conditions surrounding these poor, mentally unfit beings is shocking beyond belief," the jury said. "Little wonder that Spring Grove, Springfield and Rosewood have lost their accreditation."

Stock Market Scores Only Advance Of Week Friday

NEW YORK (UPI)—The stock market scored its only advance of the week Friday and it was strong enough to restore about 25 per cent of the loss suffered in the three previous sessions.

The rally, paced by steels, motors, chemicals, electronics, drugs and rails, restored $2,310,000,000 to stock valuations. However, the market was off $6,215,000,000 on the week.

The market took a beating in the first three sessions of the holiday-shortened week before reversing the trend Friday. The market opened higher and moved ahead easily on increased volume.

Brokers attributed the improvement mainly to technical factors. They said the market was ripe for a rally after steep decline of the three previous sessions.

They noted that market sentiment also was helped by indications of stronger government, pressures to end the steel strike and the elimination of one tight money uncertainty—the discount rate hike.

The steels enjoyed gains running past 2 points in Lukens, Jones & Laughlin, and Republic Steel. Chrysler, Ford and General Motors added better than a point each. Raytheon was ahead more than 3 in the electronics while Allied Chemical led its group higher with a gain of 2¼.

Goodyear was off more than 2 in an otherwise firm rubber group. Some of the rail leaders posted gains of more than a point as that group enjoyed its best day in a week.

Chicago Grains

CHICAGO (UPI)—Grain trading reflected the latest government crop estimate, and most prices were irregularly lower Friday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

At the final bell, wheat was off ⅛ to up ⅜; corn unchanged to off 1⅛; oats off 2¼; new oats off ⅛ to ⅝; rye unchanged to off ¾; soybeans off ¼ to ¾.

Wheat prices receded from earlier firm levels after an early commission house demand was satisfied. Longs sold September.

Corn was under the influence of the bearish crop estimate, which was revised upward from July 1 by more than 200 million bushels. Nearby contracts were weak.

Oats prices slipped on scattered commission house selling. Northwest houses bought new September. Rye opened unchanged, but later dropped to an easy level.

Soybeans opened with gains of 1½ cents as the result of a smaller than expected crop estimate. Shorts were active buyers. Prices fell off after the demand was satisfied.

Ouiside markets were mixed. The range:

Lias Receiverships Dissolved By Court

WHEELING, W. Va. (UPI—Federal Judge Harry E. Watkins Friday dissolved the last of federal receiverships on holdings of former Wheeling gambling czar G. Lias.

Watkins agreed to dismiss attorney W. Frank Keefer as Lias' personal receiver. A total of $52,600 under Keefer's trust will be applied to Lias' current taxes and not to back taxes and penalties a Tax Court ruled he owed the government.

Hearing was also held on a motion to expand on the period of time the federal government claims Lias gave money to his wife, son and daughter during tax proceedings against him.

The government claims the money—now in Canadian banks—should be confiscated and used to help pay off the $2,500,000 tax bill Lias owes.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Making Scents

A French working girl will go without lunch to buy perfume. The tendency of American women, however, is to wait for men to give them perfume as a gift.

Why the great sacrifice of the Parisian secretary? I'll tell you why. She considers perfume one of her best investments—a potent weapon of allure. She doesn't feel that she is being extravagant—just extravagantly feminine.

The only wastefulness occurs when you use perfume as a dressing table ornament or when you use it ineptly. Whether it is a five dollar bottle or a one-hundred dollar one, fragrance is precious to you for the confidence and pleasure it supplies. For others, your fragrance is the distillation of your personality and it lingers much longer in the memory than anything else you wear.

A man remembers your perfume and associates it with you long after he has forgotten the costume you wore on a particular occasion. For example, a summary of the perfume opinions of 2,000 important male executives on the question, "What type of fragrance do you like?" — "Depends on the girl" was checked off by 725 men. 700 men had "a favorite perfume" against 200 who didn't. The question, "If so, is the fragrance connected with someone special?" drew 592 yesses"; 196 no's". This certainly shows how discerning men can be about perfume.

Few people really appreciate what goes into a bottle. There's so much—for in each fine perfume there lies a sensory trip around the world. Fragrant flowers, oils, woods, leaves, roots and bark are drawn from every corner of the world.

The perfume industry, more than any other, is completely dependent on the whole world for its sustenance. For instance, rose oil comes from Bulgaria. And, roses are to Bulgaria what cotton is to Georgia, tobacco to Virginia and potatoes to Maine. The blooms have to be gathered at sunrise when still moist with dew. To give you an idea of how many rose petals it takes . . . the workers have to gather about 4,000 pounds of roses to produce one pound of oil.

Once you open a bottle of perfume, don't fear of using too much — only of using too little. Fill a purse flacon and carry it with you for a feminine pick up during warm, sticky days as well as evenings.

Never put perfume directly on your face when going out in the sun (it actually can result in a permanent burn).

Republican Women Hold Tea, Announce Programs

The Women's Republican Club of Cumberland held an "Ol Home Day" in the form of a silver tea yesterday at the Woman's Civic Club house. Mrs. Arthur Verner, assisted by Mrs. Arthur Gibson, received the guests, and told of their trip to Baltimore Wednesday, when they heard Mrs. Robert O. Bonnell talk.

Mrs. Verner announced that Mrs. Bonnell, program committee chairman of the Maryland Federation, is to be guest speaker at the general meeting of the Cumberland club September 25 at 10:30 a. m. at the club house. The president reminded the women to bring a guest to the covered dish luncheon, which is to be held after Mrs. Bonnell's talk at approximately noon.

An arrangement of purple and pink gladiolus and lavender asters centered the tea table. They were arranged by Mrs. Miles Thompson. Mrs. Verner loaned her silver coffee and tea service and Dresden candelabra for the party. Mrs. Harry Anderson, head of the refreshment committee, made a point of personally preparing the refreshments before leaving for Cape Cod. She was assisted by Mrs. Leslie E. Daugherty.

The October program was announced by Mrs. Verner at the board meeting September 4. I includes a special meeting for elected officers at 10:30 a. m. Potomac State Enrollment Sets Record

Attendance Tops Last Year

KEYSER—Potomac State College began classes yesterday with a record enrollment of 606 students, according to Dean K. S. McKee, who said registration was completed yesterday.

There were 579 students enrolled after the first two weeks of classes last year, and the present total represents an increase of 27 students over last year's later enrollment figure, the dean pointed out.

In an interview yesterday afternoon, President E. E. Church said he was pleased with the increase since he had been apprehensive of the effect of a $100-a-year increase in fees would have on the enrollment. Dr. Church said he feels now that there will be very little effect on enrollment in state colleges because of the increase.

The added fees come in the form of a $50-a-semester registration fee in addition to the $45 charged for tuition, for resident students. The registration fee was enacted by the 1959 session of the West Virginia Legislature, to provide a fund for future construction at state colleges as well as the university.

Two-thirds of the money from this fund will go into a special non-reverting fund for college building, while the other third will go into the state's General Revenue Fund.

Dr. Church explained that colleges of the state can apply for money after having a construction project approved by the college board of governors, and then applying to the Legislature for approval of the plan.

He said Potomac State does not have any immediate construction in view, but that there are far-reaching plans being drawn up for additional buildings.

There are 370 freshmen and 236 sophomores registered. These two groups are divided into 70 women students and 300 men in the freshman class, and 186 men students and 50 women in the sophomore class.

Dean McKee stated at a meeting of the faculty that he felt they had done a splendid job in registering the students, with very little time being lost. He was pleased with the enrollment total and said it probably will increase as stragglers and special students register.

Bloodmobile Visits Keyser September 25

Appeal Is Made For New Donors

KEYSER — The Bloodmobile unit from Johnstown, Pa., will make another visit to Keyser on Friday September 25, when it will be stationed at Grace Methodist Church from noon to 6 p. m.

Floyd C. Boor, chairman of the local Red Cross chapter, has pointed out that with the present functioning of the United Fund method of raising operating money for the Mineral County Red Cross Chapter, the money needed for general Red Cross necessities and the Blood Bank Program is no longer the primary problem.

"Meeting the blood quota is the major problem today and yet the quota is a very reasonable amount," Boor said. He added that "it is very important that the people realize the necessity of Keyser meeting its quota each time the mobile unit visits the city in order to be able to continue participating in the program, so that an ample supply of blood will be available to meet the many needs of the people in the Keyser area.

"An important feature of being a participant in the blood program is the fact that we can have blood made available in any participating hospital, regardless of the city in which it is located for any of the local people, as long as we are able to meet our assigned quota."

Area residents are urged to donate a pint of blood on Friday, September 25, at Grace Methodist Church.

Broiler Champ Active In School, Church

OAKLAND—Ralph Buckel Jr., 4-H Club member of Garrett County, is the 1959 Maryland State winner in the junior broiler production program. A trophy and a $25 savings bond, given through the sponsorship of the Maryland State Poultry Council, who presented Buckel at the Maryland State Fair, Timonium, by Grover C. Harris Jr., extension poultryman.

Ralph was selected as a regional winner last May in the Western Maryland broiler exhibit held at the Sterling Processing plan here. The six-bird sample displayed from Ralph's entry of 100 birds averaged 3.85 pounds each for an eight-week growing period. These birds were the White Vantress-Arbor Acre Cross variety. A total of 1,600 broilers have been raised by Ralph in the five years he has participated in the program.

President of his local 4-H club, "Bucky," as he is known to his friends, started his 4-H project work in 1954 with a Sears Roebuck Foundation dairy calf. His entomology project, which he has carried four years, consists of a total of 142 insects. Demonstrations and display of his collections have created interest in this project among other 4-Hers and won him many blue ribbons.

Beekeeping, part of the entomology work, is "one of the most interesting parts of my project and many of my friends have received gifts of honey." A speech based on his entomology project won Ralph county and regional honors and participation in the state public speaking contest.

"Through 4-H work," Ralph says, "I have learned to accept losing as well as winning. Losing encourages me to try harder and do my best in all I do." Among his recent winnings, was that of a State 4-H delegate to the American Institute of Cooperatives in August at the University of Illinois. A scholarship to the 1959 Club Week was achieved on his county electrical demonstration.

Elected vice president of the Garrett County 4-H Council this year, Ralph has helped with many county activities. He participated in the dairy judging event at the State Fair as a member of the Garrett County judging team.

The Buckel home, located near Bittinger, consists of about six acres in which are located two broiler houses, a large garden and orchard. His father is an elementary teacher at North Glade School. His mother, in addition to raising three children, is also the Bittinger Girls 4-H Club local leader. Her daughter, Judy, who is a sophomore at the University of Maryland, represented the state at the National 4-H Conference in June at Washington. James, the youngest in the family, is in the eleventh grade at Northern High.

Ralph Jr., is a senior at Northern High where he participates in school activities including the football team. As a member of the Luther League, he represented the local group in a regional conference in the New York area this summer. He is also a member of the church choir.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . .
ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Day	Book	Chapter	Verses
Sunday	Psalms	34	1-4
Monday	John	14	1-3
Tuesday	Habakkuk	3	18-19
Wednesday	Luke	10	25-27
Thursday	Matthew	13	18-23
Friday	II Thessalonians	1	3
Saturday	Isaiah	58	1-2

Through All Of Life ...

Perhaps you see no significance to the hourglass superimposed on the Bible. But to the believer, it means that all of life is sustained by God's promises. Every day, every hour, He gives strength and help to His followers. The light of His Word shines steadily through the passing of time. The more you read, the deeper will be your understanding, the greater will be your joy. By entering wholeheartedly into the work of the Church, by giving it your support, you increase the value of your own life, and help others to see the light shining through each day's experience.

Throughout life's entire span, the Church will help us, the Bible will speak to us of God. Does the picture mean that to you? It will, if you look at it through believing eyes.

Record Corn Crop Forecast In Maryland

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — Maryland farmers are expected to grow a record corn crop this year.

The Maryland-Delaware Crop Reporting Service said Friday the 1959 output, based on farmer estimates Sept. 1, is forecast at 30,120,000 bushels. This would be 5 per cent better than the previous high of 1956.

Creighton N. Guellow, service director, said the early summer drought cut yields in some early fields, especially on the Eastern Shore, but the average yield per acre throughout the state will be only slightly below 1958.

The service estimated the soybean harvest at 4,200,000 bushels, or about the same as last season; tobacco 32,375,000 pounds, up from last year because of a boost in acreage, and hay 717,000 tons.

The survey showed that apple prospects are excellent, with a yield of about 1,400,000 bushels. The peach crop, which has been harvested, is expected to total 460,000 bushels against 490,000 a year ago.

Tomato output was expected to be down 31 per cent, lima beans down 33 per cent, sweet corn off 9 per cent and snap beans down 12 per cent.

Safe-Teens Hear Officer Cubbage

City Patrolman Charles Cubbage of the Cumberland Police Department spoke at a meeting of the Cumberland Chapter of Safe-Teen, Inc., Thursday night at the Court House as the club launched its fall program.

Officer Cubbage emphasized the importance of giving undivided attention to the job of driving. Using incidents from his policing experience in traffic control, he explained the importance of split-second-divided attention.

"Stay alert and stay alive" is still the best advice that can be given any driver in city traffic, Mr. Cubbage reminded the group.

A discussion period followed the talk.

Dennis Bobo Jr., club president, said the next program in this safety educational series will include a film followed by a question and answer session. The next meeting will be Tuesday, September 22.

About 20 members attended last night.

Jury To Probe

Yesterday pupils of Dennett Road School who lost six of their friends in the accident, stood with bowed heads for a moment of silence.

Foster Riggs, principal, said another bus owned by the Garrett County Board of Education, will be placed on the route on Monday. There was no school yesterday for the children who are picked up on the Boiling Spring - Deer Park - Loch Lynn route.

Southern High School, which lost one of its students and had five others seriously injured, cancelled its pep rally Thursday night.

The school opened its football season yesterday with Moorefield High School. Dr. W. Kenneth Johns, school principal, conferred with other school officials and it was decided the game would be played.

U.S. Sen. J. Glenn Beall said he plans to make a full study to determine if federal legislation is needed in the future to avoid similar tragedies.

The National Safety Council has listed a three-point program to safeguard school bus passengers, in view of the Garrett County tragedy:

1. Selection and training of school bus drivers.
2. Inspection and preventive maintenance of school buses.
3. Establishment of legal standards for the behind-the-wheel performance of school bus drivers through driver licensing.

(The bus driver in this case was experienced and had never had an accident until Thursday.)

Politics In Pen?

3 Ex-Wardens Say Prison Newspaper Favors GOP

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI) — Three former wardens of Moundsville Penitentiary Friday accused the Republican state administration of using the prison publication, "Penscope," for "political propaganda."

State Treasurer Orel J. Skeen, speaking for himself, and R. A. Coiner, both Democrats, and E. H. Tucker, a Republican, said Warden Don Adams and State Public Institutions Commissioner Harold E. Neely have permitted publication of stories favoring the administration of Gov. Cecil H. Underwood.

Skeen said the stories tend to give the impression all the progress at the institution has been made only under direction of Adams and Neely. He said the stories lead the public to believe that no improvements had been made while he, Tucker and Coiner were wardens.

Skeen was especially critical of a special edition published in conjunction with the recent State Fair near Lewisburg. He said the front page carried pictures of Underwood, Neely and Adams in "an obvious attempt to advance the cause of the Republican party."

The ex - warden said that as a matter of principle, Underwood and Neely should not allow a newspaper over which they have control to "heap praise upon themselves."

Skeen said if the Republicans are going to use the paper "to promote themselves, the Democrats ought to be given equal space."

Contacted by telephone, Adams said a "Penscope" story of the "dilapidated" trucks he found at the institution was true and noted that for a time he had to borrow a coal truck from the Marshall County Board of Education.

"I'll defy anyone to show me anything inaccurate in the Penscope," Adams said. "Most everything in the paper showing progress made at the institution had already been published in the state papers."

Neely said the special edition was put out to show progress made by Prison Industries in conjunction with other industrial exhibits at the fair.

"The paper was only trying to show what has been done during my and Adams' tenure," Neely said. "If in the process we step on someone's toes, then let him cry ouch."

Neely defended Adams' supervision of the prison and added that "for once in their lives, the prisoners have a warden who is their friend."

The commissioner said Skeen said nothing about the publication when he visited the prison Wednesday and noted that he considers it "a compliment that former wardens have become aware of the progress made at the prison."

School Tax Levies Bring 50 Million

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—Tax money from special levies and property assessments will bring in an estimated $50,734,404 — about $11,000,000 more than last year — for West Virginia public schools this fiscal year, it was reported Friday.

William Hamilton, supervisor of the State Board of School Finance, said the estimate includes $25,406,902 from property assessments, an increase of $1,274,170 despite the anticipated loss of $1,034,000 from the bank deposit amendment approved by the voters in last year's general election. The amendment exempted bank deposits from assessments for tax purposes.

In addition to the estimate by Hamilton, schools will receive $58,757,420 in state aid during the 1959-60 fiscal year.

Hamilton's report also showed that the estimated total tax money includes $17,714,816 from special levies approved by voters in 35 counties.

Approval of maximum special levies in all counties could raise an additional $8,174,061 for schools, Hamilton said.

Hamilton said the $50,734,404 represents an increase of $11,281,712 over the $39,452,000 estimated at this time last year for the 1958-59 fiscal year.

Of the $50,734,404, about one-fifth, or $10,302,291, will be raised in Kanawha County. Cabell County is expected to collect the second - highest amount, $3,591,105. Wirt County will raise the smallest amount, $56,448.

Other counties expected to collect more than $1,000,000 in property and special levy taxes this fiscal year are:

Wood $2,247,209, Ohio 2,061,452, Logan 2,019,765, Hancock 1,952,201, McDowell 1,818,438, Raleigh 1,630,284, Marshall 1,621,959, Harrison 1,645,593, Monongalia 1,510,022, Fayette .,702,933, Marion 1,442,444.

Mercer 1,424,024, Mingo 1,286,494, Wyoming 1,569,926.

$63,544,600 School Bonds Still Out

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—A total of $63,544,600 worth of bonds for public school construction will be outstanding during the 1959-60 fiscal year, the State Board of School Finance reported Friday.

Kanawha County heads the state's 55 counties with $26,028,000 outstanding. Brooke County has the smallest amount at $38,000.

No bond issues were voted for 1959-60 by residents of Barbour, Boone, Braxton, Cabell, Clay, Doddridge, Greenbrier, Harrison, Lewis, Marion, Monroe, Nicholas, Pendleton, Pocahontas, Ritchie, Summers, Tyler and Wayne Counties.

Board Supervisor William K. Hamilton said if all counties had approved their bonding potential $188,318,576 would have been available for school construction. As it now stands, counties have a total of $124,773,976 in unused bonding potential, he said.

Secretary Plan Is Tabled Here

The Allegany County Board of Commissioners tabled a proposal under which they were asked to decide if they want to join the program for a full-time executive secretary of the State Association of County Commissioners.

Joseph G. Harrison, president of the state group, wrote the board that 13 of the larger counties voted at the last meeting to inaugurate the program and Allegany County's assessment for the salary would be $483 per year.

The assessment is based on the population of the individual counties. The board members here feel that they would like to discuss the matter at a November meeting of the four Western Maryland counties in Frederick.

High masses will be celebrated at 8 a. m. Monday and Tuesday, with the concluding services, including a litany and procession, scheduled to follow the mass on Tuesday.

The pastor said communion will be distributed 15 minutes prior to the Monday and Tuesday masses, with confessions scheduled to be heard after the masses at 8 and 10 a. m. and 5 p. m. Sunday and following the Monday evening services.

Father Kilgannon will be assisted in the services by a Capuchin priest from SS. Peter and Paul Monastery.

Speed Limit Increased On U.S. 220

The speed limit on McMullen Highway south of Cumberland has been increased in two sections to 40 miles an hour from the former 30-mile limit.

Notice of the changes was received yesterday by the Allegany County Board of Commissioners from the State Roads Commission.

The SRC stated that upon recommendation of the Traffic Division director the commission at a meeting September 2 adopted the changes.

The section from the Bowling Green Service Station to a point where the roadway into Fairgo is located will be one of the 40-mile an hour zones. The second section of a mile and a quarter will be from a point just north of the Celanese plant toward Cresaptown to a point opposite the Second National Bank's branch office.

These two sections have been posted with 40-mile an hour signs.

Local Club Helps TV Get Films Of Fatal Crash

The Allegany Camper Club, organized to support activities at Allegany High School, helped in the transmission of television news about the fatal train-school bus accident Thursday in Garrett County, club officials said.

The Columbia Broadcasting Company contacted a local photographer with the request that he furnish it with 16-mm film shots of the tragedy that claimed seven lives. The photographer turned the request over to Robert Davis, who operates a motion picture service here.

Davis found out that the only film available was some which had been ordered by Edward Schwarz, AHS football coach, so he could have a record of each game for practice purposes.

Schwarz agreed to release some of the film to Davis, the shots being seen on the CBS television news program Thursday.

Fire Units Drill At Cresaptown

Fifteen members of the Cresaptown and LaVale volunteer fire companies participated Thursday in a fire drill at the former's training area on the Mason Farm.

Fire Chief James Loar of the LaVale unit said teams of three, each man equipped with air masks, entered the smoke-filled house to locate the fire and extinguish it.

The firemen also practiced the use of the fog screen in ventilating a burning home.

In ladder evolutions, each man climbed a 30-foot ladder placed vertically, using various leg locks and safety checks.

After the drill, the Cresaptown unit entertained the visitors in the fire hall.

CD Requested To Get Pump For Barton

William G. Barger, director of Civil Defense for Allegany County, has requested the Maryland headquarters of the CD to loan a pump and approximately two and a half miles of eight-inch steel pipe to the town of Barton to alleviate a critical water shortage.

Barger wrote the state headquarters on behalf of the Mayor and Town Council of Barton, He said the pump and pipe would only be needed for three or four weeks or until the water situation is solved.

The town plans to use the pump and pipe to transfer water from Laurel Run to the town's reservoir. The Barton water supply comes from surface water which collects in th ereservoir and also from several wells.

Drought conditions this summer have caused the town to be in short supply of water and it is below safe levels for health and fire protection.

Holy Name Unit Will Attend Mass

The members of the Holy Name Society of SS. Peter and Paul Catholic Church will attend the 7 a. m. mass Sunday and receive Holy Communion, according to Rev. DePaul Ripko, OFM, Cap., spiritual director.

The group also will attend vespers Sunday at 7:30 p. m. The first meeting of the fall will be held in the school cafeteria after services.

Road Hardsurfacing Is Being Sought

R. M. Buser, RD 1, Oldtown, wrote the Allegany County Board of Commissioners yesterday concerning further hardsurfacing of Town Creek Road.

Buser said he was writing on behalf of residents of the roadway and cited a promise by the board of seven years ago to pave a mile each year until the entire roadway was completed.

Three miles were paved some years ago and slightly more than a mile is in process of being hardsurfaced.

End To The Cat And Mouse Game?

"Here you are, gentlemen, take your choice" in effect is what the Defense Department will say to Congress when it hands in its fiscal 1961 budget requests. Already under study, the military planners have been told by Defense Secretary McElroy to prepare their budgets according to what they would like to have, what they will probably get and what they might receive if defense spending were trimmed next year.

Budget No. 1 will reflect an arbitrary 10 per cent cut from this year's appropriations in such divisions as procurement, construction and research and development. This will be considered the rock bottom budget if worse comes to worst — meaning if Congress decides to reduce spending during the coming election year.

The second budget to be submitted by the service chiefs will consist of the same appropriation requests favorably acted upon by Congress this year. Barring spectacular changes in the cold war or the introduction of uniquely different weapons, this is expected to be the budget as it is finally approved.

Budget No. 3 will contain the-sky's-the-limit proposals for projects the services regard as too important to be limited by financial restrictions. This one stands little chance of success because it would increase defense spending, which already accounts for more than half the total budget, and contribute toward another year of deficit spending.

Although it may seem like useless dpulication to prepare budgets tempered to possible political and financial climates of Congress and the Administration, the idea is more realistic than the present cat and mouse game played by a Defense Department which requests more than it needs because it knows Congress will cut the request, and a Congress which has become wise to Defense tactics and tries to guess at the overage before making its cuts.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

Wage Hikes

It is not often that an industrial company uses its advertising space to sell not its product but its thinking. Every American producer is being forced to consider the danger of foreign competition in the American market. The automobile industry never favored a high tariff for automobiles because it did not need protection. There was no foreign competition in the American automobile market, but that is not true today.

The Union Oil Company of California has been using its advertising space to discuss its economic thinking. The product will take care of itself if the country's economic thinking is right. The advertisement that attracted my attention is entitled "Charlie Perkins — How wage hikes and taxes threaten your job." Charlie Perkins is apparently a real person.

This is the body of the advertisement and whoever wrote it knows his economics:

"Walk into nearly any store today with the idea of buying something.

"You'll see products from abroad right alongside our American-made ones. Nails, woolen and cotton fabrics, dinnerware, sewing machines, cameras, cars, bicycles and watches are some of them. And practically in every case, the imports cost less.

"Foreign manufacturers now compete sharply with our own industries. And they do so without two handicaps every American business faces today.

"One: Wage hikes not based on increased productivity. These result in continually rising prices for U. S. consumers and ever-mounting production costs for our manufacturers.

"Two: Growing taxes. Each year taxes take more of industry's dollars. This, too, is reflected in higher prices to the consumer.

"It makes you wonder. If we price ourselves out of world markets, what's next? If we don't stay competitive, isn't that the same as pricing you and me and all of us right out of our jobs?"

The issue herewith presented is correct. The contrary argument is: Many manufacturers are mighty eager to sell some of their output in other countries. Are not American-made sewing machines, typewriters, and farm machinery sold abroad?

Both arguments have some merit. However, we face a very frigid fact, namely, that if low-waged, low-taxed, low-priced, subsidized goods come into the United States to compete with high-waged, highly taxed, high-priced goods made with less efficiency than is possible because of labor union rules, we face the danger of a kind of competition which can throw 10,000,000 to 15,000,000 Americans out of work. That raises very serious social problems.

It used to be sound economics to say that if an American-made product could not compete with a similar product made elsewhere, it was the fault of the American manufacturer. He lacked efficiency. He lacked sound financial principles.

However, that is not true today. The United States, by a generosity unknown in the history of man, has rebuilt and rehabilitated industries throughout the world and created new ones with the result that American industry, which pays high taxes to aid its competitors, finds the subsidized competition tough going.

Secondly, American labor unions, fighting automation, have instituted various feather-bedding arrangements to slow up production. These arrangements increase inefficiencies, raise the cost of production of American goods.

I recently watched an advertisement for electrical equipment used in connection with a television show. We tried quickly to figure what the cost would be if we purchased every household device in that commercial. Our guess ran to about $50,000 which, of course, is not necessary because nobody requires all the devices.

The dilemma that the United States faces is this: In order to maintain our standard of life which is based on the social assumption that this nation will not have a proletariat, we must have full employment at good wages. The other side of the dilemma is that we cannot compete even in our own market with goods identically made by machinery tended by laborers who receive less pay, work longer hours and use fewer feather-bedding devices.

This problem will not be solved by demagogic speeches in or out of Congress. It requires profound study of the entire economic structure of this country. The proof of the peril is that the old free-trade unions in the textile and garment industries have suddenly become conscious of the danger to their industries by the flood of as good but cheaper goods from Europe and Asia.

Relations Between Red China And Russia Face Serious Difficulties

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — The biggest question mark as Nikita Khrushchev prepares to visit the United States is whether he is behind the civil war in Laos or whether his Red colleagues in China are deliberately stirring up trouble in order to embarrass him.

I don't know the answer. And I doubt if any of our diplomats do. They know that last year the Chinese Communists so vigorously objected to Khrushchev's coming to New York for the UN Assembly that he called off the trip and went to pacify them in Peiping instead. They also knew that Peiping long chafed over Moscow's continued recognition of Nationalist China and has been suspicious that Khrushchev may become too friendly with the West. But beyond that they don't know—and I don't know—the answer regarding Laos.

But what I do know is that I have traveled along much of the vast border between China and Russia—one of the longest in the world—and I know something of the push of population on one side and the emptiness of population on the other. And when you have 600,000,000 people squeezed into China, looking at the rolling fertile steppes of Siberia lying empty just beyond, then you are likely to have deep-rooted, almost permanent trouble.

Actually that trouble has been permanent. It dates back to Genghis Khan and the Mongols who came out of the crowded Orient to ride their ponies across the grasslands of Russia as far as Poland. Invasion after invasion, beginning with the 12th Century, has swept from China and Mongolia across Russia, and no government in Moscow, whether Communist or Czarist, can shut its eyes to the possibility that this may happen again.

That's why, when in the satellite countries last year, I heard the wisecrack: "Thank God for Russia as a buffer state between us and China."

Red Arms To China

When you cross the Gobi Desert between China and outer Mongolia you don't go by camel any more. A camel caravan takes 30 to 40 days, an automobile four to five days, depending on the rain and how many times you get stuck in the mud. For it does rain on the Gobi Desert, and there are no roads. It's so flat in most places, however, that a thousand cars can travel abreast.

Driving over the Gobi in 1925 I met and managed to photograph a caravan of Buicks carrying the first shipment of Russian arms into China. They were consigned to Feng Yu-hsiang, the Christian general, who was no more a Communist than is Chiang Kai-shek. But he was getting Russian arms for use against his rival war lords.

In South China a month later, our boat had to run the gantlet of Chiang Kai-shek's fort at Whampoa on the Pearl River where his troops were Russian-armed and Russian-trained. Chiang has now holed up in Formosa as the last remaining Chinese opponent to communism.

He too was never any more Communist than Feng, the Christian general. But he was using Communist arms in the same way most Chinese will use any weapon or any expedient for their own purposes; just as Mao Tse-tung, present ruler of Red China, will use Moscow for his own purpose until it suits him to do otherwise.

Underdeveloped Prairies

On another occasion, in 1922, I sailed up the Amur River through a long stretch of Siberia. Every year as winter begins to close down on Siberia and the river boats make their last trip before the river freezes, Russian women wait on the docks pleading for a chance to share a cabin with any man who will pay their way to warmer Manchuria.

It's a week's slow cruise up a river that's about as long as the Mississippi, through prairies as rich and empty as those of our middle west before the western trek of our ancestors. An occasional fishing village broke the monotony, or a cluster of woodcutters' shacks from which the crew loaded endless cords of wood for the boat's insatiable boilers.

But for a week there was almost no sign of human life. Then you come to Khabarovsk, a pioneer city of log cabins and slab sidewalks, exactly like the old lumber cities of the Oregon coast.

But Khabarovsk is still cold and I pushed on up the Sungari River, again by boat, to Harbin, metropolis of north Manchuria. There, after another four days of river cruising, I suddenly burst out upon a teeming, pulsating city — rickshas, theatres, restaurants, teahouses, crowded streets, humanity rubbing shoulders with each other. This is China. And the contrast between that vigorous, crowded city of Harbin and the drab and lonely cities of Siberia still haunts anyone who has been there.

Things have changed somewhat since I was last in the Far East. Siberia has added more population. Modern cities have sprung up. But the ratio of population has not changed. In fact, the density of population in China has increased considerably more than the density in Siberia. China has increased by 200,000,000 people in 30 years. The total population of Russia and Siberia now equals only the amount of China's increase — 200,000,000.

And as long as you have 600,000,000 people in one country and the greatest, most fertile land mass in the world alongside it, relatively empty, then you are not going to have a smooth and happy permanent partnership between China and Russia.

That is a point which critics of President Eisenhower should bear in mind as he prepares for Khrushchev's arrival in Washington.

TOKYO

The Japanese papers breathlessly report that the United Nations is about to undertake a solemn investigation of the Communist aggression in Laos. It would be hard to imagine a more ironically superfluous venture.

In order to see the bitter humor of this piece of high level international thumb twiddling, you only have to stretch your imagination a little. Imagine, for example, that the American administration that came to office preaching the "liberation" policy had meant a word of its preachments.

Imagine, then, the Director of the Central Intelligence Agency, Allen W. Dulles, collecting all the reasonably combative Czechoslovak refugees from Communism who are now teaching school, operating groceries, and otherwise earning honest, humble living outside Czechoslovakia. Imagine, further, the CIA training and arming these people as guerilla units in Western Germany.

Imagine, finally, the NATO forces in Western Germany breaching the Czech border defenses, in order to turn guerilla units loose inside Czechoslovakia, where they would then raise as much hell as possible for the shabby, time-serving Communist government in Prague.

The imagination has to be considerably stretched to picture the peaceable Allen Dulles carrying out any such scheme as this. But the imagination is not even needed to picture the consequences of this kind of serious attempt to give meaning to the "liberation" policy.

The entire American press, with its most respectable, anti-Communist elements in the lead, would be in full cry against such "flagrant aggression." The Senate would be exploding at quarter-hour intervals. The British Labor party would have reached the stage of public apoplexy. Dag Hammarskjold and the U.N. Secretariat would be running round in circles, barking like self-righteous dogs. Most important of all, the Kremlin would be getting ready to go to war.

Yet a much worse case has now occurred in Laos, beyond any possibility of argument except by the type of English and French officials who remain in Vientiana, a couple of hundred miles from the front, and discount all reports from that uncomfortable area because the reports necessarily come from "natives." In the first instance, on July 15 to 18, something like five battalions of pro-Communist Lao refugees, trained and armed in North Vietnam, were seen across the frontier by regular units of the North Vietnamese army. The latter then retired.

A great deal of nonsense has been and is being written about the consequences of this first attack. The country attacked was small, primitive, and had been left divided by the Geneva partition of Indochina sponsored by the U. S. government in 1954. The northern provinces of Laos were then Communist-occupied. Only a little more than a year ago, Laos still had a mixed government in which Communists were the dominant figures.

In these circumstances, it was extraordinary that little Laos, on the very brink of final disaster, abruptly organized a government of national independence. It would have been downright miraculous if Laos had also been able to root out all Communist infiltration in the remote villages. It would have been super-miraculous for Laos to train a fully efficient modern army in about fourteen months. The Laos army has no more than twenty-five battalions, which were already fully occupied in July with the remaining internal Communist underground. In July the Communist high command unquestionably expected that five battalions of border-crossess would be enough to tilt the balance and thus spell the end of Laos.

Despite the odds on success, the first Communist operation quite largely failed. The northern provinces of Phony Saly and Samneua did not rapidly give in. The carefully coordinated guerilla attack in the rest of the country did not attain its aims. Hence on August 30, as first reported by this correspondent, the Communists launched another invasion that was really massive by Lao standards.

Two additional Communist battalions drove into Phong Saly, where the original invaders had been all but routed. At least seven battalions drove into Samneua, where the government forces were just going over to the offensive. The new invaders from North Vietnam, moreover, were not just Lao Communist refugees. The Lao refugees were a small element, compared to guerilla trained tribespeople of North Vietnamese origin. In all the new invading battalions, at least at the outset, the stiffening was also supplied by regulars of the North Vietnamese Communist army.

The parallel with the imagined Czechoslovak case is exact, except that Laos was immeasurably more vulnerable and the Communist aggression was immeasurably more naked than the supposed aggression organized by Allen Dulles.

But instead of running round in circles, self-righteously barking, Dag Hammarskjold is wearing that judicial, doubting air which he reserves for Communist aggressions. More important, instead of ordering mobilization, as the Kremlin would be doing if Czechoslovakia had suffered this sort of incursion, the White House is ironing its best linen and polishing its new-bought vodka glasses in preparation for a jolly weekend visit from Nikita S. Khrushchev.

Inside Washington

By Henry Cathcart

JUVENILE DELINQUENCY— Summer time appears to have become delinquency time in many parts of the United States, particularly some of the larger cities. Washington, for instance, has suffered a wave of serious attacks and thefts in recent weeks.

The public blames it on lax police methods. However, the cops seem to have the real answer. They claim they are understaffed to handle the thousands of youths who are free from the disciplines of school, are unemployed and have insufficient organized recreational activities to occupy themselves.

The cops say two things will bring the juvenile delinquency rate down—more policemen on the beats, and the reopening of school.

Some Tension Normal; Worry Can Kill You

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Worry is a health hazard because it affects the circulatory, glandular, and nervous systems. Dr. Charles Mayo once said he never knew a man who died from overwork but he knew many who died from doubt and apprehension. In addition, life is shortened by fear.

Tension is essential to living. It keeps us on guard when our safety, well-being, happiness, or self-esteem are threatened. In this respect anxiety is normal and can be expected from time to time. No one enjoys tension but it's here to stay.

On the other hand, be on guard when these emotional upsets occur too often, persist, or interfere with everyday living. Most of these troublesome reactions concern minor problems and small disappointments. It is surprising how often we worry about something that never happens.

Those bothered most are men and women who are unsatisfied with the ordinary pleasures of life; they are always looking for something out of this world. These people are suspicious and do not get along with others. The majority suffer from self-doubt.

Most worries can be banished by talking them over with someone. It is best to get to the source of the trouble. Give in or apologize when wrong instead of acting like a defiant, frustrated child. Go easy with criticism of others: concentrate on their good points and help develop them. Giving the other fellow a break often makes things easier for you.

Those in the habit of responding to frustration by anger should discipline themselves to wait 24 hours before retaliating. Meanwhile, work it off by doing something physical. When tension at the office or plant becomes unbearable, consider what is happening. Unload the unimportant duties and then tackle the more important problems one at a time.

(Dr. Van Dellen will send a list of books on mental hygiene, if stamped, addressed envelope accompanies request).

I'M MISQUOTED

F. S. writes: Someone said you were against exercise except walking. Is this a correct statement?

REPLY

No, in my opinion, everyone ought to exercise, within the limits of his physical condition. A young, healthy person should remain active as long as possible in noncompetitive sports such as golf, swimming, tennis, and hiking. It is better for the oldster to avoid strenuous exercise. For him, walking is excellent. What I object to is a 45 year old man who suddenly decides to become a weekend athlete. Perhaps this is what you had in mind.

CANCER RADIATION

Mrs. M. writes: Years ago, when I was a practicing nurse, radium was used freely in cancer. But now you hear only about X-ray. Is radium out of date?

REPLY

No, but it is getting strong competition from high voltage X-ray and radioactive isotopes, including the cobalt bomb.

GURGLING FROM LUNGS

W. P. writes: What causes bubbles in the lungs?

REPLY

The bubbles represent frothy sputum and serum that originate in the lungs. They usually stem from pneumonia or congestion from heart trouble.

HARD WATER

S. L. writes: Can drinking hard water for a number of years cause calcium deposits in the joints?

REPLY

No. The majority of chemicals in hard water are not absorbed.

DAMMED TUBES

L. M. writes: What would cause blocked eustachian tubes, lasting five months?

REPLY

Swelling due to infection.

CORN OIL

H. C. writes: Can a person with gallstones take corn oil for hardening of the arteries without getting a gall bladder attack?

REPLY

Yes, if he is lucky. On the other hand, if you want your corn oil and eat it, too, why not have your gall bladder removed?

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Try And Stop Me

Night club comics — especially ones who rattle off punch lines at the rate of three a minute — know that some of their "quickies" will fall flat. If too many gags "lay an egg," they have covering sallies tucked away in the back of their heads to cover their embarrassment. One device is to blame the writer of their material, another to start picking on some prominent customer at a ringside table. Milton Berle, Joe E. Lewis, Henny Youngman and George Jesel excel at this sort of "ad lib" give-and-take with unenthusiastic audiences.

Gene Baylos recently pulled a new one that broke the ice at a Beverly Hills night club. After four successive sallies earned him nothing more than a few scattered titters, he suddenly turned serious and asked the customers, "Did you ever have the feeling you were walking up a gangplank and there was no ship there?" His listeners must indeed have known what he meant, because from then on his act went over with a bang.

Why The Hullabaloo?

By Leslie Gould

NEW YORK—The only mystery as to the tight money or credit crisis is why the hullabaloo in Congress.

There is no mystery as to why money rates are high and credit tight. It stems from:

1. Failure of the U. S. Treasury six and eight years ago to switch a major portion of the federal debt into long-term-securities. That was a colossal blunder. The Government could borrow then at 2½ per cent and money was plentiful. It didn't and now it can't borrow at the legal limit of 4¼ percent.

2. The wage-price spiral which has put up the cost of everything, and thus making for a greater need for credit.

3. The continued deficit spending by the federal, state and local governments. Some of this is due to the inflation in the cost of services governments provide as well as in the cost of things they buy.

4. The business boom with the heavier demand for credit by business and consumers.

5. The slowdown in recent months in the rate of savings. This should be a cause of real concern, but it doesn't seem to be bothering Congress.

Tight money and more costly credit are due to a demand beyond the supply. The reason that the rate of savings has been falling off is because there has been less incentive to save—fear of inflation, the appeal of quicker profits in the stock market or real estate, and more reckless spending by everyone.

The Treasury is a victim of this, with the cashing in of the savings "E" and "H" bond excedeing sales for some time. The buyer of savings bonds for years has been penalized for his thrift. The Government-particularly the Congress—has failed to check the inflation and at the same time has kept an unrealistic interest rate on the bonds.

This is now to be changed under a bill before Congress, but even the promised new 3¾ percent rate—against the present 3¼ percent—is inadequate. A person can do better with a savings bank or a federally insured building and loan.

The Treasury must do roughly $87 billion in financing in the next 12 months, most of this refinancing short-term and other maturing securities. So, it will have to compete with borrowers for money, and it will have to pay the going rate—whether Congress says so or not.

If Congress fails to raise the interest ceiling on the Government bonds, the Treasury will have to sell bonds bearing the "official-Congress fixed" ceiling at a discount.

The danger in the tight money is that it will make credit so difficult, particularly for new homes, that it will slow down the business boom. Another threat to the boom is the continuance of the steel strike beynod October 1. This is worrying the stock market currently.

By TED TROXELL

Bill Hahn is no longer on the football scene at Fort Hill High School, but the Sentinel gridders apparently have no intentions of discontinuing the winning tradition he established during his long reign there. This fact is attested by the 39-6 victory the Fort Hillians rolled up over a spirit-lacking LaSalle eleven last night at the Stadium.

A crowd estimated at 5,000 sat in on the intra-city opener and for the first two periods saw a fairly even-contested battle. Fort Hill, however, cracked the game wide open in the third period by tallying four touchdowns to make the coaching debut of Charlie Lattimer a highly successful one.

Lattimer is an ex-Fort Hill athlete and later played football at the University of Maryland. His coaching opponent in last night's tussle, Don Harden, was serving in the "driver's seat" at LaSalle for the first time, having moved up from the assistant's post following the resignation of Norm Geatz.

The victory was Fort Hill's 24th in a row over the Explorers and also marked the 21st consecutive game in which the Sentinels have not tasted defeat.

Rush For 354 Yards

The Sentinels displayed an explosive ground attack, as they picked up a net total of 354 yards in 30 rushing attempts. Only twice during the entire game did the Red Raiders take to the air, with one of the aerials finding its mark for a seven-yard gain.

Senior quarterback Kenny Boggs, who played in the shadow of the illustrious Charlie Robinson last season, handled the signal-calling duties like a veteran. Time and again Boggs handed off to his well-organized backfield mates with amazing deceptiveness, and the Fort Hill forward wall ripped huge holes in the weak LaSalle defense to spring the Sentinel backs for long runs.

Five of the winners' TDs came as the result of dashes from scrimmage of 48 (twice), 33, 32, and 14 yards, while the sixth was picked up on a 60-yard punt return by Jerry Bell.

Speir Runs 65 Yards

Frank Robinson, brother of the aforementioned Charlie who is performing for the University of Pittsburgh freshmen this season, picked up the first six-pointer of the ball game when he romped home from 14 yards out. A 65-yard run on a quick opener by LaSalle's Ron Speir tied the game moments later, but Robinson came right back with the tie-breaker when he again sprinted around left end for a touchdown, this time for 32 yards.

Robinson scored his third touchdown in the third period on a 48-yard scamper, and was joined in the scoring column by Bell, and Delbert Helmick and Joe DiNicola, who countered on runs of 48 and 33 yards, respectively.

A check of the first half statistics shows that Fort Hill held only a slight edge in the various offensive departments. The Explorers matched their opponents in first downs with seven. The Sentinels registered a net total of 138 yards rushing to LaSalle's 113 in the first two periods, but the latter club showed a minus-16 effort in the second half, which for them proved to be disastrous.

Completes Six Passes

Quarterback Carroll Wilt was snowed under repeatedly by the hard-charging Fort Hill line as the Explorer linemen afforded him little protection. When the slender junior did manage to get his passes off, he was able to find his target with regularity, completing six of eight passes for 45 yards.

Frostburg Native Chalks Up First Major League Win

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Jack Fisher, 20 - year - old Baltimore Oriole rookie, hurled his first major league victory Friday night, a three-hit 3-0 shutout over the league-leading Chicago White Sox in the first game of a twi-night doubleheader.

It was also Fisher's first complete major league game.

Fisher had a perfect game going for 6 1-3 innings when Nellie Fox rammed a line drive single to left. In the ninth, Al Smith opened the frame with a clean single and pinch hitter Earl Torgeson was credited with a hit when his bounder struck Smith running for second.

Fisher fanned three and walked but one, Sherm Lollar in the eighth.

Fisher was born in Frostburg, Md., but is now a resident of Augusta, Ga. He was signed by the Orioles in 1957 and had an 0-5 record with Knoxville of the Southern Assn. He was 0-2 last year with the Smokies before going to Wilson of the Class B Caroline League.

This year he worked with the Orioles in spring training and was sent to Miami of the International League where he had an 8-4 record before being recalled in June. He has been in 23 games with Baltimore this year, starting five and is credited with two saves. He went into Friday night's game with a 3.43 ERA.

The victory raised Fisher's record to 1-4. Billy Pierce, White Sox southpaw, was the victim of Fisher's masterpiece, dropping his 14th decision against 13 victories.

Home runs by Bob Nieman in the third, his 20th, and Willie Tasby, in the seventh, his 12th, gave the Orioles two of their three runs. The other came in the sixth on back-to-back doubles by Walt Dropo and Gus Triandos.

Athletics Break Losing Streak

BOSTON (UPI) — Rookie Lou Klimchock, playing his second major league game, touched off a six - run rally in the sixth inning Friday night that enabled the Kansas City Athletics to snap a 13-game losing streak and beat the Boston Red Sox 8-6.

Coming to bat with the bases loaded on three singles, the 19-year-old second baseman smashed a two-run double to right field, missing a homer by inches, to send the A's ahead 3-2. Klimchock had singled in the fourth.

Senators Beat Cleveland, 5-4

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The one-two punch of Pedro Ramos and Julio Becquer proved too much for the Cleveland Indians who blew another golden chance to gain on the first-place White Sox by losing to the Washington Senators, 5-4, Friday night.

Ramos went all the way to gain his 13th victory of the year and helped his own cause by belting his first homer of the season and second of h.s major league career.

His Cuban countryman, Becquer, pinch-hitter extraordinary, was called in to bat for rookie John Schaive in the eighth with John Romonosky on second.

Mike Garcia, who took over the Cleveland pitching in the eighth, opened the inning by walking Roy Sievers. Romonosky ran for Sievers and was sacrificed to second. When the left - handed Becquer came in to bat for Shaive, Cleveland Manager Joe Gordon replaced Garcia with southpaw Jack Harshman. But Becquer threw percentages out of the window by lining the first pitch to center for a single scoring Romonosky with the tie-breaker.

Milwaukee Tops Cincinnati, 10-2

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — The Milwaukee Braves scored early and often Friday night and didn't need a late inning hero to beat the Cincinnati Reds 10-2 for their sixth victory.

The defending champion Braves scored seven times in the first two innings, knocking out starter Jay Hook in the first inning with a five-run outburst. They got their last three in the eighth inning on Lee Maye's second homer of the season. Milwaukee pitcher Joey Jay, shaking off a bad first inning, allowed the Reds only four hits in winning his fifth game against 10 setbacks.

This contrasted with the last two Milwaukee victories in which the Braves had to come from behind on late inning heroics by Bobby Avila, with a grand slam homer in the ninth, and Hank Aaron, with a three-run double in the seventh.

The Reds got only three hits off Jay in the last eight innings, one of them Vada Pinson's 19th home run in the fifth inning.

Keep Close Eye Now On Your Hunting Dog

Keep on the alert for dog-nappers, warns the Gaines Dog Research Center, New York. From now on into the fall any dog resembling a hound or bird dog is a likely prospect for the "dog snatchers" who want a hunting dog for themselves or to peddle.

Organized rings of dog thieves get hold of hunting dogs and take them over state lines, out of local territories to distant points where they are sold to unscrupulous dealers who don't ask questions.

You can help strangle this nefarious practice by keeping your dog under your eye or, if you are in the market for a hunting dog, get the animal from a reliable and reputable seller. You may have to pay a higher price for your hunting dog, but when you purchase him from an honest kennel you are getting a good dog and are helping to wipe out an illegitimate trade. When you do get a hunting dog, tattoo him in the ear and on the inner side of the thigh. Keep a record of the number and use it in advertising the loss of the dog, should he be stolen or lost.

Scoring three touchdowns in the final period, Moorefield High School's Yellowjackets came from behind to defeat Southern High School in the opening game of the football season yesterday afternoon at Oakland. The score was 25-7.

The Highlanders, making their first start under the new coach Earl Adolphson, held a 7-6 lead going into the final period when the West Virginians, coached by George Hott, pulled the game out of the fire with a 19-point rally.

Carroll Turner picked up a fumble and galloped 18 yards for the first Moorefield touchdown in the final period. After Ralph Keller passed 32 yards to Bill Sherman on the Southern four, Keller ran off tackle for the score and Sherman plunged the point. Later in the final stanza, Bill Sherman returned a punt from Southern's 45 to 23 and after the Jackets had reeled off a first down on the 11, Sherman skirted right end from the four for the final 6-pointer. His placement kick was blocked.

Moorefield's initial touchdown of the game came in the second period when Forrest Bar snared a fumble on the Southern 35 and ran 65 yards to paydirt. Sherman's kick for the point was low.

Southern took the lead in the final period when Bill Duling went around right end for 55 yards and a touchdown and Terry Colaw ran the extra point. The lineups:

Ortega Upset By Fernandez

Cuban Is Victor At Miami Beach

MIAMI BEACH (UPI)—Cuba's undefeated Florentino Fernandez scored an upset unanimous decision over seasoned Gaspar Ortega of Mexico, whom he floored twice in a nationally-televised 10-rounder Friday night.

Ortega, weighing 145¾ pounds, went to his knees for a mandatory eight-count in the first round and again fell before Fernandez' blows in the fourth round for a nine-count.

Even without the knockdowns, Fernandez, fighting in only his 21st pro bout, most likely would have won on his superior punching.

Referee Cy Gottfried scored the bout 97-90 for Fernandez, while judge Gus Jacobson marked it 97-91 and judge Fred Aaronson scored it 96-9[illegible] for the winner. The United Press International scorecard also favored the Cuban, 97-93.

Coach Ed Schwarz's Allegany High School Campers celebrated the opening of the football season last night by beating the Beall High School Mountaineers under the arcs in the Mountain City by the score of 20-0.

Gaffney tallied early in the second period on a ten-yard run and later in the same period he sprinted 25 yards for the second six-pointer.

A 35-yard gallop by Shook produced the final touchdown in the last period.

Charles Aronholt kicked both extra points for the Campers.

Beall was limited to two first downs, both coming in the final half while Allegany rolled up a total of 12.

Walker Beats Chicago, 1-0

Birds Win Second Game In 16th Frame

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Rookie Jerry Walker yielded only six hits in pitching the Baltimore Orioles to a 16-inning 1-0 victory over the Chicago White Sox Friday night after Jack Fisher shut out the league leaders, 3-0, with a three-hitter in the opener of a twi-night double-header.

Brooks Robinson broke up the marathon nightcap when he drove in the only run of the game with a two-out line single off Gerry Staley, who relieved Chicago starter Barry Latman in the 10th.

The two losses cut the White Sox' lead to four games over the second-place Indians, who lost a chance to gain even more ground by dropping a 5-4 decision to the Senators.

Walker (11-8) faced only 21 batters over the last seven innings of the second game. It was the sixth extra-inning game between these two clubs this year. In fact, it was a replay of an 18-inning 1-1 tie here Aug. 6.

Dodgers Whip Buccos' Face

Elroy's Win Streak Is Shattered, 5-4

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The Los Angeles Dodgers came from behind in the bottom of the ninth inning Friday night to defeat the Pittsburgh Pirates and hand Elroy Face his first loss of the season, 5-4, in the first game of a twi-night double-header.

Trailing 4-3, shortstop Maury Wills led off the ninth with a single, advanced on a sacrifice and scored the tieing run on Jim Gilliam's triple. Charlie Neal drove in Gilliam by singling in the winning run.

For Face, it was his first defeat after 17 victories this season, in addition to being undefeated since May, 1958.

Roman Mejias had put the Pirates ahead, 4-2, in the top of the eighth when he homered with Dick Stuart on first base. Wally Moon, however, hit his second homer of the game in the bottom of the eighth to close the gap to 4-3 and put the Dodgers within striking distance in the final frame. Stuart also had homered in the sixth.

Neither starting pitcher was on hand for the final 2 1-3 innings.

Dodger reliefer Chuck Churn, who took the place of Sandy Koufax, was the winner to make his season's mark 2-0, with Face the loser in backing up Pirate starter Bob Friend.

County, City Officials Protest Transfer Of Race Meeting

Gov. Tawes To Receive Complaint

Fair Association Given Authority To Transfer Meet

The Allegany County Board of Commissioners and the Mayor and City Council of Cumberland last night joined forces in protesting the action of the State Racing Commission in suddenly moving the Cumberland 12-day horse race meeting to Hagerstown starting Monday.

Both protests will be directed to Governor J. Millard Tawes.

Cumberland originally was scheduled for the meet starting September 14 and ending September 26. Hagerstown was booked for the following 12 days, from September 28 through October 10. As a result of the last minute switch Hagerstown will have 24 days of racing.

In directing their protest to Governor Tawes, the city and county officials pointed to the economic effect to the area of the abrupt switch. It will mean a considerable financial loss to many local business firms including the breweries, bakeries, hotels, motels and restaurants.

The State Racing Commission said that the switch to Hagerstown, located within a 25-mile radius of Charles Town, W.Va., where two tracks now operate, was necessary because of the inability to obtain enough horses for the meet here.

Gets Transfer Authority

Harry J. Barton, general manager of the Cumberland Fair Association, yesterday received a telegram signed by R. Bruce Livie, chairman of the Maryland Racing Commission, which the commission grants the local association authority to transfer its meets to another track, preferably Hagerstown, where there is no scarcity of horses.

The telegram was worded as follows:

"The Racing Commission has been very much concerned during the past several days by reports from track officials of the scarcity of horses in the Cumberland area, due primarily to the competition of the West Virginia tracks.

"This presents a serious threat to the successful operation of your approaching meet. A special meeting of the commission was held today and the entire situation was thoroughly discussed. The commission was informed at the meeting that it has been definitely determined that the number of horses available to your association for the approaching meet is insufficient to support a full program of eight races of six or more entries.

"The commission is anxious that Cumberland hold its meeting and therefore suggests that it be conducted at another track of your selection. It had been suggested that Hagerstown might be available where there is no scarcity of horses.

"In order that you may facilitate this transfer immediately, the commission, by formal resolution, granted you the authority to transfer your meeting to another track. This authority is extended under section 15, sub section B, of Article 78 B, Maryland Racing Laws."

Advised Too Late

General Manager Barton yesterday said that if J. Fred Colwill had advised him ten days earlier that there would be a shortage of horses for the Cumberland meeting he would have had stables van in thoroughbreds from Ohio tracks as he did in 1955. Four years ago there was a scarcity of horses prior to the opening of the Fairgo session and Barton immediately contacted Ohio tracks. Over 200 thoroughbreds were sent here and the meet went on.

"We were criticized by a few for the type of horses that were vanned here but we felt if these horses were good enough for people in Cleveland and other Ohio communities they were satisfactory for us at Cumberland," Barton declared.

Mr. Barton stated that in 1955 most of the horses came from Randall and Ascot Park and others were sent from Wheeling, W. Va.

"Colwill led us to believe there would be plenty of horses available for the race meeting here," Barton said. "Then at 3 p. m. on Thursday he did an about face and advised us there would not be enough horses at Fairgo to conduct a 12-day meeting."

Chicago Cubs Beat Cards On Wild Pitch, 2-1

Bob Anderson Posts 12th Win Of Season

CHICAGO (UPI) — Bob Anderson yielded only three hits Friday and Ernie Banks scored the winning run on a wild pitch to give the Chicago Cubs a 2-1 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

Anderson, a 23-year-old right hander, held the Cardinals hitless over the first 6 2-3 innings when rookie Gene Oliver broke his spell with an infield single.

In notching his 12th victory, against 10 losses, Anderson struck out five and walked two.

The Cubs scored the winning run in the ninth when reliever Marshall Bridges uncorked a wild pitch to Art Schult, allowing Banks to race home from third.

Banks led off the inning with a single and advanced to third on a single by Walt Moryn. Both hits came off Bob Blaylock who was charged with the defeat.

It was the fourth loss in a row for the Cardinals and dropped them four games behind the sixth place Cubs.

Maxwell Belts Pair As Tigers Lose, 9-3

NEW YORK (UPI) — Jim Coates pitched the first complete game of his major league career and Bobby Richardson drove in four runs Friday in leading the New York Yankees to a 9-3 victory over the Detroit Tigers.

The triumph gave the Yankees a game and one-half lead in their battle for third place with the Tigers.

Charley Maxwell accounted for two of the Detroit runs with his 29th and 30th homers, establishing a new club record for a left-handed hitter. Maxwell broke his own team record of 28. In addition, he became the first Detroit batter to hit that many homers since Hank Greenberg walloped 34 in 1946.

The two homers by Maxwell boosted the Tigers' team total for the season to 152, an all-time club record.

Coates scattered 10 hits as he registered his fifth victory and third in succession.

The Yankees scored in clusters of two runs four times, with Richardson having a hand in each of the scoring innings. The little second baseman hit three singles and his second major league home run.

Paul Foytack, in absorbing his 13th defeat, was hammered for seven hits and six runs in four innings. Richardson's leadoff single in the opening inning touched off the Yankees' first two-run outburst and his homer with a mate aboard in the fourth accounted for two more. He singled home runs in the sixth and seventh innings.

Maple Inn Wins, 3-2

Evens Series With Homewood Tavern

Scoring two runs in the bottom of the 7th inning on a passed ball and a steal of home, Maple Inn defeated the Homewood Tavern Old Germans yesterday at Wellersburg by the score of 3-2 and extended the final playoff series in the County Softball League to the limit of five games.

Maple Inn's victory evened up the series at two-all. The fifth and deciding game will be staged next week.

Homewood held a 2-1 lead in the final frame when Robeson crossed the plate with the tying run on a passed ball and "Buddy" Meade pilfered home with the deciding tally.

Three of the losers' six hits were extra base blows — a triple by Don Perdew and doubles by Frank Scarpelli and Jack Shaffer.

Maple Inn collected five singles.

Lennie Crosten pitched for Maple Inn until the final frame. Carl Shaffer who came on in the 7th got credit for the win. Junior Brelsford was the loser. Score:

FOREST HILLS, (UPI) — The 1959 U. S. tennis championships rate as just about the dullest in the 79-year history of the event. . . the villian is Jack Kramer but if it weren't Kramer it would be some other pro promoter who "stole" the amateur stars off the top of the deck and made them professionals.

Even Kramer sees the danger signs. . ."I'll never again take out two big amateur players (like Mal Anderson and Ashley Cooper of Australia this year) in any one season," says Jack. . ."I owe that much to the amateur game."

But the damage is done. . .the top "old" players already are pros and the promising youngsters still aren't ready for greatness.

Have Service Troubles

Barry MacKay of Dayton, Ohio, and Earl (Butch) Buchholz of St. Louis only seeded Americans in the tournament, both have troubles with their service, the difficulties being exactly opposite . . .MacKay refuses to put more spin on his serve to gain control at the expense of speed. . .Butch puts so much spin on his he can't generate the necessary speed to hit the ball past a first class player.

Only a few big-timers wear coverings on the court to shade their eyes from the sun. . .Aussie Rod Laver wears a floppy white hat in the "sun court," Karol Fageros of Miami wears a white baseball-style cap and teen-ager Nancy Richey of San Agelo, Tex., wears the type of sunshade popularized in the late 1920's by Helen Willis Moody. . .that's about it.

Grass courts are so chopped up after the Davis Cup and early sessions of the U. S. title chase that smart coaches have ordered their players to hit every ball they can on the fly so it won't have a chance to hit the court and take a crazy bounce. . .and in the clutch, some of the really smart players whack a wicked chop shot with underspin right into the worst divot patches, hoping the ball won't bounce at all.

Halted By Rain

Officials have a direct wire to New York Weather Bureau to keep tabs on the nearest rain clouds. . . at 3:20 p.m. Wednesday the weatherman said there isn't any rain within miles. . .five minutes later the matches were halted for an hour by a downpour.

Lots of left-handers this year. . . Neale Fraser and Rod Laver of Australia, Bernard Bartzen of San Angelo, Tex., Ann Haydon of England, Justina Bricka of St. Louis, among them.

Men players use racquets averaging 14½ ounces in weight. . . Alex Olmedo of Peru goes for 14 ⅞ ounces, considered heavy. . . girls range from 14 ounces down. Old timers recall Bill Tilden always carried seven racquets onto the court and it wasn't just for effect, either. . .each was different, either in the tightness of the stringing or in distribution of weight. . .he used to keep changing racquets during warm-up periods with an opponent, "tuning himself in" with the proper equipment for the afternoon.

Such science, alas, is lost on today's big serve and smash brigade.

Ron Holmberg, Olmedo, Fraser, Bartzen Score

Reach Semi-Finals In National Tennis

By WILL GRIMSLEY
Associated Press Sporss Writer

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP)—A pair of giant-killers, Bernard (Tut) Bartzen of Dallas and Ron Holmberg of Brooklyn, smashed into the semifinals of the National Tennis Championships Friday along with the top-seeded favorites, Peruvian Alex Olmedo and Australia's Neale Fraser.

Bartzen, 31, a relentless little retriever who is the country's best on clay, took the sting out of Barry MacKay's power-laden service and upset the third-seeded Davis Cup ace from Dayton, Ohio, 6-3, 6-4, 6-4. Holmberg, a hard-hitting 21-year-old college senior, won over fourth-seeded Rod Laver of Australia 6-8, 7-5, 6-0, 6-3.

These surprise reverses spoiled a renewal of the eecent Davis Cup challenge round as the two star members of that cast, Olmedo and Fraeer, won easily.

Olmedo, spurred to fresh heights by the presence of his father from far-off Arequipa, Peru, played spectacularly in erasing Roy Emerson of the Australian Davis Cup team, 6-4, 3-6, 6-2, 6-3.

Fraser, individual hero of Australia's recovery of the Davis Cup, played at top form in ousting the formidable Luis Ayala of Chile, who had beaten him twice previously onclay, 6-3, 6-4, 6-3.

In Saturday's semifinals Olmedo will play Holmberg and Fraser will take on Bartzen in a battle of lefthanders.

The women's division saw the advance of thee outsiders — Wimbledon champion Maria Bueno of Brazil, Britain's Christine Truman and Ann Haydon — and a lone American hope, Darlene Hard of Montebello, Calif.

HE'S NOT-SO-LITTLE JOE, NOW—Joe DiMaggio, Jr., son of the former Yankee great, is becoming quite a big boy now. The youngster, soon to be 18, is shown with his mother, actress Dorothy Arnold, divorced wife of Joe, Sr., as they enjoyed a supper club show in Las Vegas, Nev.

Johnson To Take Pastrano's Place

BALTIMORE, Md. (UPI) — Heavyweight contender Alonzo Johnson replaced injured Willie Pastrano Friday as an opponent for Tony Anthony in next Friday night's television fight at the Baltimore Coliseum.

Pastrano of Miami Beach, Fla., withdrew because of a torn cartilege in his left knee, suffered in training. Dr. Stanley Weinkle of Miami Beach advised the withdrawal.

Johnson, of Braddock, Pa., is ranked 10th among heavyweight contenders. Anthony of New York, is ranked fifth among light heavyweight contenders.

Shoot 3-Under-Par 67s In Dallas Open

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF

DALLAS (AP)—Pudy Bob Rosburg, who complains even when he's ahead, and Bo Wininger, who never beefs about anything, shot 3-under-par 67's Friday to tie for the first round lead in the $25,000 Dallas Open.

Rosburg, the bespectacled national PGA king from Palo Alto, Calif., said he thought the 6,744-yard Oak Cliff Country Club course had some unfair holes and that he was able to shoot so well because his putter was accurate as usual.

Wininger, a graying young man from Odessa, Tex., was continuing the hot golf he showed Thursday in leading a pro-amateur. Wininger had a 63 to set a competitive course record then.

It was a day for the favorites to falter, especially Sam Snead, the two-time defending champion. The old slammer from White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., had a 74 when his putting was erratic and he took a double bogey 6 on 18 by hitting a tree and missing his putt.

Ben Hogan, the other fabulous name in the field, also had a 74 and he took double-bogeyed 18 when he drove into a ditch. The little man from Fort Worth did get an eagle 3 on 14.

Enos Slaughter Sold To Milwaukee Braves

Yankees "Old Pro" Goes To Braves In Straight Cash Deal

NEW YORK (UPI) — Enos (Country) Slaughter, the hustling 43-year-old "old pro" of 22 major league seasons, was sold to the pennant-contending Milwaukee Braves Friday by the New York Yankees.

The Yankees announced it was a straight cash deal in which the seven other American League clubs and the five clubs below the Braves in the National League standings waived on him.

Slaughter, who was notified of his transfer immediately after Friday's game with the Detroit Tigers, thus returns to the National League, where he originally broke into the majors with the St. Louis Cardinals in 1938.

The left-handed hitting veteran appeared in 74 games with the Yankees this season, chiefly as a pinch-hitter. He had 17 hits in 99 at-bats for a .172 average.

Lifetime Mark .299

For 22 seasons in the majors, Slaughter has a lifetime batting average of .299.

Slaughter, obviously shaken at the news, indicated he would report to the Braves as soon as possible. But he would not be eligible to play in the World Series should Milwaukee win the National League pennant.

Casey Stengel broke the news to Slaughter personally in his private office at Yankee Stadium. "I want to thank you for all you've done and wish you the best of luck with Milwaukee," Stengel said.

Stengel had explained previously that he always had a "soft spot" in his heart for Slaughter. One of the reasons might have been the fact that Slaughter wrote Stengel a letter after he first was traded away from the Yankees and thanked Casey for the opportunity he gave him with the Yankees.

Hit .304 Last Year

Slaughter enjoyed his best year in the majors with the Cards in 1949 when he batted .336. He hit .304 in 77 games with the Yankees last season. He has appeared in five World Series, two with the Cards and three with the Yankees.

Mt. Savage, Centerville Scene Of Pen-Mar Tilts

Barrelville Seeks 17 In Row; Barton Visits Moorefield

Action in the Pen-Mar Baseball League playoffs will resume Sunday in games at Mt. Savage and Centerville while Moorefield, W. Va., will be the scene of the opening games of a home-and-home series between the pennant winners of the Mountain State League and the Twilight League of Allegany County.

Barrelville's Old Exports will be striving to extend their winning streak to 17 games when they do battle with Mt. Savage on the latter's field in the second game of their best-of-three semi-final series.

Unbeaten Since June 14

Manager Raymond "Buck" Fiorita's club, unbeaten since June 14, took the first game of the series last Sunday by the score of 2-1 with Bobby Raines decisioning Jack Lowery in a mound duel. Raines, incidentally, has reeled off 12 consecutive wins and owns a season record of 13-1. Barrelville has beaten Mt. Savage five consecutive times this season, thrice via the shutout route. A victory for Barrelville tomorrow would put the Old Exports in the finals while a Mt. Savage win would extend the series to three games.

Hyndman's Merchants also could reach the finals if they sweep the Centerville series tomorrow. These teams engaged in a 1-0 thriller last Sunday with "Abe" See getting the decision over Glenn Deremer. The Reds hope to turn the tables at home tomorrow and extend the series the limit. Hyndman has beaten Centerville four times in five outings this season.

Both Pen-Mar League games will get under way at 2 p.m., EDT.

Barton at Moorefield

At Moorefield, the Barton Braves, who bagged their third straight pennant in the Twilight League, tackle the Moorefield All-Stars at 2 p.m., EST., on Sunday. Barton will be the scene of the second game of this home-and-home set on Sunday, September 20, at 2 p.m., EDT.

Moorefield took the Mountain State pennant with a 12-0 record while Barton won the regular season championship in the Twilight League with 25 wins and three losses.

Mahlon Kline's Conestoga and the Windfield Farm's Victoria Park. Bally Ache is the top money winning 2 year old with $190,961 in earnings.

WVU Varsity Wins Practice Game, 12-0

JACKSON'S MILL, W. Va. (UPI) — Halfback John Marra of Shinnston and fullback Tom Huston of Arlington, Va. scored touchdowns Friday to give the West Virginia varsity a 12-0 win over the Mountaineers second team in a practice scrimmage.

It was revenge for the varsity which dropped a 6-0 scrimmage session to the subs Thursday.

Marra, who was the running star of the 45-minute game-like affair, scored the first touchdown on a 40-yard run. Huston slashed off tackle for 11 yards and the second score.

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN: I've been a working mother for three years and I'm sick and tired of hearing people say how terrible it is to work and leave a young child at home. I've quit my job three times just to please my husband, but I almost went nuts and had to go back to save my sanity.

I feel better when I get up, get dressed and go to an office in the morning. I have to pay a housekeeper so I don't come out very far ahead financially, as my husband so often points out. But I'm not working for the money. It's a matter of doing what I enjoy.

Would I be better off to become a household drudge and a nervous wreck from being penned up with a 4-year-old all day? Your 20th Century opinion would be appreciated.

WORKING MOTHER

DEAR WORKING: My 20th Century opinion is that mothers of pre-school children should be at home unless it is essential that they work for financial reasons. Young children need a mother's presence. Just knowing she's there is important.

Your troubles are of a different nature, however. You are running away from home because you don't want to be a housewife and a mother. Something's wrong with your relationship with your husband and your child. I hope you'll check with a psychiatrist and try to get to the heart of the problem. Running away will solve nothing.

DEAR ANN: I plan to be married in October. My mother and dad have been divorced since I was 6 and I have no affection or respect for my father.

I definitely do not want my father to give me away at my wedding. Mother agrees this would be a mockery. She does feel, however, that I should ask one of my uncles.

I want to ask a dear friend of the family who has been wonderful to me through the years.

Please tell me if it would be proper to ask this family friend. Also would it be right to invite my father, but only as a guest?

GEORGIA

DEAR GEORGIA: It would be perfectly proper (and a high compliment) to ask the family friend. This would also eliminate the sticky problem of WHICH uncle to select. By all means, invite your father — as a guest.

DEAR ANN: The letter in your column from the widow who was married late in life to an elderly widower made me stop and think about something rather somber but important.

The woman who wrote wanted to know if her husband should be buried in the family plot, beside the woman to whom he'd been married for 45 years, or should he be buried next to her — his present wife.

My problem is even thornier. I feel my husband should be buried beside his first wife and I should be buried beside my first husband. But what name should I be buried under? How should the headstone read?

MRS. Z.

DEAR MRS. Z.: Your headstone should read Mary Brown (first husband's name) White (second husband's name).

CONFIDENTIAL TO NEEDING AN ANSWER: If you and "The Rat" have children you must go under the name of Mrs. for the sake of the children.

DRAFT CALL 168

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—West Virginia's draft call for October—all to be taken into the Army—is 168, the adjutant general's office said Thursday. This is 30 higher than September.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD — The new 20th Century-Fox motion picture, "The Swift Season," starring Lee Remick, is made up of two novels—the first time this has ever happened. One is "Mud On The Stars," by William Bradford Huie, and the other is "Dunbar's Cove," by Borden Deal. Each is concerned with the same subject, the South's traditional sentiment, and the North's relentless progress.

Lee, who has been at the Venice Film Festival, goes right to work on wardrobe and script. The movie starts next month. She plays a southern girl in love with a northern engineer. Producer-Director Elia Kazan has been in Tennessee scouting locations. Yes, it will be made in the deep South.

There's a Foooooooord in Debbie Reynolds' future—a Ford TV spectacular, that is, as soon as she finishes her next three pictures, "The Gazebo," "Rat Race" and "The Pleasure of His Company."

This will be Debbie's first excursion into TV and she's playing it very safe. She'll have Dan Dailey and Mickey Rooney along with her in this NBC production—and you can't ask for better support than that. Not ask and get it, that is.

Incidentally, needing the money like a hole in the head, Debbie is about to sponsor a line of clothes, accessories and cosmetics, put out under her own name and aimed at the teen-age market.

I never knew it to fail. What Fred Astaire does, Gene Kelly does. So since Fred Astaire went serious and so dramatic for Stanley Kramer in "On the Beach" that he is being discussed in Academy Award terms, now Gene Kelly is going serious for Stanley Kramer also.

Gene gets in Saturday to huddle with Kramer regarding his co-starring role with Spencer Tracy and Fredric March in "Inherit The Wind." He'll portray the key role of the reporter in this courtroom classic. In fact, he will closely impersonate H. L. Mencken who was the real reporter involved with the actual Scopes case on which "Inherit The Wind" is based.

Tennessee Williams, whom I have always liked personally, even though I haven't always approved of his plays, has been in town for the last few days. He leaves Saturday for the Orient, his first trip there. I thought, of course, that he was here to talk with the Hal Wallis Co. about "Summer and Smoke," but Tennessee said he doesn't expect to see them. He's working on four plays.

"All of them in the Deep South?" I asked.

"Not at all," he said. "One is laid in Acapulco, another in Italy, and the third has a Texas locale."

"What about the fourth?" I asked. "That one laid in outer space?"

Tennessee laughed, "I don't know for sure about the fourth, but it's something entirely different I'm working on."

I met six foot, blond, handsome Peter Ronson who is in "Journey to the Center of the Earth" at a cocktail party. He was born in Iceland and looks Scandinavian.

Charlie Brackett who introduced us said, "Have you heard how Peter happened to be in my picture? A messenger boy at the studio told me, 'I know a USC student who would be just right for "Journey to the Center of the Earth", and he can act, too.' We had been looking for just such an actor, so Peter was brought in, and he's going to be good."

Ronson has the palest blue eyes and the blondest hair, and the teenagers, no doubt, will put their stamp of approval on him.

The No. 1 singer of England, Frankie Vaughn, is a very wise young man. He has had an offer to make a motion picture in Hollywood, but he says he's going to take it slow and get acquainted with American audiences. He has a wife and two children. Mrs. Vaughn will join him at the Dunes Hotel in Las Vegas where he opens Saturday night.

Fabian was at the party which Fernando Lamas and Arlene Dahl hosted for Vaughn. Poor Arlene had to work, and at the time I left, still hadn't shown up. I talked to 18-year-old Diane McBain, a real beauty, who was with Richard Burton and some other friends from Warner Bros. studio. Diane and Burton are in "Ice Palace," and he told me he had a scene with seven wolves, in Alaska.

"Although they were babies I'll admit I was nervous. They untied my shoe laces and played around my feet, and I was very glad when the scene was over," said Richard.

Jury To Probe Bus Tragedy

Three Children Still Critical; Another Released From Hospital

The Garrett County grand jury, which convenes on Monday, will have a chance to decide whether any criminal negligence was involved in the collision of a B&O passenger train and a school bus which killed seven children and hospitalized 11.

State's Attorney Dwight Stover said last night he would give the jury all the details on Tuesday.

The bus, carrying 26 pupils bound for elementary and high schools at Oakland, was hit by the B&O's Diplomat, bound from St. Louis to Baltimore on Thursday morning.

Maryland's Court of Appeals—the state's highest court—has said that wilful intent is necessary to prove manslaughter.

At least three of the hospitalized students remain on the critical list, although the others are showing improvement.

Girl Released

Delores Shaffer, 11-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin F. Shaffer Sr., of Deer Park, one of the pupils admitted to Garrett County Memorial Hospital in Oakland, was released from the hospital yesterday.

At least three of the pupils, two brothers and a sister, remain in "critical" condition. The other seven students are improving, attaches at various hospitals said.

In critical condition at Sacred Heart Hospital here are Olen Hinkle, 13, and James Hinkle, 12, who are "resting well." Olen suffered fractures of both legs, broken face bone, deep lacerations of the scalp, legs and chest. His brother sustained a possible fractured skull, broken nose, and bad lacerations of the face, nose and left ankle.

Their sister, Patricia Ann Hinkle, who sustained a right leg injury and a nerve injury, is in critical condition at the Oakland Hospital. She regained consciousness yesterday, authorities said. They are children of Mr. and Mrs. Roy O. Hinkle Sr., of Loch Lynn.

Others Reported "Good"

Marjorie Ann Byers of Deer Park, who was taken to St. Mary's Hospital in Clarksburg, W. Va., was reported doing well and in good condition with a possible ruptured spleen, fractured left leg and fractured rib.

In "good" condition at Preston Memorial Hospital, Kingwood, W. Va., is Frances Dixon, 14, of Boiling Spring, who sustained back and neck injuries.

Others in the Oakland hospital include:

Sandra Patton, 13, who was unconscious when admitted, but is responding to her name and is slightly improved; Mary Lee, 16, "good;" Mary Ellen Itnyre, mild concussion and multiple contusions of face with abrasions, condition "good."

Dianna Sutton, 12, fractured right wrist, dislocated hip, abrasion of arms and legs, contusion of left hip, condition, "good"; Nancy Jane Ringer, 10, minor injuries, condition, "good," and expected to be released in a day or so.

Probe Continues

Authorities are continuing an investigation into the fatal accident which stunned residents of Garrett County.

Heading the investigation for the State Police is Capt. C. B. Dillinger, commander of Troop B at Frederick, who is being assisted by Lt. William O'Hara, commander of the LaVale Barracks, and Cpl. Sam Conrad, Tfc. Robert Henline, and Tfc. Donald Tucker.

Yesterday the police were taking statements from the pupils with whom they were able to talk. Mr. Stover said the investigation is "quite a job." He is working along with State Police and the sheriff's office at Oakland.

State Police Captain Charles Magaha returned to Pikesville yesterday after supervising the state's initial investigation. Gov. J. Millard Tawes is awaiting the results of the full scale probe he ordered of the state agencies including the Department of Motor Vehicles and the State Roads Commission, Garrett County authorities as well as a probe by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The governor urged that "responsibility be determined precisely" to avoid the recurrence of the worst catastrophe that ever befell Oakland.

Watchmen Requested

Meanwhile, Willard L. Hawkins, superintendent of public schools in Garrett County, said the Board of Education will demand the B&O place watchmen on duty at the Loch Lynn crossing and the Weber crossing on Route 219 two miles south of Oakland during the times they are being used by school buses.

A statement taken from Otto Droege, 65, of 214 Park Street, engineer of the locomotive, indicated that the speed tape on the diesel engine registered 20 miles an hour when the engine rammed the bus.

The tripper on the track that sets off the signal lights and bell is located 2,250 feet from the crossing, and at a speed of 50 miles an hour it takes only 30 seconds to travel the distance.

The tape revealed the children in the bus had 45 seconds, due to the slowing down by the emergency brake system, to get out of the bus.

Public Meeting Set Here By Legislators

Chamber To Fete Council Members

The Legislative Council of Maryland will be entertained by the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce when it comes here September 24 for its visit to Western Maryland.

The 25 members of the council, which screens legislation between sessions of the General Assembly, will arrive here September 24 on the B&O's Columbian.

They will be taken to the Cumberland Country Club for a meeting with officials of the Chamber and area legislators.

Members of the Allegany County Delegation and State Senator Charles M. See, who is in charge of arrangements for the Western Maryland visit, will be guests of the Chamber.

Invitations will be extended to the Allegany County Commissioners and the Mayor and Council and their attorneys, members of the Chamber's board of directors, and committee chairmen.

The Council will hold a public meeting on Friday, September 25, in the Council Chamber of City Hall, Senator See reported.

The meeting will be held from 9:45 to 11:30 a.m. and letters of invitation to attend went out yesterday to the Board of Allegany County Commissioners and the officials of all municipalities in Allegany County.

Final plans for the Legislative Council visit will be completed next week, Sen. See said.

Chamber Offers To Open Cabin For Students

The Cumberland Chamber of Commerce is offering to arrange visits to Washington's Cabin for school groups of the county.

The offer was made yesterday in a letter to Ralph R. Webster, superintendent of schools, from Robert C. Petersen, manager of the Chamber.

Mr. Petersen said the Chamber of Commerce kept a staff member at Washington's Cabin during the summer and that many children, as well as adults, took advantage of the opportunity to see the historic items there.

He said the Chamber does not plan to open the cabin on a regular schedule until next summer but that it will be glad to arrange to have it open to any school groups.

"Cumberland is extremely fortunate in having such an important historical attraction and we do not want our children to be deprived of the opportunity to see it," the Chamber said.

Records kept by the Chamber show that 725 persons including a number of tourists, visited the cabin on Wednesday afternoons from mid-June through September 2.

Due to lack of personnel, the City of Cumberland keeps the cabin open only two days a year but has always made arrangements to make it available to interested groups.

Woman Is Hurt In Headon Crash

A local woman was treated last night in Memorial Hospital for injuries suffered when two cars collided headon on Oldtown Road.

She is Mrs. Erma Jean Mawhinney, 26, wife of Alvin Guy Mawhinney, 608 North Mechanic Street, who was treated for cuts and bruises on both legs and a possible left elbow injury.

City police said the accident occurred about 8 p.m. when the brakes of a car driven by Rose Anna Sirbaugh, Jane Frazier Village, failed as she was driving east in the 500 block of Oldtown Road.

Officer Royce J. Clayton, who investigated with Officer Kenneth L. Henry and Detective Kenneth Morrissey, said the woman cut across the street to avoid traffic in her lane and collided headon with a car westbound driven by Mr. Mawhinney.

Both drivers and several children in each car escaped injury, police said.

Health Unit May Find Space Outside City

Officials Meet To Solve Dispute

Allegany County officials last night held out a prospect that the County Health Department might be moved to an undisclosed location outside the city limits.

That prospect was raised at a generally friendly meeting at the Court House of the Board of County Commissioners and the Mayor and City Council of Cumberland. This meeting was called in an effort to reach an understanding concerning the matter of rent for the County Health Department facilities in the city-owned Public Safety Building.

A few weeks ago, the Mayor and Council wrote the county commissioners that, effective October 1, a rental of $6,000 a year would be charged for the use of the second and third floors of the Public Safety Building. No rent has been charged.

The county commissioners in turn wrote back that the entire third floor of that building was occupied by the State Health Department laboratory, so that half of the rent should be paid by the state. The county also showed that it paid more for janitorial and window washing service at the building than the $3,000 rent for which it could be obligated.

Not Forcing

Last night, City Attorney William R. Carscaden stressed that the city was not forcing the county to vacate the Public Safety Building although the City Engineering Department could use the space. He did say that the city officials considered it urgent that the clinics now being held in the City Hall basement be moved elsewhere.

County Commissioner John J. Rowan suggested that the city was forcing the county to find facilities outside the city limits. The building which the county might lease outside the city could take care of the entire Health Department needs. There also would be adequate parking facilities there. The location was not divulged.

Mr. Rowan and Commissioner William A. Wilson said the building in question was not the old Hammond Street School building in Westernport which is no longer used. When Mr. Carscaden suggested the possibility of using the Carver School building, not now being utilized, the commissioners said that the County Board of Education still retains control over that structure for possible future use.

County Decision

The city attorney also pointed out that the city has no say in the matter if the county sees fit to provide space outside the city limits.

County Attorney Leslie J. Clark acted as chief spokesman for the commissioners. He raised the question as to whether the city actually needed the space now being used by the Health Department.

Four basic conclusions were reached at the meeting, which lasted about 45 minutes. The first is that there is no emergency requiring the Health Department to vacate the Public Safety Building. Second, the city does feel an urgent need to reclaim the City Hall basement space now used for clinics. Third, the city is willing to defer for several months the collection of rent for the Health Department facilities. Fourth, the question of a fair rental will be left up to real estate appraisers.

Messrs. Rowan, Wilson and Clark represented the county last night. Appearing in behalf of the city were Mayor J. Edwin Keech, Mrs. Lucile W. Roeder, finance commissioner; G. Ray Light, water commissioner, and Mr. Carscaden.

County Commissioner John T. Mason and Councilmen John J. Long and Philmore Fleming were absent.

Authorities Check Burglar Tools

An array of burglary tools found in an automobile after the arrest of three men charged with conspiring to attempt to break into the Montgomery Ward Store here recently is examined by local and county authorities. James S. Getty, state's attorney for Allegany County, is shown on the right examining a black book containing a detailed index of how to open any type of safe manufactured. City Police Officer Harold Gibson, center, who made the initial investigation which led to the men's arrest, and Donald Mason, left, assistant state's attorney, look on. Mr. Getty said the tools are the most complete set he has ever seen. Among them are electric drills, bolt clippers, vise, tape, hand saws, pliers, screwdrivers, various-size bits and drills, sanders, and a .38 and a .45 calibre pistol. Gibson has received a citation for his work.

Warrants Sent To Cincinnati To Hold Bartell

Extradition Hearing Set September 30

Two state warrants issued here against Nathan Bartell, 42, of Cincinnati, who was arrested recently in that city in connection with an attempted breaking and entering of a local store, yesterday were forwarded to the Cincinnati Police Department.

Trial Magistrate F. Allan Weatherholt issued the warrants to City Police Detective Lieutenant James E. Van and County Investigator Edwin R. Lilya.

The warrants, according to Van, charge Bartell with unlawfully attempting to break and enter the Montgomery Ward Store here with the intent to steal goods of the store and also of being "a rogue and vagabond" in violation of Section 490 of Article 27 of the Maryland Code.

Van forwarded the two warrants to Lt. Col. Henry Sandman, chief of detectives of the Cincinnati Police Department.

Meanwhile, State's Attorney James S. Getty has mailed papers of extradition to Governor Tawes in order that Bartell may face another charge here of possession of burglary tools.

An extradition hearing has been set for September 30 at 10 a. m. in the Cincinnati Superior Court. Assistant State's Attorney Donald Mason will represent the state's attorney's office here.

Also expected to attend the hearing are Lt. Van and Sheriff Paul C. Haberlein.

Three other men involved in the case were given a preliminary hearing here recently and were ordered held for the grand jury of the October term of Allegany County Circuit Court. Each was freed on $500 bond.

The defendants are Albert Samuel Wright, 42, and Charles Isaacs, 32, of Newport, Ky., and Andrew Joe Forkes, 51, of Phoenix, Ariz. City Police arrested the three men here on August 27 about 11 p. m.

Ohio authorities, who conferred with local and county authorities, this week, said that Wright had recently been convicted of possession of burglary tools, but had appealed the decision.

They said two courts of appeals had upheld the sentence in the case and that Wright was released on $60,000 bond pending another appeal hearing in Cincinnati on October 1.

City Sells 117 Water Meters

Cumberland residents are taking advantage of the biggest bargain in town—water meters.

The Water Department reported yesterday that its flat rate accounts have dropped from 803 to 639 since August 20, when plans for a new rate schedule were announced.

During the period, the department has been asked to install 117 meeters which will eliminate 164 flat rate accounts.

Ten meters, eliminating 20 flat accounts, were sold by the department Thursday, according to James Twigg, chief clerk.

Under the new city rate schedule, flat rate users must convert to meters by January 1, 1961 to conserve water supplies.

The rate ordinance boosts flat rates, which used to range from $7.02 to $11.35 a quarter depending on the number of outlets, to a minimum of $12 a quarter from September 1. To this is added a sewage treatment service fee of $9, boosting the minimum flat charge to $21 a quarter.

No change was made for metered customers within the city limits, who are allowed to use 2,000 cubic feet of water a quarter for $5.40 and are charged $4.05 for sewage service, making the total bill $8.98 a quarter, if paid within the discount period.

The total bill for metered customers who use the minimum amount of water is just 10 cents a day, almost a third the cost to minimum flat rate users.

Eighth Teacher Soon To Get Added Pension

Commissioners Take Action

An eighth Allegany County educator who retired July 1 is entitled to the $40 a month supplemental pension authorized by Senate Bill 58 and soon will be added to the list to receive the monthly checks from the county treasury.

Superintendent of Schools Ralph R. Webster sent a letter to Leslie J. Clark, attorney to the Board of County Commissioners, yesterday explaining that Miss Olive P. Simpson, 1206 Holland Street, former Allegany High School teacher, also is entitled to the $40 supplemental pension. Her application for the pension apparently had not been received at the same time as the other seven.

The other seven were mailed their first checks July 31. They include Miss Nellie F. Dowling, who was principal of Westernport Elementary School; Mrs. Jessie A. Smith, former Midland Elementary School teacher; Arthur W. Taylor, former Allegany High School teacher; Mrs. Dora Malcolm McLuckie, former Beall Elementary School teacher; Miss Florence Aldridge and Miss Agnes Aldridge, both former Mt. Savage Elementary School teachers, and Miss Grace Swanson, former special music teacher.

At yesterday's meeting, Mrs. Lula Hendrickson, South Woodlawn Avenue, LaVale, asked the commissioners if they could do something about trucks parked in front of her house. Commissioner John J. Rowan said that street is not in the county roads system and the county is powerless to do anything about it. He suggested that the first step should be for all property owners there to deed rights-of-way to the county.

A delegation from 21st Lane in the McCoole area appeared to ask for road repairs. Mr. Rowan told this group that this road work was not in the 1959 program but probably would be done in 1960.

The commissioners set the bond of Mrs. Joyce Zimmerly, Cresaptown, new Trial Magistartes Court clerk, at $1,000. She began her duties August 24.

Harrison C. Spiker was given permission by the commissioners to continue as a temporary orderly at the County Infirmary. Earl D. Grim, superintendent, had asked for a ruling. Mr. Spiker's temporary appointment was supposed to have ended September 9.

"A job well done," was expressed Thursday afternoon in the office of Police Chief B. Frank Gaffney when he presented a meritorious citation to Officer Harold Gibson, who made the initial investigation which led to the arrest of three men now charged with conspiring to break into the Montgomery Ward Store here on August 27.

Chief Gaffney said, "Commissioner Fleming and I take pride in commending you for your alertness and also the capable manner in which you handled the entire case.

"You no doubt prevented a major crime in this city from happening . . . .

"Without the initial discovery by you it would have been impossible to have the investigation handled properly and efficiently by the other officers who participated in the investigation."

20-Inch Gas Line Blows During Test

Crews Are Trying To Locate Break

A new section of 20-inch gas line being tested with air pressure blew up last night on the east side of Evitts Mountain, causing a loud rumbling noise which was heard in the Cumberland area.

No one was reported injured when the section of pipe blew up.

A spokesman for the Manufacturers Light and Heat Company pumping station at State Line (Ellerslie) said the air pressure had been cut off and crews were attempting to locate the section of damaged pipe.

Volunteer firemen from Bedford Road were called to Hazen Road when they were notified that a section of gas pipe had blown up. However there was no danger of fire, since no gas was involved.

The line which was being tested runs from the vicinity of the pumping station for a distance of 25 miles from Ellerslie east of Cumberland.

The line blew up about 9:30 p. m., according to the spokesman.

The Times-News switchboard was swamped with calls following the blast, and the loud rumbling noise was described by some as sounding like jet planes flying over the city.

A check with the municipal airport at Wiley Ford indicated it was believed that one or more planes was flying over the city at about that time.

The two trucks of the volunteer fire company were back at the fire hall by 10:30 p. m. and one of the volunteers said no fire resulted.

He said residents of the area where the pipe blew up were concerned and called the firemen, who also had heard the blast at the fire hall about three miles from the scene.

The Country Store is the theme for November. Such stores once met not only the physical needs of the surrounding community but also served as the natural hub of neighborhood gossip, community discussions and political debate.

Morse To Continue Delays

India, China Heads Ready To Negotiate

Nehru Says He Does Not Believe Dispute Will Lead To War

TOKYO (AP) — Talk of burying the hatchet swelled anew Friday in both Red China and India. Government leaders of each professed readiness to submit at least some elements of their border quarrel to negotiation.

In New Delhi, Prime Minister Nehru disclaimed any desire for allies and said he does not believe the dispute will lead to war, not even a small one. He said India would accept mediation or arbitration to dispose of some small territorial squabbles, but not "the large areas being claimed on Chinese maps."

Reiterates Claim

In Peiping, Premier Chou En-lai reiterated China's historical claim to thousands of square miles under the Indian flag, but said the two nations must try to settle their problems on the basis of "mutual sympathy, mutual understanding, fairness and reason." Reiterating a declaration he made in a letter to Nehru earlier this week, Chou said China is ready for peaceful talks to work out a partial or temporary agreement.

The display of sweetness and light, shifting emphasis from mutual charges of aggression, came just four days before Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev is due in Washington for a discussion of world affairs with President Eisenhower.

Don't Take Sides

The Soviets made clear in a statement issued by the Soviet news agency Tass Wednesday that they do not want their Asian friends to rock the boat. Without taking sides, the statement urged Red China and India to settle their row and warned the West not to try to exploit it.

Nehru told a New Delhi news conference he appreciated the Tass statement very much.

"Presumably this represents the Soviet government view. Considering everything, it is a very fair statement. It is also a very unusual statement for the Soviet government to sponsor," Nehru said.

Speculation arose in the Indian capital that the Soviet Union may take active hand in settling the dispute.

Maria Callas Sails To Greece

VENICE, Italy (AP) — Maria Meneghini Callas and Aristotle Onassis sailed for Greece Friday night on Onassis' big white yacht Christina, named for his wife.

Aboard the yacht in addition to the New York-born opera star and her multimillionaire host were Miss Callas' dwarf poodle, Toy; Onassis' sister, Artemis; his cousin, Cula; and a 43-man crew. Onassis' wife is in Paris.

The yacht's captain told port authorities they were sailing to Greece. They had flown here earlier in the day from Milan.

Their trip together aboard Onassis' airplane in the wake of annoucements that Miss Callas' 10-year-old marriage had gone on the rocks added fuel to reports of a new romance. The 35-year-old opera star and the Greek shipping operator, 55, have denied it. He has said "I love her like a sister."

Blonde Christina Onassis, 29, remained in Paris, reportedly talking things over with her parents. And Italian brick and building material manufacturer, Giovan Battista Meneghini, 62, was conferring with his lawyers about the terms of a separation from Miss Callas.

Four Occupants Die In Crash Of Small Plane

SEWANEE, Tenn. (AP)—A single engine plane crashed and burst into flames near the Sewanee Airport Friday night. Witnesses said the four occupants were killed.

Two bodies were reported removed from the wreckage but witnesses said the flames prevented the immediate recover of the other two. The victims were described as three men and a woman.

Police said a billfold taken from one body gave the name of Mark Thomas Walter of Middletown, Md.

Governors Try To Get Ike In Steel Dispute

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Governors Conference, acting under a "national crisis" resolution, launched a move Friday aimed at bringing President Eisenhower into the worsening nationwide steel strike.

The step was taken in the face of reports that the strike's effects, slowly pyramiding during the past two months of the work stoppage, are approaching crippling proportions for the nation's economy.

Steel inventories are running out. Many small firms are quietly halting production. And an Associated Press survey showed that layoffs in allied industries have reached an estimated 175,000. This figure is in addition to the half million idle United Steelworkers of America.

The immediate goal of the Governors Conference was a hoped-for meeting between the President and the governors of some of the states most seriously hit by the 59-day-old strike.

Negotiations between the steel industry and the Steelworkers continued meanwhile in New York but there was no evidence of progress toward a settlement of the dispute.

Earlier in the day, R. Conrad Cooper, chief industry negotiator, flatly rejected a suggestion by two U.S. senators that President Eisenhower set up a fact-finding committee in an effort to bring the strike to and end.

Cooper reiterated that industry wants open collective bargaining rather than federal intervention.

Mother, Six Children Die As Train Hits Automobile

WASECA, Minn (AP)—A farm mother and her six young children were killed Friday when a freight train slammed into their station wagon within sight of their classmates and school.

Bodies of the victims were strewn over a 100-foot section of the track in this south-central Minnesota community.

The tragedy stunned the students and faculty of Sacred Heart School.

All grades at the Catholic school prayed in their rooms, and the students later gathered in the church to mourn the James Zimmerman family.

Killed at the scene, where the Minneapolis & St. Louis Railway tracks intersect Highway 14, were Michael, 10, Connie, 8, Barbara, 7, James Jr., 5, and Janice, 2.

Mrs. Zimmerman, 39, a farm woman and her eldest child, Kathryn, 13, died a short time later at a local hospital.

The crash occurred shortly after 8 a.m. as Mrs. Zimmerman was driving the children to school.

"It only sounded like a small thud," said Dean Fleming, who heard the crash from his nearby store. "It sounded like somebody dropped something on the floor."

Sheriff Stan Bailey said the train's crew told him the freight was traveling 45 miles per hour, four miles under the train speed limit here. The right side of the car was torn off and the vehicle was hurled into a loading dock from where it careened another 50 feet before slamming into the rear of a sided boxcar.

Warning bells and flashing lights were operating when the crash came, Bailey said.

Dutch Royal Heiress Takes Manhattan

NEW YORK (AP) — A young Dutch princess, with a smile and a toss of her blonde curls, Friday recaptured for the moment the isle of Manhattan, which long ago was a part of her realm.

"We still feel a most particular affection for what was once Nieuw Amsterdam," Princess Beatrix of the Netherlands told Mayor Robert F. Wagner at a City Hall ceremony.

The 21-year-old heiress presumptive to the Dutch throne received a typical, colorful Manhattan welcome as she arrived here for the 350th anniversary of the Dutch exploration of the Hudson Valley. She is the eldest child of Queen Juliana and is in line to succeed her mother on the throne some day.

There was a noisy harbor welcome as Beatrix arrived aboard the spanking new Dutch liner Rotterdam, on its maiden voyage. There was a red carpet greeting at the Battery, then a ticker tape parade up Broadway. Finally, there was an official city reception at City Hall.

The pink-cheeked princess, took the fanfare with a fetching smile. She's spending 10 days in this country, retracing the steps of the first Dutch settlers in the new world. Also, she has a Washington visit scheduled with President Eisenhower.

Aboard ship during the Atlantic crossing, Beatrix appeared at times in blue jeans and bathing suit. But Friday she was every inch royalty in blue wool suit with white collar, close-fitting cornflower blue hat and blue pumps. Diamonds twinkled on her collar and wrist.

Fisher, Liz Return From Long Honeymoon

NEW YORK (UPI) — Eddie Fisher and Elizabeth Taylor returned from a four-month honeymoon in Europe Friday. It took them two hours to get their 59 pieces of luggage through customs at Idlewild Airport.

The couple paid $1,600 in duties, mostly for original Christian Dior dresses and other clothing.

They were accompanied by Miss Taylor's two children by British actor Michael Wilding and a daughter by the late producer Mike Todd. They also had two dogs with them.

Fisher and his wife went from the airport to a Manhattan Hotel, where they will remain four days before traveling to Las Vegas, Nev.

AF Sgt. Ends Capsule Test

KEY WEST, Fla., (UPI) — An Air Force sergeant who spent three days in a plastic "bubble" capsule floating on the ocean said Friday he was "a little stiff" but otherwise all right.

The Air Force meanwhile dropped another man into the ocean in a similar escape capsule in another 72-hour test of how a man fares in such a predicament. The tests are being made to develop a floating capsule in which airmen may bail out of supersonic planes over water and survive until they are picked up.

T. Sgt. Jimmy Graves, 31, of Harriman, Tenn., who finished his endurance test in the capsule Friday, said he emerged wanting only a "quiet corner and a good bed."

"After getting a good meal, plenty of water, a comfortable bed and a quiet corner I slept all night," he said. The stiffness he experienced was minor and "moving around is working it out," he said.

Graves was hospitalized for tests and observation after leaving the capsule.

M. Sgt. William C. Barbour, 33, of Baltimore, was lowered into the water at 4 p.m. to spend 72 hours in a similar capsule made by a different company.

Graves said the capsule rode the rough seas very well and that he opened the hatch part of the time to catch rain water.

Graves said when he was not fully occupied during most of the test, he had an intense desire to run.

UN Team Puts Damper On Laos Fighting

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP) — The impending arrival of a U.N. fact-finding team apparently has put a damper on fighting in Laos.

"Not a shot has been fired anywhere in Laos in the past 24 hours," Information Minister Sisouk Na Champassak told reporters Friday. "Maybe it's because the U.N. observers are arriving soon."

Earlier, Laotian military circles and foreign diplomats said invaders from Communist North Viet Nam began pulling back over the Laotian-North Vietnamese border when the United Nations began studying Laotian charges of Red aggression.

Although French and British diplomats here doubt the observers will find proof that North Vietnamese troops have fought on Laotian territory, they agree that Hanoi, capital of North Viet Nam, is directing and supplying the Communist Pathet Lao rebels in northern Laos.

U.S. officials are convinced North Vietnamese troops have been operating in northern Laos and some indicate Laos may be able to furnish at least partial proof of direct aggression.

U.S. military aid supplies continue to arrive in Vientiane, including three single-engine planes to be used for dropping food and ammunition to royal advance posts in threatened Sam Neua and Phong Saly provinces.

In Tokyo, the Japanese Socialist party filed a protest against the U.S. Embassy there for shipping military supplies to Laos, the newspaper Asahi reported. The paper said a similar protest was filed against the Japanese government on the ground Japan could be drawn into war if the United States uses bases in Japan to ship military supplies to Laos.

GI Actions In Iceland Protested

Officials Forced To Lie In Puddle By U.S. Sentry

WASHINGTON (AP) — Iceland protested to Washington Friday that an American sentry had forced two Icelandic officials at gunpoint to lie in a puddle, arms outstretched, for 10 minutes.

The State Department promptly expressed concern over this and another recent GI incident in Iceland. It promised fast action to prevent such incidents from happening again.

The affair seems on its way to friendly solution between the two governments.

Bristles Indignantly

Icelandic Ambassador Thor Thors, who was bristling indignantly as he carried the protest in to Foy Kohler, acting assistant secretary for European affairs, emerged an hour later saying they had had an amicable meeting.

Thors indicated that a relatively inactive Icelandic-U.S. defense council, aimed at curbing friction between the U.S. troops and Icelanders, would meet more frequently hereafter.

State Department press officer Francis W. Tully Jr. said an investigation was already under way before Thors' protest arrived. He said he did not know whether any punishment is being meted out to offending servicemen.

Iceland is host to 5,000 U.S. troops at the North Atlantic Treaty Organization base at Keflavik International Airport. U.S. strategists consider this an important link to the North Atlantic defense chain.

Relations Not Best

Relations with the civilian populace never have been the best since U.S. forces moved in eight years ago, and the puddle incident was said to have touched off a new wave of anti-American feeling.

Tully did not dispute the version of the incidents told by the Icelanders. The incidents took place last Saturday and Sunday. According to the Icelandic version:

1. Two officials of the Icelandic civil aviation agency were escorting two German civilian pilots to a hangar on the airfield in the dark. The Icelanders looked for U.S. guards. Not finding any, they proceeded.

After the group had gone 10 to 20 yards, a U.S. sentry appeared. He ordered the Icelandic officials to lie down in a puddle, arms outstretched and fingers spread apart. He kept them there for 10 minutes.

It is customary for a sentry to require suspected persons to lean against a wall, or to lie down, while they are searched or while the sentry waits for reinforcements.

According to this account by Thors, the Icelanders could not voice objection because the American sentry "said if they opened their mouths he would shoot them right away, would kill them."

2. Two U.S. enlisted men got into an argument with each other at an Icelandic hotel at the airport. This incident was said not to have involved any Icelanders and was not covered in Friday's protest.

Bandit Slain, Two Hurt In Market Holdup Melee

GLENDALE, Calif. (AP) — A market manager who saw a bandit shoot his pregnant wife twice in the abdomen grabbed the man's gun and killed him Thursday night.

The gunman stabbed the manager and a young employe after his gun was wrested from him in a wild melee during a holdup attempt.

Police identified the robber as William Coleroff, 46, an ex-convict from Philadelphia. In his papers they found the address, 2551 No. 33rd St., Pittsburgh, Pa.

Two persons were critically wounded. They are Mrs. Sally Benson, 20, wife of Manager Kenneth E. Benson, 26, and Richard M. Lifsey, 17, a box boy. Mrs. Benson lost her baby, which was due next month.

Police Capt. W. E. Hegi gave this account:

The bandit, armed with a .38 caliber revolver, held up Benson and Lifsey as they set the burglar alarm before closing up the market.

He marched them to the check stand where Mrs. Benson stood and forced them to load the money bags.

"We'll all get in your car," the gunman told Benson.

As Coleroff herded the trio toward the door, Mrs. Benson and Lifsey lagged behind. The youth swung a bag of quarters and felled the bandit, who fired three times, two of the shots striking Mrs. Benson.

Her husband, oblivious of his own safety, seized the revolver and shot the robber three times—in the heart, groin and side.

ACTOR DIES—Paul Douglas, 52, stage, television and screen actor died yesterday at his Hollywood, Calif., home of an apparent heart attack. His wife, Actress Jan Sterling, was with him when he died. (AP Photofax)

Paul Douglas, Video, Movie Actor, Dies

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Actor Paul Douglas, who once admitted that he ate, drank and talked too much, died Friday of a heart attack that hit without cue.

Douglas, 52, spent Thursday night at home, awakened at 8:30 a.m. to go to the bathroom. There he collapsed and died before a fire department rescue crew could reach him with oxygen.

His wife, actress Jan Sterling, was sitting on the floor cradling Douglas' head in her arms when a physician arrived and pronounced the actor dead.

The 6-foot, 200-pound actor, famed as much for his blunt comments as his acting, had been fighting paunchiness for some years.

"If I could cut out those morning martinis," he once told a reporter, "I think I could look like Tony Curtis."

Miss Sterling, 36, currently co-starring in the stage play "The Gazebo," was overcome at her husband's sudden death. She will not appear on stage Friday night, a friend said. They were married in 1950 and have a son Adams, born in 1955.

Douglas, long considered an actor's actor and one of the most professional performers in the business, became a star overnight in his first stage play.

During the 1930s, Douglas was one of the nation's top sports and radio announcers. Then he became Jack Benny's first announcer-straight man in radio, later doing the same chore for Fred Allen.

Douglas wanted to be an actor but none of his important pals would take him seriously. Garson Kanin, meanwhile, wrote "Born Yesterday" and had trouble casting the role of the rough-talking junk tycoon.

"It needs a Paul Douglas type who can act," Kanin moaned one day to his wife, Ruth Gordon.

"Why not get Douglas?" asked the wife. With Judy Holliday as costar, Douglas became an overnight acting sensation.

He came to Hollywood to play in "A Letter to Three Wives," and became one of the movies' and later television's busiest actors. Among his movie hits were "Beau James," "The Solid Gold Cadillac," "Executive Suite," "Panic in the Streets," "Clash by Night" and lately "The Mating Season."

Casts Doubt On Congress Adjournment

House Passes Farm Surplus Disposal Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Wayne Morse (D-Ore) said Friday he will do his utmost to stem Congress' homeward rush well into next week.

Morse's stated determination to keep up his delaying tactics cast doubt on whether the Senate and House can quit work Monday, let alone Saturday as some members had hoped.

The House, with its calendar virtually wiped clean, passed a $4,100,000,000 farm surplus disposal bill Friday, then began marking time until the slower-paced Senate catches up.

A few hours after the House acted, the Senate completed passage of the compromise surplus disposal bill, which would allow the Agriculture Department to put in operation a food stmp plan to benefit the needy. Both House and Senate acted by voice vote, sending the bill to President Eisenhower.

Foreign Aid Bill

Still ahead of the Senate is the $3,200,000,000 foreign aid bill which it will take up Saturday.

There was the possibility of a full-blown fight over civil rights, although backstage efforts were under way to persuade Southern senators to limit their speeches against a two-year extension of the Civil Rights Commission.

Another sticky issue to be resolved lies in a bill to allow the Treasury to raise interest rates on series E and H savings bonds. Senate-House conferees again were unable to reach agreement. They planned another try Saturday.

None of the legislative problems appeared big enough to hold up for long adjournment of this first session of the 86th congress—a session that began last January.

For a week, the Morse has been waging a single-handed fight to slow down the Senate. His reason, he says, is to prevent "a lot of bad legislation" from going through in the dash for adjournment.

Effective Tactic

His most effective tactic has been to block most efforts of Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas to speed action by short-cut routes requiring unanimous consent of the Senate.

Without mentioning Morse by name, Sen. J. William Fulbright (D-Ark) cautioned against abuse of Senate rules.

"It is quite possible for a determined person to so use the rules as to effectively paralyze the work of the Senate or, in the alternative, to dominate its deliberations by a threat of a paralysis," Fulbright told the Senate.

"I hope the Senate does not finally degenerate into a pettyfogging circus, preoccupied with rules which, when enforced, finally result in complete frustration and futility."

Rockefeller Draft Urged

CONCORD, N.H. (AP)—A potential Nixon-Rockefeller battle in New Hampshire's first-in-the-nation presidential primary moved a step closer to reality Friday with the launching of a campaign to draft the New York governor.

A group of 40 prominent Granite State residents urged Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller to declare himself a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination and enter the early-bird primary next March 8.

In New York City, Rockefeller had no immediate comment but his New Hampshire supporters said he has promised to give serious consideration to their request.

Although neither Vice President Richard M. Nixon nor the governor have announced future political plans, their followers here are convinced the two will clash in the country's first 1960 test of voter sentiment.

Rockefeller's boosters hailed news of the draft and said it was a grass roots movement reminiscent of a 1952 New Hampshire campaign that started Dwight D. Eisenhower on the road to the White House.

But Nixon's backers scoffed at such an idea.

They said the vice president would trounce the New York governor in any primary contest. They pointed to the unprecedented 23,000 write-in votes which Nixon received here in the 1956 primary at a time when there was talk of dumping him from the GOP ticket.

Fallout Level Extremely High In Maryland

By LOU PANOS

OCEAN CITY, Md. (AP) — A State official said Friday that eight times the permissible amount level of Strontium-90, a result of radioactive fallout, has been found in Maryland alfalfa.

David Hume, a member of the Board of Natural Resources and a treasurer of the state's Democratic party, said Republican officeholders had thwarted his efforts to learn how much Strontium-90 is in other Maryland crops.

In a speech to a convention of Young Democrats of Maryland, Hume recalled the 1956 warnings against radiation issued by Democratic presidential candidate Adlai Stevenson.

"The day before the election," said Hume, "the Republican campaign leaders dredged up the imminent scientist, Dr. Edward Keller, who in company with another of his colleagues issued a declaration which focused on a statement that radioactivity from atomic tests was 'insignificant'," Hume said.

The Maryland Democrat said this left the Democrats "no time for an answer. . .no time for the truth."

He then said recent tests by the government showed that alfalfa in Nebraska contained one and one-half times the permissible maximum level of Strontium-90.

"Compared with Maryland, Nebraska is in pretty good shape," Hume declared.

"We in Maryland have not one and one-half times, but eight times the permissible maximum level of Strontium-90 in alfalfa.

"What about other crops? What about milk? he asked.

"Try to find out. I can't. Reporters on some of the major newspapers can't."

Hume said if his listeners wanted "a real exercise in frustration" they should "try to find out from Republican officeholders."

"Or try to get a concise report on progress towards finding the connection between fallout and cancer, now being determined by a crew of scientists in Hagerstown," he suggested.

Commenting on Vice President Nixon's proposal to halt atomic tests during his recent trip to the Soviet Union, Hume declared:

"In 1956 this dedicated opportunist said the Stevenson charges were 'catastrophic nonsense'."

Hume told the delegates that what is important in his discussion of radioactive fallout is not the evil of a few men, but the unspeakable damage that may result to the American people when party politics is put above the national interest."

About 75 delegates were among early arrivals for the convention at this ocean resort. Before Hume spoke they heard Rep. Johnson (D-Md) deliver a keynote address in which he announced he will seek renomination in 1960. The two-day convention will wind up Saturday after the adoption of resolutions and election of officers.

Leonard Lockhart, a trial magistrate from Elkton, appeared Friday night to be unopposed for the presidency now held by Thomas Ellicott of Towson.

Police Are Led Merry Chase

WASHINGTON (AP) — A gasoline station attendant in a borrowed sports car led police on a chase Friday that at one point attained a speed of 140 m.p.h.

The wild race from Jessups, Md. to northeast Washington ended when the car hit a brick wall.

Sitting calmly nearby and sipping a soft drink, police said, was Larry M. Weaver, 18, of Washington.

They said Weaver, tall and slender, had climbed from the wreckage, walked to a near-by service station and told the attendant he had just witnessed an accident. He said the driver was short and stocky. But Pvt. Tyrus Peele of the Park Police, who arrived soon after, said he recognized Weaver as the driver.

He was charged with exceeding 70 m.p.h., reckless driving, failing to obey a policeman's order and failing to have a driver's permit.

Peele said he was patroling the Baltimore - Washington Parkway near Jessups when a Corvette flew past him. Peele pushed his souped-up police cruiser to 140 m.p.h. but the other car left him behind.

Prince Georges County Police set up a roadblock at the Riverdale road interchange. Weaver, police said, evaded it and headed for Bladensburg on U.S. 50. At Bladensburg he evaded another roadblock.

It was at an intersection in northeast Washington that Weaver's ride ended.

Police quoted Weaver as saying he had borrowed the car from a customer.

Khrush Blasts Capitalism But Uses Some Of Methods

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
Associated Press News Analyst

Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev, while damning capitalism, doesn't hesitate to adopt some of its methods.

He has announced that for the Soviet economy to flourish there must be material incentive for increased agricultural and industrial production.

His promises about outstripping the United States in all phases of production, including the consumer side, sound like promises of a system which would out-capitalist the capitalists.

Khrushchev's unorthodox notions might shock a dogmatic Communist. But he snorts that such a man refuses "to get off the old nag, for fear a new horse will throw him." Is it wrong, he demands, "to grease our ideology with butter?"

Whatever it is Khrushchev intends, he has swept the main opposition aside. Men who ranked far above him in the Stalin hierarchy he has outfoxed, much like a formidable machine politician in the old days of the United States. Georgi Malenkov has been labeled plotter, Lazar Kaganovich an old windbag, V. M. Molotov an ignoramus, Nikolai Bulganin a bungler. All were called "anti-party," and Khrushchev now is the party.

The main opposition has been exiled to minor, faraway jobs and silenced. But Khrushchev still has opponents and troubles.

Khrushchev's promises have due dates. He has promised that after 1963, the end of the current seven-year plan, the U.S.S.R. will be ready with a strong internal economy to take on the United States in economic competition. By 1968, he says, the ruble will batter its way into the world markets, pushing the American dollar aside. Until then, he adds, the consumers must make sacrifices to heavy industry, which builds power.

The Soviet public may not be that patient any more. It has had many contacts with Westerners since Stalin died. It has a vague idea of what it has been missing, of the things that should be its own in a land which is second most powerful on earth.

Old terror methods of Stalin's day won't work any more, and Khrushchev, recognizing this, boasts there are no more trials for political crimes.

Much of Khrushchev's worry stems from younger people. They are more demanding than their fathers. They want adequate housing, for example, and Khrushchev concedes it will take up to 15 years to satisfy the demand. Many are bored. Addressing the Young Communist (Komsomol) Congress last year, Khrushchev warned them to "stop complaining about being bored."

Privileged youngsters with parents in high positions are beginning to act like a privileged class. This, too, can be dangerous.

Khrushchev has huge manpower problems. In his sudden reform of education, he has instituted a "work while you learn" program between secondary and higher schooling.

All children, after finishing seven or eight school years, must "take part in socially useful labor at enterprises, collective farms and other places of work," says Khrushchev.

The boss has trouble with writers. The post - Stalin relaxations produced hints of defiance. Now, says Khrushchev, it is time to call a halt. Writers must devote themselves to developing "principles of Communist morality," and must become "engineers of the human soul."

Most of all, Khrushchev has troubles with the growing class of people with good incomes, who want consumer goods to match. He is making promises, delivering a bit more each year, but the going is tough.

Convict Admits Holdup In Which Two Sentenced

BALTIMORE (AP) — A man serving a 20 year prison term for one bank robbery told a federal judge Friday he helped stage a bank holdup for which two Washington area men are serving 25 year terms.

Martin J. McNicholas, 23, appeared before Judge R. Dorsey Watkins in support of new trial motions filed in behalf of Tyrus F. Jones, 29, of Capital Heights, Md., and Robert T. Princeler, 28 of Mount Rainier, Md.

Jones and Princeler were convicted by a jury last year of the $17,000 holdup of a Marlow Heights branch bank near Washington Jan. 26, 1958. McNicholas is serving a 20 year term for the $35,289 robbery of the Provident Savings Bank at Sparrows Point on Feb. 12, 1958.

McNicholas told Judge Watkins that he and a man he met in a Washington bar, and known only as "Mac", were the masked pair who abducted the teller and took the money from the Marlow Heights bank.

McNicholas said that he and "Mac" drove to the apartment of the bank teller in Silver Spring. He said he held a gun on the teller's wife while his companion forced the teller to drive to the bank and open the night depository.

Judge Watkins, who presided at the trial last year, questioned McNicholas closely on his account of the holdup, the weapons used and furnishings in the apartment. Jones and Princeler asked new trials on the ground new evidence had been uncovered recently.

Under questioning by Deputy U.S. Atty. John R. Harsgrove, McNicholas denied discussing the holdup with Jones while both were held in the Baltimore City Jail. He said they didn't talk about the robbery until after McNicholas said he "confessed" the Marlow Heights robbery to an FBI agent. This occurred while both men were in the Atlanta penitentiary.

At the trial, there was testimony that a sawed-off shotgun and two masks were found within 200 yards of the home of Jones' parents. One witness also testified that he saw one of Jones' brothers throw an object off an Anacostia River bridge. The object was recovered and identified as the end of a barrel sawed off the gun used in the holdup.

BALTIMORE (AP) — A federal grand jury has indicted an Alexandria, Va. grocery clerk and a Washington man for the $28,000 robbery of a Southern Maryland bank.

The indictments returned Thursday named Robert L. Couch, 22, of Alexandria, and Charles E. Lawrenson, 41, of Washington.

They are charged with tying and gagging three women tellers in the County Trust Co. at Mechanicsville, St. Marys County, on Sept. 4 and taking $28,037.

Loan Firm, Trio Plead Innocent

The pleas were entered for the Commercial Savings and Loan Assn. Inc., with offices in Baltimore, Silver Spring and Bethesda; its president, Robert F. Suchman of Baltimore, and two Chicago residents, C. Oran Mensik and Miss Marianne Barto.

The arraignment in U.S. District Court came more than a year after the defendants were first indicted by a Federal grand jury. Trial of the case is set for Oct. 19, but certain pre-trial motions will be heard Sept. 25. These include motions by Mensik and Miss Barton for separate trials.

Russian Poet Attends Concert At Moscow

MOSCOW (AP) — Boris Pasternak, Russian poet and novelist, reappeared in public Friday. He turned up unannounced at a concert of the New York Philharmonic and cheered, applauded and kissed Conductor Leonard Bernstein.

Pasternak had lived in seclusion many months since he was awarded the 1958 Nobel Prize for literature after publication abroad of his novel "Doctor Zhivago." It was banned from publication in the Soviet Union and he rejected the prize after first accepting it.

Pasternak appeared in blooming health. He told reporters he is living well and working at capacity.

But he was too concerned immediately with Bernstein and the Philharmonic music to pause for discussion of the controversial "Doctor Zhivago," or to say what he is writing now.

Making his way to Bernstein's dressing room at intermission, Pasternak said: "I've never felt so close to the aesthetic truth."

"When I hear you I know why you were born," he told Bernstein.

(While the Soviet Union never took any open official action to punish Pasternak for the political shafts and implications of "Doctor Zhivago," he was made an outcast by the Soviet writers' union and branded a pig by former colleagues. His surprise emergence in public came amid a surge of expedients leading to Premier Nikita Khrushchev's departure Monday on his historic mission to America and talks with President Eisenhower. The Pasternak case has been a rallying cry for demonstrators against Soviet supressions of freedom).

Jury Reports On Hospitals

BALTIMORE (AP)—Conditions at the State's three mental hospitals are "shocking beyond belief" and immediate steps should be taken to correct the "horrors," existing, the Baltimore Criminal Court grand jury reported Friday.

Foreman Jay G. Engle said the panel found "it difficult to understand the attitude of 'the powers that be' in not rectifying horrors that we have seen in such institutions as Spring Grove, Springfield and Rosewood."

The jurors reacted with "dismay and displeasure" at what they observed at the two hospitals and training school.

"Time does not permit going into these details," the report continued, "but the grand jury strongly recommends that more money be spent in cleaning and building of these three institutions even if it means possibly less money spent for other projects."

"The conditions surrounding these poor, mentally unfit beings is shocking beyond belief," the jury said. "Little wonder that Spring Grove, Springfield and Rosewood have lost their accreditation."

Stock Market Scores Only Advance Of Week Friday

NEW YORK (UPI)—The stock market scored its only advance of the week Friday and it was strong enough to restore about 25 per cent of the loss suffered in the three previous sessions.

The rally, paced by steels, motors, chemicals, electronics, drugs and rails, restored $2,310,000,000 to stock valuations. However, the market was off $6,215,000,000 on the week.

The market took a beating in the first three sessions of the holiday-shortened week before reversing the trend Friday. The market opened higher and moved ahead easily on increased volume.

Brokers attributed the improvement mainly to technical factors. They said the market was ripe for a rally after steep decline of the three previous sessions.

They noted that market sentiment also was helped by indications of stronger government, pressures to end the steel strike and the elimination of one tight money uncertainty—the discount rate hike.

The steels enjoyed gains running past 2 points in Lukens, Jones & Laughlin, and Republic Steel. Chrysler, Ford and General Motors added better than a point each. Raytheon was ahead more than 3 in the electronics while Allied Chemical led its group higher with a gain of 2¼.

Goodyear was off more than 2 in an otherwise firm rubber group. Some of the rail leaders posted gains of more than a point as that group enjoyed its best day in a week.

Chicago Grains

CHICAGO (UPI)—Grain trading reflected the latest government crop estimate, and most prices were irregularly lower Friday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

At the final bell, wheat was off ⅛ to up ⅝; corn unchanged to off 1⅛; oats off 2¼; new oats off ⅛ to ⅝; rye unchanged to off ¾; soybeans off ¼ to ¾.

Wheat prices receded from earlier firm levels after an early commission house demand was satisfied. Longs sold September.

Corn was under the influence of the bearish crop estimate, which was revised upward from July 1 by more than 200 million bushels. Nearby contracts were weak.

Oats prices slipped on scattered commission house selling. Northwest houses bought new September. Rye opened unchanged, but later dropped to an easy level.

Soybeans opened with gains of 1½ cents as the result of a smaller than expected crop estimate. Shorts were active buyers. Prices fell off after the demand was satisfied.

Outside markets were mixed. The range:

Lias Receiverships Dissolved By Court

WHEELING, W. Va. (UPI)—Federal Judge Harry E. Watkins Friday dissolved the last of federal receiverships on holdings of former Wheeling gambling czar G. Lias.

Watkins agreed to dismiss attorney W. Frank Keefer as Lias' personal receiver. A total of $52,600 under Keefer's trust will be applied to Lias' current taxes and not to back taxes and penalties a Tax Court ruled he owed the government.

Hearing was also held on a motion to expand on the period of time the federal government claims Lias gave money to his wife, son and daughter during tax proceedings against him.

The government claims the money—now in Canadian banks—should be confiscated and used to help pay off the $2,500,000 tax bill Lias owes.

Bill Authorizes 25 Federal Judges

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Judiciary Committee announced Friday approval of a bill to authorize appointment of 25 additional federal judges. Three would be circuit court judges and 22 district court judges.

The Eisenhower Administration has urged Congress to create 45 additional judgeships to help relieve congestion and delays in the Federal courts.

New 24-Hour Diet
Takes Pounds OFF Big Eaters

Big eaters now can lose 10 to 20 pounds and more and still enjoy big meals of fine food . . . thanks to the Swedish Milk Diet. It is an on and off diet. Eat today . . . eat everything just like you now eat. Then tomorrow you diet for 24 hours taking Larson's S.M.D. with milk . . . that's all.

No calorie counting. No exercise. No mechanical massage. Yet not only do the pounds and inches of horrid looking fat melt away but more important, those bulges disappear in the right places from all over the body the same way. It's quickly noticeable how much weight is gone from chin, back, neck, arms, legs, stomach, bust, backside, hips and thighs.

So even if you are a true gourmet when it comes to fine food and big meals, start the Swedish Milk Diet. Automatically thousands of fat building calories are eliminated. Energy goes up . . . weight goes down. Once again you're slim and there's no underfeeding. This is the reducing plan you've seen publicized in Harper's Bazaar, Glamour, Vogue and other authoritative fashion magazines.

You can get Larson's S.M.D., the complete Swedish Milk Diet, at better drug stores. Also featured by many leading department stores . . . ask at the cosmetics counter. You have your choice of this filling, energy-packed food either regular or in chocolate flavor or in handy condensed food tablet form. Secrets Of Charm

Making Scents

A French working girl will go without lunch to buy perfume. The tendency of American women, however, is to wait for men to give them perfume as a gift.

Why the great sacrifice of the Parisian secretary? I'll tell you why. She considers perfume one of her best investments—a potent weapon of allure. She doesn't feel that she is being extravagant—just extravagantly feminine.

The only wastefulness occurs when you use perfume as a dressing table ornament or when you use it ineptly. Whether it is a five dollar bottle or a one-hundred dollar one, fragrance is precious to you for the confidence and pleasure it supplies. For others, your fragrance is the distillation of your personality and it lingers much longer in the memory than anything else you wear.

A man remembers your perfume and associates it with you long after he has forgotten the costume you wore on a particular occasion. For example, a summary of the perfume opinions of 2,000 important male executives on the question, "What type of fragrance do you like?" — "Depends on the girl" was checked off by 725 men. 700 men had "a favorite perfume" against 200 who didn't. The question, "If so, is the fragrance connected with someone special?" drew 592 yesses"; 196 no's". This certainly shows how discerning men can be about perfume.

Few people really appreciate what goes into a bottle. There's so much—for in each fine perfume there lies a sensory trip around the world. Fragrant flowers, oils, woods, leaves, roots and bark are drawn from every corner of the world.

The perfume industry, more than any other, is completely dependent on the whole world for its sustenance. For instance, rose oil comes from Bulgaria. And, roses are to Bulgaria what cotton is to Georgia, tobacco to Virginia and potatoes to Maine. The blooms have to be gathered at sunrise when still moist with dew. To give you an idea of how many rose petals it takes . . . the workers have to gather about 4,000 pounds of roses to produce one pound of oil.

Once you open a bottle of perfume, don't fear of using too much — only of using too little. Fill a purse flacon and carry it with you for a feminine pick up during warm, sticky days as well as evenings.

Never put perfume directly on your face when going out in the sun (it actually can result in a permanent burn).

Broiler Champ Active In School, Church

OAKLAND—Ralph Buckel Jr., 4-H Club member of Garrett County, is the 1959 Maryland State winner in the junior broiler production program. A trophy and a $25 savings bond, given through the sponsorship of the Maryland State Poultry Council, was presented Buckel at the Maryland State Fair, Timonium, by Grover C. Harris Jr., extension poultryman.

Ralph was selected as a regional winner last May in the Western Maryland broiler exhibit held at the Sterling Processing plan here. The six-bird sample displayed from Ralph's entry of 100 birds averaged 3.85 pounds each for an eight-week growing period. These birds were the White Vantress-Arbor Acre Cross variety. A total of 1,600 broilers have been raised by Ralph in the five years he has participated in the program.

President of his local 4-H club, "Bucky," as he is known to his friends, started his 4-H project work in 1954 with a Sears Roebuck Foundation dairy calf. His entomology project, which he has carried four years, consists of a total of 142 insects. Demonstrations and display of his collections have created interest in this project among other 4-Hers and won him many blue ribbons.

Beekeeping, part of the entomology work, is "one of the most interesting parts of my project and many of my friends have received gifts of honey." A speech based on his entomology project won Ralph county and regional honors and participation in the state public speaking contest.

"Through 4-H work," Ralph says, "I have learned to accept losing as well as winning. Losing encourages me to try harder and do my best in all I do." Among his recent winnings, was that of a State 4-H delegate to the American Institute of Cooperatives in August at the University of Illinois. A scholarship to the 1959 Club Week was achieved on his county electrical demonstration.

Elected vice president of the Garrett County 4-H Council this year, Ralph has helped with many county activities. He participated in the dairy judging event at the State Fair as a member of the Garrett County judging team.

The Buckel home, located near Bittinger, consists of about six acres in which are located two broiler houses, a large garden and orchard. His father is an elementary teacher at North Glade School. His mother, in addition to raising three children, is also the Bittinger Girls 4-H Club local leader. Her daughter, Judy, who is a sophomore at the University of Maryland, represented the state at the National 4-H Conference in June at Washington. James, the youngest in the family, is in the eleventh grade at Northern High.

Ralph Jr., is a senior at Northern High where he participates in school activities including the football team. As a member of the Luther League, he represented the local group in a regional conference in the New York area this summer. He is also a member of the church choir.

Potomac State Enrollment Sets Record

Attendance Tops Last Year

KEYSER—Potomac State College began classes yesterday with a record enrollment of 606 students, according to Dean K. S. McKee, who said registration was completed yesterday.

There were 579 students enrolled after the first two weeks of classes last year, and the present total represents an increase of 27 students over last year's later enrollment figure, the dean pointed out.

In an interview yesterday afternoon, President E. E. Church said he was pleased with the increase since he had been apprehensive of the effect of a $100-a-year increase in fees would have on the enrollment. Dr. Church said he feels now that there will be very little effect on enrollment in state colleges because of the increase.

The added fees come in the form of a $50-a-semester registration fee in addition to the $45 charged for tuition, for resident students. The registration fee was enacted by the 1959 session of the West Virginia Legislature, to provide a fund for future construction at state colleges as well as the university.

Two-thirds of the money from this fund will go into a special non-reverting fund for college building, while the other third will go into the state's General Revenue Fund.

Dr. Church explained that colleges of the state can apply for money after having a construction project approved by the college board of governors, and then applying to the Legislature for approval of the plan.

He said Potomac State does not have any immediate construction in view, but that there are far-reaching plans being drawn up for additional buildings.

There are 370 freshmen and 236 sophomores registered. These two groups are divided into 70 women students and 300 men in the freshman class, and 186 men students and 50 women in the sophomore class.

Dean McKee stated at a meeting of the faculty that he felt they had done a splendid job in registering the students, with very little time being lost. He was pleased with the enrollment total and said it probably will increase as stragglers and special students register.

Bloodmobile Visits Keyser September 25

Appeal Is Made For New Donors

KEYSER — The Bloodmobile unit from Johnstown, Pa., will make another visit to Keyser on Friday September 25, when it will be stationed at Grace Methodist Church from noon to 6 p. m.

Floyd C. Boor, chairman of the local Red Cross chapter, has pointed out that with the present functioning of the United Fund method of raising operating money for the Mineral County Red Cross Chapter, the money needed for general Red Cross necessities and the Blood Bank Program is no longer the primary problem.

"Meeting the blood quota is the major problem today and yet the quota is a very reasonable amount," Boor said. He added that "it is very important that the people realize the necessity of Keyser meeting its quota each time the mobile unit visits the city in order to be able to continue participating in the program, so that an ample supply of blood will be available to meet the many needs of the people in the Keyser area.

"An important feature of being a participant in the blood program is the fact that we can have blood made available in any participating hospital, regardless of the city in which it is located for any of the local people, as long as we are able to meet our assigned quota."

Area residents are urged to donate a pint of blood on Friday, September 25, at Grace Methodist Church.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Tuesday	Habakkuk	3	18-19
Wednesday	Luke	10	25-27

Through All Of Life ...

Perhaps you see no significance to the hourglass superimposed on the Bible. But to the believer, it means that all of life is sustained by God's promises. Every day, every hour, He gives strength and help to His followers. The light of His Word shines steadily through the passing of time. The more you read, the deeper will be your understanding, the greater will be your joy. By entering wholeheartedly into the work of the Church, by giving it your support, you increase the value of your own life, and help others to see the light shining through each day's experience.

Throughout life's entire span, the Church will help us, the Bible will speak to us of God. Does the picture mean that to you? It will, if you look at it through believing eyes.

Record Corn Crop Forecast In Maryland

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — Maryland farmers are expected to grow a record corn crop this year.

The Maryland-Delaware Crop Reporting Service said Friday the 1959 output, based on farmer estimates Sept. 1, is forecast at 30,120,000 bushels. This would be 5 per cent better than the previous high of 1956.

Creighton N. Guellow, service director, said the early summer drought cut yields in some early fields, especially on the Eastern Shore, but the average yield per acre throughout the state will be only slightly below 1958.

The service estimated the soybean harvest at 4,200,000 bushels, or about the same as last season; tobacco 32,375,000 pounds, up from last year because of a boost in acreage, and hay 717,000 tons.

The survey showed that apple prospects are excellent, with a yield of about 1,400,000 bushels. The peach crop, which has been harvested, is expected to total 460,000 bushels against 490,000 a year ago.

Tomato output was expected to be down 31 per cent, lima beans down 33 per cent, sweet corn off 9 per cent and snap beans down 12 per cent.

Safe-Teens Hear Officer Cubbage

City Patrolman Charles Cubbage of the Cumberland Police Department spoke at a meeting of the Cumberland Chapter of Safe-Teen, Inc., Thursday night at the Court House as the club launched its fall program.

Officer Cubbage emphasized the importance of giving undivided attention to the job of driving. Using incidents from his policing experience in traffic control, he explained the importance of split-second-divided attention.

"Stay alert and stay alive" is still the best advice that can be given any driver in city traffic, Mr. Cubbage reminded the group.

A discussion period followed the talk.

Dennis Bobo Jr., club president, said the next program in this safety educational series will include a film followed by a question and answer session. The next meeting will be Tuesday, September 22.

About 20 members attended last night.

Jury To Probe

Yesterday pupils of Dennett Road School who lost six of their friends in the accident, stood with bowed heads for a moment of silence.

Foster Riggs, principal, said another bus owned by the Garrett County Board of Education, will be placed on the route on Monday. There was no school yesterday for the children who are picked up on the Boiling Spring - Deer Park - Loch Lynn route.

Southern High School, which lost one of its students and had five others seriously injured, cancelled its pep rally Thursday night.

The school opened its football season yesterday with Moorefield High School. Dr. W. Kenneth Johns, school principal, conferred with other school officials and it was decided the game would be played.

U.S. Sen. J. Glenn Beall said he plans to make a full study to determine if federal legislation is needed in the future to avoid similar tragedies.

The National Safety Council has listed a three-point program to safeguard school bus passengers, in view of the Garrett County tragedy:

1. Selection and training of school bus drivers.
2. Inspection and preventive maintenance of school buses.
3. Establishment of legal standards for the behind-the-wheel performance of school bus drivers through driver licensing.

Politics In Pen?

3 Ex-Wardens Say Prison Newspaper Favors GOP

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI) — Three former wardens of Moundsville Penitentiary Friday accused the Republican state administration of using the prison publication, "Penscope," for "political propaganda."

State Treasurer Orel J. Skeen, speaking for himself, and R. A. Coiner, both Democrats, and E. H. Tucker, a Republican, said Warden Don Adams and State Public Institutions Commissioner Harold E. Neely have permitted publication of stories favoring the administration of Gov. Cecil H. Underwood.

Skeen said the stories tend to give the impression all the progress at the institution has been made only under direction of Adams and Neely. He said the stories lead the public to believe that no improvements had been made while he, Tucker and Coiner were wardens.

Skeen was especially critical of a special edition published in conjunction with the recent State Fair near Lewisburg. He said the front page carried pictures of Underwood, Neely and Adams in "an obvious attempt to advance the cause of the Republican party."

The ex - warden said that as a matter of principle, Underwood and Neely should not allow a newspaper over which they have control to "heap praise upon themselves."

Skeen said if the Republicans are going to use the paper "to promote themselves, the Democrats ought to be given equal space."

Contacted by telephone, Adams said a "Penscope" story of the "dilapidated" trucks he found at the institution was true and noted that for a time he had to borrow a coal truck from the Marshall County Board of Education.

"I'll defy anyone to show me anything inaccurate in the Penscope," Adams said. "Most everything in the paper showing progress made at the institution had already been published in the state papers."

Neely said the special edition was put out to show progress made by Prison Industries in conjunction with other industrial exhibits at the fair.

"The paper was only trying to show what has been done during my and Adams' tenure," Neely said. "If in the process we step on someone's toes, then let him cry ouch."

Neely defended Adams' supervision of the prison and added that "for once in their lives, the prisoners have a warden who is their friend."

The commissioner said Skeen said nothing about the publication when he visited the prison Wednesday and noted that he considers it "a compliment that former wardens have become aware of the progress made at the prison."

School Tax Levies Bring 50 Million

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI) — Tax money from special levies and property assessments will bring in an estimated $50,734,404 — about $11,000,000 more than last year — for West Virginia public schools this fiscal year, it was reported Friday.

William Hamilton, supervisor of the State Board of School Finance, said the estimate includes $25,406,902 from property assessments, an increase of $1,274,170 despite the anticipated loss of $1,034,000 from the bank deposit amendment approved by the voters in last year's general election. The amendment exempted bank deposits from assessments for tax purposes.

In addition to the estimate by Hamilton, schools will receive $58,757,420 in state aid during the 1959-60 fiscal year.

Hamilton's report also showed that the estimated total tax money includes $17,714,816 from special levies approved by voters in 35 counties.

Approval of maximum special levies in all counties could raise an additional $8,174,061 for schools, Hamilton said.

Hamilton said the $50,734,404 represents an increase of $11,281,712 over the $39,452,000 estimated at this time last year for the 1958-59 fiscal year.

Of the $50,734,404, about one-fifth, or $10,302,291, will be raised in Kanawha County. Cabell County is expected to collect the second - highest amount, $3,591,105. Wirt County will raise the smallest amount, $56,448.

Other counties expected to collect more than $1,000,000 in property and special levy taxes this fiscal year are:

Wood $2,247,209, Ohio 2,061,452, Logan 2,019,765, Hancock 1,952,201, McDowell 1,818,438, Raleigh 1,630,284, Marshall 1,621,959, Harrison 1,645,593, Monongalia 1,510,022, Fayette .,702,933, Marion 1,442,444.

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI) — A total of $63,544,600 worth of bonds for public school construction will be outstanding during the 1959-60 fiscal year, the State Board of School Finance reported Friday.

Kanawha County heads the state's 55 counties with $26,028,000 outstanding. Brooke County has the smallest amount at $38,000.

No bond issues were voted for 1959-60 by residents of Barbour, Boone, Braxton, Cabell, Clay, Doddridge, Greenbrier, Harrison, Lewis, Marion, Monroe, Nicholas, Pendleton, Pocahontas, Ritchie, Summers, Tyler and Wayne Counties.

Board Supervisor William K. Hamilton said if all counties had approved their bonding potential $188,318,576 would have been available for school construction. As it now stands, counties have a total of $124,773,976 in unused bonding potential, he said.

Secretary Plan Is Tabled Here

The Allegany County Board of Commissioners tabled a proposal under which they were asked to decide if they want to join the program for a full-time executive secretary of the State Association of County Commissioners.

Joseph G. Harrison, president of the state group, wrote the board that 13 of the larger counties voted at the last meeting to inaugurate the program and Allegany County's assessment for the salary would be $483 per year.

The assessment is based on the population of the individual counties. The board members here feel that they would like to discuss the matter at a November meeting of the four Western Maryland counties in Frederick.

Forty Hours Start Sunday

The annual 40 Hours service will begin Sunday at St. Anthony's Catholic Church, Ridgeley, with a high mass at 10 a. m., according to Rev. Robert Kilgannon, pastor.

A procession will be held following the mass, and benediction and 40 Hours services will be held following the 5 p. m. mass, Father Kilgannon said.

High masses will be celebrated at 8 a. m. Monday and Tuesday, with the concluding services, including a litany and procession, scheduled to follow the mass on Tuesday.

The pastor said communion will be distributed 15 minutes prior to the Monday and Tuesday masses, with confessions scheduled to be heard after the masses at 8 and 10 a. m. and 5 p. m. Sunday and following the Monday evening services.

Father Kilgannon will be assisted in the services by a Capuchin priest from SS. Peter and Paul Monastery.

Ridgeley Lions To Plan Activities

Due to the renovation of the social room of the Ridgeley E. U. B. Church, the September dinner meeting of the Ridgeley Lions Club has been cancelled and a business session will be held at the Council room Monday at 7:30 p. m. president Harvey Bradley announced.

Plans for winter activities will be made.

Day Kindergarten Slated By Church

The School of Happy Friends, weekday kindergarten sponsored by the LaVale Methodist Church, will open Thursday, October 1.

Registration has been completed and letters confirming enrollment of pupils have been mailed to parents. Names of additional applicants have been placed on the waiting list.

Speed Limit Increased On U.S. 220

The speed limit on McMullen Highway south of Cumberland has been increased in two sections to 40 miles an hour from the former 30-mile limit.

Notice of the changes was received yesterday by the Allegany County Board of Commissioners from the State Roads Commission.

The SRC stated that upon recommendation of the Traffic Division director the commission at a meeting September 2 adopted the changes.

The section from the Bowling Green Service Station to a point where the roadway into Fairgo is located will be one of the 40-mile an hour zones. The second section of a mile and a quarter will be from a point just north of the Celanese plant toward Cresaptown to a point opposite the Second National Bank's branch office.

These two sections have been posted with 40-mile an hour signs.

Local Club Helps TV Get Films Of Fatal Crash

The Allegany Camper Club, organized to support activities at Allegany High School, helped in the transmission of television news about the fatal train-school bus accident Thursday in Garrett County, club officials said.

The Columbia Broadcasting Company contacted a local photographer with the request that he furnish it with 16-mm film shots of the tragedy that claimed seven lives. The photographer turned the request over to Robert Davis, who operates a motion picture service here.

Davis found out that the only film available was some which had been ordered by Edward Schwarz, AHS football coach, so he could have a record of each game for practice purposes.

Schwarz agreed to release some of the film to Davis, the shots being seen on the CBS television news program Thursday.

Fire Units Drill At Cresaptown

Fifteen members of the Cresaptown and LaVale volunteer fire companies participated Thursday in a fire drill at the former's training area on the Mason Farm.

Fire Chief James Loar of the LaVale unit said teams of three, each man equipped with air masks, entered the smoke-filled house to locate the fire and extinguish it.

The firemen also practiced the use of the fog screen in ventilating a burning home.

In ladder evolutions, each man climbed a 30-foot ladder placed vertically, using various leg locks and safety checks.

After the drill, the Cresaptown unit entertained the visitors in the fire hall.

CD Requested To Get Pump For Barton

William G. Barger, director of Civil Defense for Allegany County, has requested the Maryland headquarters of the CD to loan a pump and approximately two and a half miles of eight-inch steel pipe to the town of Barton to alleviate a critical water shortage.

Barger wrote the state headquarters on behalf of the Mayor and Town Council of Barton, He said the pump and pipe would only be needed for three or four weeks or until the water situation is solved.

The town plans to use the pump and pipe to transfer water from Laurel Run to the town's reservoir. The Barton water supply comes from surface water which collects in th ereservoir and also from several wells.

Drought conditions this summer have caused the town to be in short supply of water and it is below safe levels for health and fire protection.

Holy Name Unit Will Attend Mass

The members of the Holy Name Society of SS. Peter and Paul Catholic Church will attend the 7 a. m. mass Sunday and receive Holy Communion, according to Rev. DePaul Ripko, OFM, Cap., spiritual director.

The group also will attend vespers Sunday at 7:30 p. m. The first meeting of the fall will be held in the school cafeteria after services.

Road Hardsurfacing Is Being Sought

R. M. Buser, RD 1, Oldtown, wrote the Allegany County Board of Commissioners yesterday concerning further hardsurfacing of Town Creek Road.

Buser said he was writing on behalf of residents of the roadway and cited a promise by the board of seven years ago to pave a mile each year until the entire roadway was completed.

Three miles were paved some years ago and slightly more than a mile is in process of being hardsurfaced.

End To The Cat And Mouse Game?

"Here you are, gentlemen, take your choice" in effect is what the Defense Department will say to Congress when it hands in its fiscal 1961 budget requests. Already under study, the military planners have been told by Defense Secretary McElroy to prepare their budgets according to what they would like to have, what they will probably get and what they might receive if defense spending were trimmed next year.

Budget No. 1 will reflect an arbitrary 10 per cent cut from this year's appropriations in such divisions as procurement, construction and research and development. This will be considered the rock bottom budget if worse comes to worst — meaning if Congress decides to reduce spending during the coming election year.

The second budget to be submitted by the service chiefs will consist of the same appropriation requests favorably acted upon by Congress this year. Barring spectacular changes in the cold war or the introduction of uniquely different weapons, this is expected to be the budget as it is finally approved.

Budget No. 3 will contain the-sky's-the-limit proposals for projects the services regard as too important to be limited by financial restrictions. This one stands little chance of success because it would increase defense spending, which already accounts for more than half the total budget, and contribute toward another year of deficit spending.

Although it may seem like useless dpulication to prepare budgets tempered to possible political and financial climates of Congress and the Administration, the idea is more realistic than the present cat and mouse game played by a Defense Department which requests more than it needs because it knows Congress will cut the request, and a Congress which has become wise to Defense tactics and tries to guess at the overage before making its cuts.

These Days

Wage Hikes

It is not often that an industrial company uses its advertising space to sell not its product but its thinking. Every American producer is being forced to consider the danger of foreign competition in the American market. The automobile industry never favored a high tariff for automobiles because it did not need protection. There was no foreign competition in the American automobile market, but that is not true today.

The Union Oil Company of California has been using its advertising space to discuss its economic thinking. The product will take care of itself if the country's economic thinking is right. The advertisement that attracted my attention is entitled "Charlie Perkins — How wage hikes and taxes threaten your job." Charlie Perkins is apparently a real person.

This is the body of the advertisement and whoever wrote it knows his economics:

"Walk into nearly any store today with the idea of buying something.

"You'll see products from abroad right alongside our American-made ones. Nails, woolen and cotton fabrics, dinnerware, sewing machines, cameras, cars, bicycles and watches are some of them. And practically in every case, the imports cost less.

"Foreign manufacturers now compete sharply with our own industries. And they do so without two handicaps every American business faces today.

"One: Wage hikes not based on increased productivity. These result in continually rising prices for U. S. consumers and ever-mounting production costs for our manufacturers.

"Two: Growing taxes. Each year taxes take more of industry's dollars. This, too, is reflected in higher prices to the consumer.

"It makes you wonder. If we price ourselves out of world markets, what's next? If we don't stay competitive, isn't that the same as pricing you and me and all of us right out of our jobs?"

The issue herewith presented is correct. The contrary argument is: Many manufacturers are mighty eager to sell some of their output in other countries. Are not American-made sewing machines, typewriters, and farm machinery sold abroad?

Both arguments have some merit. However, we face a very frigid fact, namely, that if low-waged, low-taxed, low-priced, subsidized goods come into the United States to compete with high-waged, highly taxed, high-priced goods made with less efficiency than is possible because of labor union rules, we face the danger of a kind of competition which can throw 10,000,000 to 15,000,000 Americans out of work. That raises very serious social problems.

It used to be sound economics to say that if an American-made product could not compete with a similar product made elsewhere, it was the fault of the American manufacturer. He lacked efficiency. He lacked sound financial principles.

However, that is not true today. The United States, by a generosity unknown in the history of man, has rebuilt and rehabilitated industries throughout the world and created new ones with the result that American industry, which pays high taxes to aid its competitors, finds the subsidized competition tough going.

Secondly, American labor unions, fighting automation, have instituted various feather-bedding arrangements to slow up production. These arrangements increase inefficiencies, raise the cost of production of American goods.

I recently watched an advertisement for electrical equipment used in connection with a television show. We tried quickly to figure what the cost would be if we purchased every household device in that commercial. Our guess ran to about $50,000 which, of course, is not necessary because nobody requires all the devices.

The dilemma that the United States faces is this: In order to maintain our standard of life which is based on the social assumption that this nation will not have a proletariat, we must have full employment at good wages. The other side of the dilemma is that we cannot compete even in our own market with goods identically made by machinery tended by laborers who receive less pay, work longer hours and use fewer feather-bedding devices.

This problem will not be solved by demagogic speeches in or out of Congress. It requires profound study of the entire economic structure of this country. The proof of the peril is that the old free-trade unions in the textile and garment industries have suddenly become conscious of the danger to their industries by the flood of as good but cheaper goods from Europe and Asia.

Judicial, Doubting Air Toward Aggression

By Joseph Alsop

TOKYO

The Japanese papers breathlessly report that the United Nations is about to undertake a solemn investigation of the Communist aggression in Laos. It would be hard to imagine a more ironically superfluous venture.

In order to see the bitter humor of this piece of high level international thumb twiddling, you only have to stretch your imagination a little. Imagine, for example, that the American administration that came to office preaching the "liberation" policy had meant a word of its preachments.

Imagine, then, the Director of the Central Intelligence Agency, Allen W. Dulles, collecting all the reasonably combative Czechoslovak refugees from Communism who are now teaching school, operating groceries, and otherwise earning honest, humble living outside Czechoslovakia. Imagine, further, the CIA training and arming these people as guerilla units in Western Germany.

Imagine, finally, the NATO forces in Western Germany breaching the Czech border defenses, in order to turn guerilla units loose inside Czechoslovakia, where they would then raise as much hell as possible for the shabby, time-serving Communist government in Prague.

The imagination has to be considerably stretched to picture the peaceable Allen Dulles carrying out any such scheme as this. But the imagination is not even needed to picture the consequences of this kind of serious attempt to give meaning to the "liberation" policy.

The entire American press, with its most respectable, anti-Communist elements in the lead, would be in full cry against such "flagrant aggression." The Senate would be exploding at quarter-hour intervals. The British Labor party would have reached the stage of public apoplexy. Dag Hammarskjold and the U.N. Secretariat would be running round in circles, barking like self-righteous dogs. Most important of all, the Kremlin would be getting ready to go to war.

Yet a much worse case has now occurred in Laos, beyond any possibility of argument except by the type of English and French officials who remain in Vientiana, a couple of hundred miles from the front, and discount all reports from that uncomfortable area because the reports necessarily come from "natives." In the first instance, on July 15 to 18, something like five battalions of pro-Communist Lao refugees, trained and armed in North Vietnam, were seen across the frontier by regular units of the North Vietnamese army. The latter then retired.

A great deal of nonsense has been and is being written about the consequences of this first attack. The country attacked was small, primitive, and had been left divided by the Geneva partition of Indochina sponsored by the U. S. government in 1954. The northern provinces of Laos were then Communist-occupied. Only a little more than a year ago, Laos still had a mixed government in which Communists were the dominant figures.

In these circumstances, it was extraordinary that little Laos, on the very brink of final disaster, abruptly organized a government of national independence. It would have been downright miraculous if Laos had also been able to root out all Communist infiltration in the remote villages. It would have been super-miraculous for Laos to train a fully efficient modern army in about fourteen months. The Laos army has no more than twenty-five battalions, which were already fully occupied in July with the remaining internal Communist underground. In July the Communist high command unquestionably expected that five battalions of border-crossess would be enough to tilt the balance and thus spell the end of Laos.

Despite the odds on success, the first Communist operation quite largely failed. The northern provinces of Phony Saly and Samneua did not rapidly give in. The carefully coordinated guerilla attack in the rest of the country did not attain its aims. Hence on August 30, as first reported by this correspondent, the Communists launched another invasion that was really massive by Lao standards.

Two additional Communist battalions drove into Phong Saly, where the original invaders had been all but routed. At least seven battalions drove into Samneua, where the government forces were just going over to the offensive. The new invaders from North Vietnam, moreover, were not just Lao Communist refugees. The Lao refugees were a small element, compared to guerilla trained tribespeople of North Vietnamese origin. In all the new invading battalions, at least at the outset, the stiffening was also supplied by regulars of the North Vietnamese Communist army.

The parallel with the imagined Czechoslovak case is exact, except that Laos was immeasurably more vulnerable and the Communist aggression was immeasurably more naked than the supposed aggression organized by Allen Dulles.

But instead of running round in circles, self-righteously barking, Dag Hammarskjold is wearing that judicial, doubting air which he reserves for Communist aggressions. More important, instead of ordering mobilization, as the Kremlin would be doing if Czechoslovakia had suffered this sort of incursion, the White House is ironing its best linen and polishing its new-bought vodka glasses in preparation for a jolly weekend visit from Nikita S. Khrushchev.

Inside Washington

By Henry Cathcart

JUVENILE DELINQUENCY—Summer time appears to have become delinquency time in many parts of the United States, particularly some of the larger cities. Washington, for instance, has suffered a wave of serious attacks and thefts in recent weeks.

The public blames it on lax police methods. However, the cops seem to have the real answer. They claim they are understaffed to handle the thousands of youths who are free from the disciplines of school, are unemployed and have insufficient organized recreational activities to occupy themselves.

The cops say two things will bring the juvenile delinquency rate down—more policemen on the beats, and the reopening of school.

Some Tension Normal; Worry Can Kill You

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Worry is a health hazard because it affects the circulatory, glandular, and nervous systems. Dr. Charles Mayo once said he never knew a man who died from overwork but he knew many who died from doubt and apprehension. In addition, life is shortened by fear.

Tension is essential to living. It keeps us on guard when our safety, well-being, happiness, or self-esteem are threatened. In this respect anxiety is normal and can be expected from time to time. No one enjoys tension but it's here to stay.

On the other hand, be on guard when these emotional upsets occur too often, persist, or interfere with everyday living. Most of these troublesome reactions concern minor problems and small disappointments. It is surprising how often we worry about something that never happens.

Those bothered most are men and women who are unsatisfied with the ordinary pleasures of life; they are always looking for something out of this world. These people are suspicious and do not get along with others. The majority suffer from self-doubt.

Most worries can be banished by talking them over with someone. It is best to get to the source of the trouble. Give in or apologize when wrong instead of acting like a defiant, frustrated child. Go easy with criticism of others: concentrate on their good points and help develop them. Giving the other fellow a break often makes things easier for you.

Those in the habit of responding to frustration by anger should discipline themselves to wait 24 hours before retaliating. Meanwhile, work it off by doing something physical. When tension at the office or plant becomes unbearable, consider what is happening. Unload the unimportant duties and then tackle the more important problems one at a time.

(Dr. Van Dellen will send a list of books on mental hygiene, if stamped, addressed envelope accompanies request).

I'M MISQUOTED

F. S. writes: Someone said you were against exercise except walking. Is this a correct statement?

REPLY

No, in my opinion, everyone ought to exercise, within the limits of his physical condition. A young, healthy person should remain active as long as possible in noncompetitive sports such as golf, swimming, tennis, and hiking. It is better for the oldster to avoid strenuous exercise. For him, walking is excellent. What I object to is a 45 year old man who suddenly decides to become a weekend athlete. Perhaps this is what you had in mind.

CANCER RADIATION

Mrs. M. writes: Years ago, when I was a practicing nurse, radium was used freely in cancer. But now you hear only about X-ray. Is radium out of date?

REPLY

No, but it is getting strong competition from high voltage X-ray and radioactive isotopes, including the cobalt bomb.

GURGLING FROM LUNGS

W. P. writes: What causes bubbles in the lungs?

REPLY

The bubbles represent frothy sputum and serum that originate in the lungs. They usually stem from pneumonia or congestion from heart trouble.

HARD WATER

S. L. writes: Can drinking hard water for a number of years cause calcium deposits in the joints?

REPLY

No. The majority of chemicals in hard water are not absorbed.

DAMMED TUBES

L. M. writes: What would cause blocked eustachian tubes, lasting five months?

REPLY

Swelling due to infection.

CORN OIL

H. C. writes: Can a person with gallstones take corn oil for hardening of the arteries without getting a gall bladder attack?

REPLY

Yes, if he is lucky. On the other hand, if you want your corn oil and eat it, too, why not have your gall bladder removed?

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Try And Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

Night club comics — especially ones who rattle off punch lines at the rate of three a minute — know that some of their "quickies" will fall flat. If too many gags "lay an egg," they have covering sallies tucked away in the back of their heads to cover their embarrassment. One device is to blame the writer of their material, another to start picking on some prominent customer at a ringside table. Milton Berle, Joe E. Lewis, Henny Youngman and George Jesel excel at this sort of "ad lib" give-and-take with unenthusiastic audiences.

Gene Baylos recently pulled a new one that broke the ice at a Beverly Hills night club. After four successive sallies earned him nothing more than a few scattered titters, he suddenly turned serious and asked the customers, "Did you ever have the feeling you were walking up a gangplank and there was no ship there?" His listeners must indeed have known what he meant, because from then on his act went over with a bang.

Relations Between Red China And Russia Face Serious Difficulties

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — The biggest question mark as Nikita Khrushchev prepares to visit the United States is whether he is behind the civil war in Laos or whether his Red colleagues in China are deliberately stirring up trouble in order to embarrass him.

I don't know the answer. And I doubt if any of our diplomats do. They know that last year the Chinese Communists so vigorously objected to Khrushchev's coming to New York for the UN Assembly that he called off the trip and went to pacify them in Peiping instead. They also knew that Peiping long chafed over Moscow's continued recognition of Nationalist China and has been suspicious that Khrushchev may become too friendly with the West. But beyond that they don't know—and I don't know—the answer regarding Laos.

But what I do know is that I have traveled along much of the vast border between China and Russia—one of the longest in the world—and I know something of the push of population on one side and the emptiness of population on the other. And when you have 600,000,000 people squeezed into China, looking at the rolling fertile steppes of Siberia lying empty just beyond, then you are likely to have deep-rooted, almost permanent trouble.

Actually that trouble has been permanent. It dates back to Genghis Khan and the Mongols who came out of the crowded Orient to ride their ponies across the grasslands of Russia as far as Poland. Invasion after invasion, beginning with the 12th Century, has swept from China and Mongolia across Russia, and no government in Moscow, whether Communist or Czarist, can shut its eyes to the possibility that this may happen again.

That's why, when in the satellite countries last year, I heard the wisecrack: "Thank God for Russia as a buffer state between us and China."

Red Arms To China

When you cross the Gobi Desert between China and outer Mongolia you don't go by camel any more. A camel caravan takes 30 to 40 days, an automobile four to five days, depending on the rain and how many times you get stuck in the mud. For it does rain on the Gobi Desert, and there are no roads. It's so flat in most places, however, that a thousand cars can travel abreast.

Driving over the Gobi in 1925 I met and managed to photograph a caravan of Buicks carrying the first shipment of Russian arms into China. They were consigned to Feng Yu-hsiang, the Christian general, who was no more a Communist than is Chiang Kai-shek. But he was getting Russian arms for use against his rival war lords.

In South China a month later, our boat had to run the gantlet of Chiang Kai-shek's fort at Whampoa on the Pearl River where his troops were Russian-armed and Russian-trained. Chiang has now holed up in Formosa as the last remaining Chinese opponent to communism.

He too was never any more Communist than Feng, the Christian general. But he was using Communist arms in the same way most Chinese will use any weapon or any expedient for their own purposes; just as Mao Tse-tung, present ruler of Red China, will use Moscow for his own purpose until it suits him to do otherwise.

Underdeveloped Prairies

On another occasion, in 1922, I sailed up the Amur River through a long stretch of Siberia. Every year as winter begins to close down on Siberia and the river boats make their last trip before the river freezes, Russian women wait on the docks pleading for a chance to share a cabin with any man who will pay their way to warmer Manchuria.

It's a week's slow cruise up a river that's about as long as the Mississippi, through prairies as rich and empty as those of our middle west before the western trek of our ancestors. An occasional fishing village broke the monotony, or a cluster of woodcutters' shacks from which the crew loaded endless cords of wood for the boat's insatiable boilers.

But for a week there was almost no sign of human life. Then you come to Khabarovsk, a pioneer city of log cabins and slab sidewalks, exactly like the old lumber cities of the Oregon coast.

But Khabarovsk is still cold and I pushed on up the Sungari River, again by boat, to Harbin, metropolis of north Manchuria. There, after another four days of river cruising, I suddenly burst out upon a teeming, pulsating city — rickshas, theatres, restaurants, teahouses, crowded streets, humanity rubbing shoulders with each other. This is China. And the contrast between that vigorous, crowded city of Harbin and the drab and lonely cities of Siberia still haunts anyone who has been there.

Things have changed somewhat since I was last in the Far East. Siberia has added more population. Modern cities have sprung up. But the ratio of population has not changed. In fact, the density of population in China has increased considerably more than the density in Siberia. China has increased by 200,000,000 people in 30 years. The total population of Russia and Siberia now equals only the amount of China's increase — 200,000,000.

And as long as you have 600,000,000 people in one country and the greatest, most fertile land mass in the world alongside it, relatively empty, then you are not going to have a smooth and happy permanent partnership between China and Russia.

That is a point which critics of President Eisenhower should bear in mind as he prepares for Khrushchev's arrival in Washington.

Why The Hullabaloo?

By Leslie Gould

NEW YORK—The only mystery as to the tight money or credit crisis is why the hullabaloo in Congress.

There is no mystery as to why money rates are high and credit tight. It stems from:

1. Failure of the U. S. Treasury six and eight years ago to switch a major portion of the federal debt into long-term-securities. That was a colossal blunder. The Government could borrow then at 2½ per cent and money was plentiful. It didn't and now it can't borrow at the legal limit of 4¼ percent.

2. The wage-price spiral which has put up the cost of everything, and thus making for a greater need for credit.

3. The continued deficit spending by the federal, state and local governments. Some of this is due to the inflation in the cost of services governments provide as well as in the cost of things they buy.

4. The business boom with the heavier demand for credit by business and consumers.

5. The slowdown in recent months in the rate of savings. This should be a cause of real concern, but it doesn't seem to be bothering Congress.

Tight money and more costly credit are due to a demand beyond the supply. The reason that the rate of savings has been falling off is because there has been less incentive to save—fear of inflation, the appeal of quicker profits in the stock market or real estate, and more reckless spending by everyone.

The Treasury is a victim of this, with the cashing in of the savings "E" and "H" bond excedeing sales for some time. The buyer of savings bonds for years has been penalized for his thrift. The Government-particularly the Congress—has failed to check the inflation and at the same time has kept an unrealistic interest rate on the bonds.

This is now to be changed under a bill before Congress, but even the promised new 3¾ percent rate—against the present 3¼ percent—is inadequate. A person can do better with a savings bank or a federally insured building and loan.

The Treasury must do roughly $87 billion in financing in the next 12 months, most of this refinancing short-term and other maturing securities. So, it will have to compete with borrowers for money, and it will have to pay the going rate—whether Congress says so or not.

If Congress fails to raise the interest ceiling on the Government bonds, the Treasury will have to sell bonds bearing the "official-Congress fixed" ceiling at a discount.

The danger in the tight money is that it will make credit so difficult, particularly for new homes, that it will slow down the business boom. Another threat to the boom is the continuance of the steel strike beynod October 1. This is worrying the stock market currently.

You're Telling Me!

By William Ritt

A rash of sunspot activity is reported by astronomers. Things have been so hot here lately that even Old Sol appears to be breaking out with new freckles.

Latest census figures show Tokyo is the world's largest city, population-wise. However, there's no argument New York is the tallest.

By TED TROXELL

Bill Hahn is no longer on the football scene at Fort Hill High School, but the Sentinel gridders apparently have no intentions of discontinuing the winning tradition he established during his long reign there. This fact is attested by the 39-6 victory the Fort Hillians rolled up over a spirit-lacking LaSalle eleven last night at the Stadium.

A crowd estimated at 5,000 sat in on the intra-city opener and for the first two periods saw a fairly even-contested battle. Fort Hill, however, cracked the game wide open in the third period by tallying four touchdowns to make the coaching debut of Charlie Lattimer a highly successful one.

Lattimer is an ex-Fort Hill athlete and later played football at the University of Maryland. His coaching opponent in last night's tussle, Don Harden, was serving in the "driver's seat" at LaSalle for the first time, having moved up from the assistant's post following the resignation of Norm Geatz.

The victory was Fort Hill's 24th in a row over the Explorers and also marked the 21st consecutive game in which the Sentinels have not tasted defeat.

Rush For 354 Yards

The Sentinels displayed an explosive ground attack, as they picked up a net total of 354 yards in 30 rushing attempts. Only twice during the entire game did the Red Raiders take to the air, with one of the aerials finding its mark for a seven-yard gain.

Senior quarterback Kenny Boggs, who played in the shadow of the illustrious Charlie Robinson last season, handled the signal-calling duties like a veteran. Time and again Boggs handed off to his well-organized backfield mates with amazing deceptiveness, and the Fort Hill forward wall ripped huge holes in the weak LaSalle defense to spring the Sentinel backs for long runs.

Five of the winners' TDs came as the result of dashes from scrimmage of 48 (twice), 33, 32, and 14 yards, while the sixth was picked up on a 60-yard punt return by Jerry Bell.

Speir Runs 65 Yards

Frank Robinson, brother of the aforementioned Charlie who is performing for the University of Pittsburgh freshmen this season, picked up the first six-pointer of the ball game when he romped home from 14 yards out. A 65-yard run on a quick opener by LaSalle's Ron Speir tied the game moments later, but Robinson came right back with the tie-breaker when he again sprinted around left end for a touchdown, this time for 32 yards.

Robinson scored his third touchdown in the third period on a 48-yard scamper, and was joined in the scoring column by Bell, and Delbert Helmick and Joe DiNicola, who countered on runs of 48 and 33 yards, respectively.

A check of the first half statistics shows that Fort Hill held only a slight edge in the various offensive departments. The Explorers matched their opponents in first downs with seven. The Sentinels registered a net total of 138 yards rushing to LaSalle's 113 in the first two periods, but the latter club showed a minus-16 effort in the second half, which for them proved to be disastrous.

Completes Six Passes

Quarterback Carroll Wilt was snowed under repeatedly by the hard-charging Fort Hill line as the Explorer linemen afforded him little protection. When the slender junior did manage to get his passes off, he was able to find his target with regularity, completing six of eight passes for 45 yards.

Frostburg Native Chalks Up First Major League Win

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Jack Fisher, 20-year-old Baltimore Oriole rookie, hurled his first major league victory Friday night, a three-hit 3-0 shutout over the league-leading Chicago White Sox in the first game of a twi-night doubleheader.

It was also Fisher's first complete major league game.

Fisher had a perfect game going for 6 1-3 innings when Nellie Fox rammed a line drive single to left. In the ninth, Al Smith opened the frame with a clean single and pinch hitter Earl Torgeson was credited with a hit when his bounder struck Smith running for second.

Fisher fanned three and walked but one, Sherm Lollar in the eighth.

Fisher was born in Frostburg, Md., but is now a resident of Augusta, Ga. He was signed by the Orioles in 1957 and had an 0-5 record with Knoxville of the Southern Assn. He was 0-2 last year with the Smokies before going to Wilson of the Class B Caroline League.

This year he worked with the Orioles in spring training and was sent to Miami of the International League where he had an 8-4 record before being recalled in June. He has been in 23 games with Baltimore this year, starting five and is credited with two saves. He went into Friday night's game with a 3.43 ERA.

The victory raised Fisher's record to 1-4. Billy Pierce, White Sox southpaw, was the victim of Fisher's masterpiece, dropping his 14th decision against 13 victories.

Home runs by Bob Nieman in the third, his 20th, and Willie Tasby, in the seventh, his 12th, gave the Orioles two of their three runs. The other came in the sixth on back-to-back doubles by Walt Dropo and Gus Triandos.

Athletics Break Losing Streak

BOSTON (UPI) — Rookie Lou Klimchock, playing his second major league game, touched off a six-run rally in the sixth inning Friday night that enabled the Kansas City Athletics to snap a 13-game losing streak and beat the Boston Red Sox 8-6.

Coming to bat with the bases loaded on three singles, the 19-year-old second baseman smashed a two-run double to right field, missing a homer by inches, to send the A's ahead 3-2. Klimchock had singled in the fourth.

Senators Beat Cleveland, 5-4

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The one-two punch of Pedro Ramos and Julio Becquer proved too much for the Cleveland Indians who blew another golden chance to gain on the first-place White Sox by losing to the Washington Senators, 5-4, Friday night.

Ramos went all the way to gain his 13th victory of the year and helped his own cause by belting his first homer of the season and second of his major league career.

His Cuban countryman, Becquer, pinch-hitter extraordinary, was called in to bat for rookie John Schaive in the eighth with John Romonosky on second.

Mike Garcia, who took over the Cleveland pitching in the eighth, opened the inning by walking Roy Sievers. Romonosky ran for Sievers and was sacrificed to second. When the left-handed Becquer came in to bat for Shaive, Cleveland Manager Joe Gordon replaced Garcia with southpaw Jack Harshman. But Becquer threw percentages out of the window by lining the first pitch to center for a single scoring Romonosky with the tie-breaker.

Milwaukee Tops Cincinnati, 10-2

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — The Milwaukee Braves scored early and often Friday night and didn't need a late inning hero to beat the Cincinnati Reds 10-2 for their sixth victory.

The defending champion Braves scored seven times in the first two innings, knocking out starter Jay Hook in the first inning with a five-run outburst. They got their last three in the eighth inning on Lee Maye's second homer of the season. Milwaukee pitcher Joey Jay, shaking off a bad first inning, allowed the Reds only four hits in winning his fifth game against 10 setbacks.

This contrasted with the last two Milwaukee victories in which the Braves had to come from behind on late inning heroics by Bobby Avila, with a grand slam homer in the ninth, and Hank Aaron, with a three-run double in the seventh.

The Reds got only three hits off Jay in the last eight innings, one of them Vada Pinson's 19th home run in the fifth inning.

Keep Close Eye Now On Your Hunting Dog

Keep on the alert for dog-nappers, warns the Gaines Dog Research Center, New York. From now on into the fall any dog resembling a hound or bird dog is a likely prospect for the "dog snatchers" who want a hunting dog for themselves or to peddle.

Organized rings of dog thieves get hold of hunting dogs and take them over state lines, out of local territories to distant points where they are sold to unscrupulous dealers who don't ask questions.

You can help strangle this nefarious practice by keeping your dog under your eye or, if you are in the market for a hunting dog, get the animal from a reliable and reputable seller. You may have to pay a higher price for your hunting dog, but when you purchase him from an honest kennel you are getting a good dog and are helping to wipe out an illegitimate trade. When you do get a hunting dog, tattoo him in the ear and on the inner side of the thigh. Keep a record of the number and use it in advertising the loss of the dog, should he be stolen or lost.

Scoring three touchdowns in the final period, Moorefield High School's Yellowjackets came from behind to defeat Southern High School in the opening game of the football season yesterday afternoon at Oakland. The score was 25-7.

The Highlanders, making their first start under the new coach Earl Adolphson, held a 7-6 lead going into the final period when the West Virginians, coached by George Hott, pulled the game out of the fire with a 19-point rally.

Carroll Turner picked up a fumble and galloped 18 yards for the first Moorefield touchdown in the final period. After Ralph Keller passed 32 yards to Bill Sherman on the Southern four, Keller ran off tackle for the score and Sherman plunged the point. Later in the final stanza, Bill Sherman returned a punt from Southern's 45 to 23 and after the Jackets had reeled off a first down on the 11, Sherman skirted right end from the four for the final 6-pointer. His placement kick was blocked.

Moorefield's initial touchdown of the game came in the second period when Forrest Bar snared a fumble on the Southern 35 and ran 65 yards to paydirt. Sherman's kick for the point was low.

Southern took the lead in the final period when Bill Duling went around right end for 55 yards and a touchdown and Terry Colaw ran the extra point. The lineups:

Ortega Upset By Fernandez

Cuban Is Victor At Miami Beach

MIAMI BEACH (UPI)—Cuba's undefeated Florentino Fernandez scored an upset unanimous decision over seasoned Gaspar Ortega of Mexico, whom he floored twice in a nationally-televised 10-rounder Friday night.

Ortega, weighing 145¾ pounds, went to his knees for a mandatory eight-count in the first round and again fell before Fernandez' blows in the fourth round for a nine-count.

Even without the knockdowns, Fernandez, fighting in only his 21st pro bout, most likely would have won on his superior punching.

Referee Cy Gottfried scored the bout 97-90 for Fernandez, while judge Gus Jacobson marked it 97-91 and judge Fred Aaronson scored it 96-[illegible] for the winner. The United Press International scorecard also favored the Cuban, 97-93.

Coach Ed Schwarz's Allegany High School Campers celebrated the opening of the football season last night by beating the Beall High School Mountaineers under the arcs in the Mountain City by the score of 20-0.

Bob Gaffney accounted for two of Allegany's three touchdowns while Wayne Shook registered the third.

Gaffney tallied early in the second period on a ten-yard run and later in the same period he sprinted 25 yards for the second six-pointer.

A 35-yard gallop by Shook produced the final touchdown in the last period.

Charles Aronholt kicked both extra points for the Campers.

Beall was limited to two first downs, both coming in the final half while Allegany rolled up a total of 12.

Gary Mulligan, Allegany quarterback, excelled with his passing; Seldon Harris, end, starred offensively and defensively, and Robert Wharton, guard, stood out on defense.

Walker Beats Chicago, 1-0

Birds Win Second Game In 16th Frame

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Rookie Jerry Walker yielded only six hits in pitching the Baltimore Orioles to a 16-inning 1-0 victory over the Chicago White Sox Friday night after Jack Fisher shut out the league leaders, 3-0, with a three-hitter in the opener of a twi-night double-header.

Brooks Robinson broke up the marathon nightcap when he drove in the only run of the game with a two-out line single off Gerry Staley, who relieved Chicago starter Barry Latman in the 10th.

The two losses cut the White Sox' lead to four games over the second-place Indians, who lost a chance to gain even more ground by dropping a 5-4 decision to the Senators.

Walker (11-8) faced only 21 batters over the last seven innings of the second game. It was the sixth extra-inning game between these two clubs this year. In fact, it was a replay of an 18-inning 1-1 tie here Aug. 6.

Dodgers Whip Buccos' Face

Elroy's Win Streak Is Shattered, 5-4

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The Los Angeles Dodgers came from behind in the bottom of the ninth inning Friday night to defeat the Pittsburgh Pirates and hand Elroy Face his first loss of the season, 5-4, in the first game of a twi-night double-header.

Trailing 4-3, shortstop Maury Wills led off the ninth with a single, advanced on a sacrifice and scored the tieing run on Jim Gilliam's triple. Charlie Neal drove in Gilliam by singling in the winning run.

For Face, it was his first defeat after 17 victories this season, in addition to being undefeated since May, 1958.

Roman Mejias had put the Pirates ahead, 4-2, in the top of the eighth when he homered with Dick Stuart on first base. Wally Moon, however, hit his second homer of the game in the bottom of the eighth to close the gap to 4-3 and put the Dodgers within striking distance in the final frame. Stuart also had homered in the sixth.

Neither starting pitcher was on hand for the final 2 1-3 innings.

Dodger reliefer Chuck Churn, who took the place of Sandy Koufax, was the winner to make his season's mark 2-0, with Face the loser in backing up Pirate starter Bob Friend.

County, City Officials Protest Transfer Of Race Meeting

Gov. Tawes To Receive Complaint

Fair Association Given Authority To Transfer Meet

The Allegany County Board of Commissioners and the Mayor and City Council of Cumberland last night joined forces in protesting the action of the State Racing Commission in suddenly moving the Cumberland 12-day horse race meeting to Hagerstown starting Monday.

Both protests will be directed to Governor J. Millard Tawes.

Cumberland originally was scheduled for the meet starting September 14 and ending September 26. Hagerstown was booked for the following 12 days, from September 28 through October 10. As a result of the last minute switch Hagerstown will have 24 days of racing.

In directing their protest to Governor Tawes, the city and county officials pointed to the economic effect to the area of the abrupt switch. It will mean a considerable financial loss to many local business firms including the breweries, bakeries, hotels, motels and restaurants.

The State Racing Commission said that the switch to Hagerstown, located within a 25-mile radius of Charles Town, W.Va., where two tracks now operate, was necessary because of the inability to obtain enough horses for the meet here.

Gets Transfer Authority

Harry J. Barton, general manager of the Cumberland Fair Association, yesterday received a telegram signed by R. Bruce Livie, chairman of the Maryland Racing Commission, which the commission grants the local association authority to transfer its meets to another track, preferably Hagerstown, where there is no scarcity of horses.

The telegram was worded as follows:

"The Racing Commission has been very much concerned during the past several days by reports from track officials of the scarcity of horses in the Cumberland area, due primarily to the competition of the West Virginia tracks.

"This presents a serious threat to the successful operation of your approaching meet. A special meeting of the commission was held today and the entire situation was thoroughly discussed. The commission was informed at the meeting that it has been definitely determined that the number of horses available to your association for the approaching meet is insufficient to support a full program of eight races of six or more entries.

"The commission is anxious that Cumberland hold its meeting and therefore suggests that it be conducted at another track of your selection. It had been suggested that Hagerstown might be available where there is no scarcity of horses.

"In order that you may facilitate this transfer immediately, the commission, by formal resolution, granted you the authority to transfer your meeting to another track. This authority is extended under section 15, sub section B, of Article 78 B, Maryland Racing Laws."

Advised Too Late

General Manager Barton yesterday said that if J. Fred Colwill had advised him ten days earlier that there would be a shortage of horses for the Cumberland meeting he would have had stables van in thoroughbreds from Ohio tracks as he did in 1955. Four years ago there was a scarcity of horses prior to the opening of the Fairgo session and Barton immediately contacted Ohio tracks. Over 200 thoroughbreds were sent here and the meet went on.

"We were criticized by a few for the type of horses that were vanned here but we felt if these horses were good enough for people in Cleveland and other Ohio communities they were satisfactory for us at Cumberland," Barton declared.

Mr. Barton stated that in 1955 most of the horses came from Randall and Ascot Park and others were sent from Wheeling, W. Va.

"Colwill led us to believe there would be plenty of horses available for the race meeting here," Barton said. "Then at 3 p. m. on Thursday he did an about face and advised us there would not be enough horses at Fairgo to conduct a 12-day meeting."

In notching his 12th victory, against 10 losses, Anderson struck out five and walked two.

The Cubs scored the winning run in the ninth when reliever Marshall Bridges uncorked a wild pitch to Art Schult, allowing Banks to race home from third.

Coates Hurls Yanks To Win Over Detroit

Maxwell Belts Pair As Tigers Lose, 9-3

NEW YORK (UPI) — Jim Coates pitched the first complete game of his major league career and Bobby Richardson drove in four runs Friday in leading the New York Yankees to a 9-3 victory over the Detroit Tigers.

The triumph gave the Yankees a game and one-half lead in their battle for third place with the Tigers.

Charley Maxwell accounted for two of the Detroit runs with his 29th and 30th homers, establishing a new club record for a left-handed hitter. Maxwell broke his own team recor of 28. In addition, he became the first Detroit batter to hit that many homers since Hank Greenberg walloped 34 in 1946.

The two homers by Maxwell boosted the Tigers' team total for the season to 152, an all-time club record.

Coates scattered 10 hits as he registered his fifth victory and third in succession.

The Yankees scored in clusters of two runs four times, with Richardson having a hand in each of the scoring innings. The little second baseman hit three singles and his second major league home run.

Paul Foytack, in absorbing his 13th defeat, was hammered for seven hits and six runs in four innings. Richardson's leadoff single in the opening inning touched off the Yankees' first two - run outburst and his homer with a mate aboard in the fourth accounted for two more. He singled home runs in the sixth and seventh innings.

FOREST HILLS, (UPI) — The 1959 U. S. tennis championships rate as just about the dullest in the 79-year history of the event. . . the villian is Jack Kramer but if it weren't Kramer it would be some other pro promoter who "stole" the amateur stars off the top of the deck and made them professionals.

Even Kramer sees the danger signs. . ."I'll never again take out two big amateur players (like Mal Anderson and Ashley Cooper of Australia this year) in any one season," says Jack. . ."I owe that much to the amateur game."

But the damage is done. . .the top "old" players already are pros and the promising youngsters still aren't ready for greatness.

Have Service Troubles

Barry MacKay of Dayton, Ohio, and Earl (Butch) Buchholz of St. Louis only seeded Americans in the tournament, both have troubles with their service, the difficulties being exactly opposite . . .MacKay refuses to put more spin on his serve to gain control at the expense of speed. . Butch puts so much spin on his he can't generate the necessary speed to hit the ball past a first class player.

Only a few big-timers wear coverings on the court to shade their eyes from the sun. . .Aussie Rod Laver wears a floppy white hat in the "sun court," Karol Fageros of Miami wears a white baseball-style cap and teen-ager Nancy Richey of San Agelo, Tex., wears the type of sunshade popularized in the late 1920's by Helen Willis Moody. . .that's about it.

Grass courts are so chopped up after the Davis Cup and early sessions of the U. S. title chase that smart coaches have ordered their players to hit every ball they can on the fly so it won't have a chance to hit the court and take a crazy bounce. . .and in the clutch, some of the really smart players whack a wicked chop shot with underspin right into the worst divot patches, hoping the ball won't bounce at all.

Halted By Rain

Officials have a direct wire to New York Weather Bureau to keep tabs on the nearest rain clouds. . . at 3:20 p.m. Wednesday the weatherman said there isn't any rain within miles. . .five minutes later the matches were halted for an hour by a downpour.

Lots of left-handers this year. . . Neale Fraser and Rod Laver of Australia, Bernard Bartzen of San Angelo, Tex., Ann Haydon of England, Justina Bricka of St. Louis, among them.

Men players use racquets averaging 14½ ounces in weight. . . Alex Olmedo of Peru goes for 14 ⅞ ounces, considered heavy. . . girls range from 14 ounces down. Old timers recall Bill Tilden always carried seven racquets onto the court and it wasn't just for effect, either. . .each was different, either in the tightness of the stringing or in distribution of weight. . .he used to keep changing racquets during warm-up periods with an opponent, "tuning himself in" with the proper equipment for the afternoon.

Such science, alas, is lost on today's big serve and smash brigade.

Reach Semi-Finals In National Tennis

By WILL GRIMSLEY
Associated Press Sporss Writer

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP)—A pair of giant - killers, Bernard (Tut) Bartzen of Dallas and Ron Holmberg of Brooklyn, smashed into the semifinals of the National Tennis Championships Friday along with the top-seeded favorites, Peruvian Alex Olmedo and Australia's Neale Fraser.

Bartzen, 31, a relentless little retriever who is the country's best on clay, took the sting out of Barry MacKay's power-laden service and upset the third-seeded Davis Cup ace from Dayton, Ohio, 6-3, 6-4, 6-4. Holmberg, a hard-hitting 21-year-old college senior, won over fourth-seeded Rod Laver of Australia 6-8, 7-5, 6-0, 6-3.

These surprise reverses spoiled a renewal of the eecent Davis Cup challenge round as the two star members of that cast, Olmedo and Fraeer, won easily.

Olmedo, spurred to fresh heights by the presence of his father from far-off Arequipa, Peru, played spectacularly in erasing Roy Emerson of the Australian Davis Cup team, 6-4, 3-6, 6-2, 6-3.

Fraser, individual hero of Australia's recovery of the Davis Cup, played at top form in ousting the formidable Luis Ayala of Chile, who had beaten him twice previously onclay, 6-3, 6-4, 6-3.

In Saturday's semifinals Olmedo will play Holmberg and Fraser will take on Bartzen in a battle of lefthanders.

The women's division saw the advance of thee outsiders — Wimbledon champion Maria Bueno of Brazil, Britain's Christine Truman and Ann Haydon — and a lone American hope, Darlene Hard of Montebello, Calif.

HE'S NOT-SO-LITTLE JOE, NOW—Joe DiMaggio, Jr., son of the former Yankee great, is becoming quite a big boy now. The youngster, soon to be 18, is shown with his mother, actress Dorothy Arnold, divorced wife of Joe, Sr., as they enjoyed a supper club show in Las Vegas, Nev.

Johnson To Take Pastrano's Place

BALTIMORE, Md. (UPI) — Heavyweight contender Alonzo Johnson replaced injured Willie Pastrano Friday as an opponent for Tony Anthony in next Friday night's television fight at the Baltimore Coliseum.

Pastrano of Miami Beach, Fla., withdrew because of a torn cartilege in his left knee, suffered in training. Dr. Stanley Weinkle of Miami Beach advised the withdrawal.

Johnson, of Braddock, Pa., is ranked 10th among heavyweight contenders. Anthony of New York, is ranked fifth among light heavyweight contenders.

Northern High And Meyersdale To Meet Today

Hancock To Host Berkeley Springs

Northern High School's Huskies of Garrett County will open their 1959 football campaign at home today, playing host to Meyersdale (Pa.) High School.

The Huskies started football in 1955 and this will be their fifth straight season under Coach Denver Mitchell. Northern's four-year record is 14-10-2.

Coach Allen Goldstrom's Berkeley Springs High School Indians, defeated last week in the opener by Romney, will tackle Hancock High School today at Hancock.

Paul Imphong begins his third year at the helm in Hancock. His teams have won four and lost 12. Coach Goldstrom's teams have won 10 and lost eight in two years.

Other games today find South Hagerstown's Rebels at Waynesboro, Pa., and Frederick High's Cadets at Howard County High School at Ellicott City. The latter is a day game and is scheduled for 2 p.m.

Shoot 3-Under-Par 67s In Dallas Open

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF

DALLAS (AP)—Pudy Bob Rosburg, who complains even when he's ahead, and Bo Wininger, who never beefs about anything, shot 3-under-par 67's Friday to tie for the first round lead in the $25,000 Dallas Open.

Rosburg, the bespectacled national PGA king from Palo Alto, Calif., said he thought the 6,744-yard Oak Cliff Country Club course had some unfair holes and that he was able to shoot so well because his putter was accurate as usual.

Wininger, a graying young man from Odessa, Tex., was continuing the hot golf he showed Thursday in leading a pro-amateur. Wininger had a 63 to set a competitive course record then.

It was a day for the favorites to falter, especially Sam Snead, the two-time defending champion. The old slammer from White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., had a 74 when his putting was erratic and he took a double bogey 6 on 18 by hitting a tree and missing his putt.

Ben Hogan, the other fabulous name in the field, also had a 74 and he took double-bogeyed 18 when he drove into a ditch. The little man from Fort Worth did get an eagle 3 on 14.

Enos Slaughter Sold To Milwaukee Braves

Yankees "Old Pro" Goes To Braves In Straight Cash Deal

NEW YORK (UPI) — Enos (Country) Slaughter, the hustling 43-year-old "old pro" of 22 major league seasons, was sold to the pennant - contending Milwaukee Braves Friday by the New York Yankees.

The Yankees announced it was a straight cash deal in which the seven other American League clubs and the five clubs below the Braves in the National League standings waived on him.

Slaughter, who was notified of his transfer immediately after Friday's game with the Detroit Tigers, thus returns to the National League, where he originally broke into the majors with the St. Louis Cardinals in 1938.

The left-handed hitting veteran appeared in 74 games with the Yankees this season, chiefly as a pinch-hitter. He had 17 hits in 99 at-bats for a .172 average.

Lifetime Mark .299

For 22 seasons in the majors, Slaughter has a lifetime batting average of .299.

Slaughter, obviously shaken at the news, indicated he would report to the Braves as soon as possible. But he would not be eligible to play in the World Series should Milwaukee win the National League pennant.

Casey Stengel broke the news to Slaughter personally in his private office at Yankee Stadium. "I want to thank you for all you've done and wish you the best of luck with Milwaukee," Stengel said.

Stengel had explained previously that he always had a "soft spot" in his heart for Slaughter. One of the reasons might have been the fact that Slaughter wrote Stengel a letter after he first was traded away from the Yankees and thanked Casey for the opportunity he gave him with the Yankees.

Hit .304 Last Year

Slaughter enjoyed his best year in the majors with the Cards in 1949 when he batted .336. He hit .304 in 77 games with the Yankees last season. He has appeared in five World Series, two with the Cards and three with the Yankees.

Mt. Savage, Centerville Scene Of Pen-Mar Tilts

Barrelville Seeks 17 In Row; Barton Visits Moorefield

Action in the Pen-Mar Baseball League playoffs will resume Sunday in games at Mt. Savage and Centerville while Moorefield, W. Va., will be the scene of the opening games of a home-and-home series between the pennant winners of the Mountain State League and the Twilight League of Allegany County.

Barrelville's Old Exports will be striving to extend their winning streak to 17 games when they do battle with Mt. Savage on the latter's field in the second game of their best-of-three semi-final series.

Unbeaten Since June 14

Manager Raymond "Buck" Fiorita's club, unbeaten since June 14, took the first game of the series last Sunday by the score of 2-1 with Bobby Raines decisioning Jack Lowery in a mound duel. Raines, incidentally, has reeled off 12 consecutive wins and owns a season record of 13-1. Barrelville has beaten Mt. Savage five consecutive times this season, thrice via the shutout route. A victory for Barrelville tomorrow would put the Old Exports in the finals while a Mt. Savage win would extend the series to three games.

Hyndman's Merchants also could reach the finals if they sweep the Centerville series tomorrow. These teams engaged in a 1-0 thriller last Sunday with "Abe" See getting the decision over Glenn Deremer. The Reds hope to turn the tables at home tomorrow and extend the series the limit. Hyndman has beaten Centerville four times in five outings this season.

Both Pen-Mar League games will get under way at 2 p.m., EDT.

Barton at Moorefield

At Moorefield, the Barton Braves, who bagged their third straight pennant in the Twilight League, tackle the Moorefield All-Stars at 2 p.m., EST., on Sunday. Barton will be the scene of the second game of this home-and-home set on Sunday, September 20, at 2 p.m., EDT.

Moorefield took the Mountain State pennant with a 12-0 record while Barton won the regular season championship in the Twilight League with 25 wins and three losses.

Atlantic City's Richest Race Is Scheduled Today

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)—Twelve top 2 year olds were entered for the $100,000 Guaranteed World's Playground Stakes Saturday, richest race in the history of Atlantic City race course.

The 2 year olds will tackle the 7-furlong route for the first time, and there is no standout favorite in the field which includes winners of several big stakes. The Edgehill Farm's Bally Ache, to be ridden by Dave Erb, is one of three who were made supplementary nominees at a cost of $5,000 each. The others are C. Mahlon Kline's Conestoga and the Windfield Farm's Victoria Park. Bally Ache is the top money winning 2 year old with $190,961 in earnings.

WVU Varsity Wins Practice Game, 12-0

JACKSON'S MILL, W. Va. (UPI) — Halfback John Marra of Shinnston and fullback Tom Huston of Arlington, Va. scored touchdowns Friday to give the West Virginia varsity a 12-0 win over the Mountaineers second team in a practice scrimmage.

It was revenge for the varsity which dropped a 6-0 scrimmage session to the subs Thursday.

Marra, who was the running star of the 45-minute game-like affair, scored the first touchdown on a 40-yard run. Huston slashed off tackle for 11 yards and the second score.

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN: I've been a working mother for three years and I'm sick and tired of hearing people say how terrible it is to work and leave a young child at home. I've quit my job three times just to please my husband, but I almost went nuts and had to go back to save my sanity.

I feel better when I get up, get dressed and go to an office in the morning. I have to pay a housekeeper so I don't come out very far ahead financially, as my husband so often points out. But I'm not working for the money. It's a matter of doing what I enjoy.

Would I be better off to become a household drudge and a nervous wreck from being penned up with a 4-year-old all day? Your 20th Century opinion would be appreciated.

WORKING MOTHER

DEAR WORKING: My 20th Century opinion is that mothers of pre-school children should be at home unless it is essential that they work for financial reasons. Young children need a mother's presence. Just knowing she's there is important.

Your troubles are of a different nature, however. You are running away from home because you don't want to be a housewife and a mother. Something's wrong with your relationship with your husband and your child. I hope you'll check with a psychiatrist and try to get to the heart of the problem. Running away will solve nothing.

DEAR ANN: I plan to be married in October. My mother and dad have been divorced since I was 6 and I have no affection or respect for my father.

I definitely do not want my father to give me away at my wedding. Mother agrees this would be a mockery. She does feel, however, that I should ask one of my uncles.

I want to ask a dear friend of the family who has been wonderful to me through the years.

Please tell me if it would be proper to ask this family friend. Also would it be right to invite my father, but only as a guest?

GEORGIA

DEAR GEORGIA: It would be perfectly proper (and a high compliment) to ask the family friend. This would also eliminate the sticky problem of WHICH uncle to select. By all means, invite your father — as a guest.

DEAR ANN: The letter in your column from the widow who was married late in life to an elderly widower made me stop and think about something rather somber but important.

The woman who wrote wanted to know if her husband should be buried in the family plot, beside the woman to whom he'd been married for 45 years, or should he be buried next to her — his present wife.

My problem is even thornier. I feel my husband should be buried beside his first wife and I should be buried beside my first husband. But what name should I be buried under? How should the headstone read?

MRS. Z.

DEAR MRS. Z.: Your headstone should read Mary Brown (first husband's name) White (second husband's name).

CONFIDENTIAL TO NEEDING AN ANSWER: If you and "The Rat" have children you must go under the name of Mrs. for the sake of the children.

DRAFT CALL 168

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—West Virginia's draft call for October—all to be taken into the Army—is 168, the adjutant general's office said Thursday. This is 30 higher than September.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD — The new 20th Century-Fox motion picture, "The Swift Season," starring Lee Remick, is made up of two novels—the first time this has ever happened. One is "Mud On The Stars," by William Bradford Huie, and the other is "Dunbar's Cove," by Borden Deal. Each is concerned with the same subject, the South's traditional sentiment, and the North's relentless progress.

Lee, who has been at the Venice Film Festival, goes right to work on wardrobe and script. The movie starts next month. She plays a southern girl in love with a northern engineer. Producer-Director Elia Kazan has been in Tennessee scouting locations. Yes, it will be made in the deep South.

There's a Foooooooord in Debbie Reynolds' future—a Ford TV spectacular, that is, as soon as she finishes her next three pictures, "The Gazebo," "Rat Race" and "The Pleasure of His Company."

This will be Debbie's first excursion into TV and she's playing it very safe. She'll have Dan Dailey and Mickey Rooney along with her in this NBC production—and you can't ask for better support than that. Not ask and get it, that is.

Incidentally, needing the money like a hole in the head, Debbie is about to sponsor a line of clothes, accessories and cosmetics, put out under her own name and aimed at the teen-age market.

I never knew it to fail. What Fred Astaire does, Gene Kelly does. So since Fred Astaire went serious and so dramatic for Stanley Kramer in "On the Beach" that he is being discussed in Academy Award terms, now Gene Kelly is going serious for Stanley Kramer also.

Gene gets in Saturday to huddle with Kramer regarding his co-starring role with Spencer Tracy and Fredric March in "Inherit The Wind." He'll portray the key role of the reporter in this courtroom classic. In fact, he will closely impersonate H. L. Mencken who was the real reporter involved with the actual Scopes case on which "Inherit The Wind" is based.

Tennessee Williams, whom I have always liked personally, even though I haven't always approved of his plays, has been in town for the last few days. He leaves Saturday for the Orient, his first trip there. I thought, of course, that he was here to talk with the Hal Wallis Co. about "Summer and Smoke," but Tennessee said he doesn't expect to see them. He's working on four plays.

"All of them in the Deep South?" I asked.

"Not at all," he said. "One is laid in Acapulco, another in Italy, and the third has a Texas locale."

"What about the fourth?" I asked. "That one laid in outer space?"

Tennessee laughed, "I don't know for sure about the fourth, but it's something entirely different I'm working on."

I met six foot, blond, handsome Peter Ronson who is in "Journey to the Center of the Earth" at a cocktail party. He was born in Iceland and looks Scandinavian.

Charlie Brackett who introduced us said, "Have you heard how Peter happened to be in my picture? A messenger boy at the studio told me, 'I know a USC student who would be just right for "Journey to the Center of the Earth", and he can act, too.' We had been looking for just such an actor, so Peter was brought in, and he's going to be good."

Ronson has the palest blue eyes and the blondest hair, and the teenagers, no doubt, will put their stamp of approval on him.

The No. 1 singer of England, Frankie Vaughn, is a very wise young man. He has had an offer to make a motion picture in Hollywood, but he says he's going to take it slow and get acquainted with American audiences. He has a wife and two children. Mrs. Vaughn will join him at the Dunes Hotel in Las Vegas where he opens Saturday night.

Fabian was at the party which Fernando Lamas and Arlene Dahl hosted for Vaughn. Poor Arlene had to work, and at the time I left, still hadn't shown up. I talked to 18-year-old Diane McBain, a real beauty, who was with Richard Burton and some other friends from Warner Bros. studio. Diane and Burton are in "Ice Palace," and he told me he had a scene with seven wolves, in Alaska.

"Although they were babies I'll admit I was nervous. They untied my shoe laces and played around my feet, and I was very glad when the scene was over," said Richard.

Jury To Probe Bus Tragedy

Three Children Still Critical; Another Released From Hospital

The Garrett County grand jury, which convenes on Monday, will have a chance to decide whether any criminal negligence was involved in the collision of a B&O passenger train and a school bus which killed seven children and hospitalized 11.

State's Attorney Dwight Stover said last night he would give the jury all the details on Tuesday.

The bus, carrying 26 pupils bound for elementary and high schools at Oakland, was hit by the B&O's Diplomat, bound from St. Louis to Baltimore on Thursday morning.

Maryland's Court of Appeals—the state's highest court—has said that wilful intent is necessary to prove manslaughter.

At least three of the hospitalized students remain on the critical list, although the others are showing improvement.

Girl Released

Delores Shaffer, 11-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin F. Shaffer Sr., of Deer Park, one of the pupils admitted to Garrett County Memorial Hospital in Oakland, was released from the hospital yesterday.

At least three of the pupils, two brothers and a sister, remain in "critical" condition. The other seven students are improving, attaches at various hospitals said.

In critical condition at Sacred Heart Hospital here are Olen Hinkle, 13, and James Hinkle, 12, who are "resting well." Olen suffered fractures of both legs, broken face bone, deep lacerations of the scalp, legs and chest. His brother sustained a possible fractured skull, broken nose, and bad lacerations of the face, nose and left ankle.

Their sister, Patricia Ann Hinkle, who sustained a right leg injury and a nerve injury, is in critical condition at the Oakland Hospital. She regained consciousness yesterday, authorities said. They are children of Mr. and Mrs. Roy O. Hinkle Sr., of Loch Lynn.

Others Reported "Good"

Marjorie Ann Byers of Deer Park, who was taken to St. Mary's Hospital in Clarksburg, W. Va., was reported doing well and in good condition with a possible ruptured spleen, fractured left leg and fractured rib.

In "good" condition at Preston Memorial Hospital, Kingwood, W. Va., is Frances Dixon, 14, of Boiling Spring, who sustained back and neck injuries.

Others in the Oakland hospital include:

Sandra Patton, 13, who was unconscious when admitted, but is responding to her name and is slightly improved; Mary Lee, 16, "good;" Mary Ellen Itnyre, mild concussion and multiple contusions of face with abrasions, condition "good."

Dianna Sutton, 12, fractured right wrist, dislocated hip, abrasion of arms and legs, contusion of left hip, condition, "good"; Nancy Jane Ringer, 10, minor injuries, condition, "good," and expected to be released in a day or so.

Probe Continues

Authorities are continuing an investigation into the fatal accident which stunned residents of Garrett County.

Heading the investigation for the State Police is Capt. C. B. Dillinger, commander of Troop B at Frederick, who is being assisted by Lt. William O'Hara, commander of the LaVale Barracks, and Cpl. Sam Conrad, Tfc. Robert Henline, and Tfc. Donald Tucker.

Yesterday the police were taking statements from the pupils with whom they were able to talk. Mr. Stover said the investigation is "quite a job." He is working along with State Police and the sheriff's office at Oakland.

State Police Captain Charles Magaha returned to Pikesville yesterday after supervising the state's initial investigation. Gov. J. Millard Tawes is awaiting the results of the full scale probe he ordered of the state agencies including the Department of Motor Vehicles and the State Roads Commission, Garrett County authorities as well as a probe by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The governor urged that "responsibility be determined precisely" to avoid the recurrence of the worst catastrophe that ever befell Oakland.

Watchmen Requested

Meanwhile, Willard L. Hawkins, superintendent of public schools in Garrett County, said the Board of Education will demand the B&O place watchmen on duty at the Loch Lynn crossing and the Weber crossing on Route 219 two miles south of Oakland during the times they are being used by school buses.

A statement taken from Otto Droege, 65, of 214 Park Street, engineer of the locomotive, indicated that the speed tape on the diesel engine registered 20 miles an hour when the engine rammed the bus.

The tripper on the track that sets off the signal lights and bell is located 2,250 feet from the crossing, and at a speed of 50 miles an hour it takes only 30 seconds to travel the distance.

The tape revealed the children in the bus had 45 seconds, due to the slowing down by the emergency brake system, to get out of the bus.

Public Meeting Set Here By Legislators

Chamber To Fete Council Members

The Legislative Council of Maryland will be entertained by the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce when it comes here September 24 for its visit to Western Maryland.

The 25 members of the council, which screens legislation between sessions of the General Assembly, will arrive here September 24 on the B&O's Columbian.

They will be taken to the Cumberland Country Club for a meeting with officials of the Chamber and area legislators.

Members of the Allegany County Delegation and State Senator Charles M. See, who is in charge of arrangements for the Western Maryland visit, will be guests of the Chamber.

Invitations will be extended to the Allegany County Commissioners and the Mayor and Council and their attorneys, members of the Chamber's board of directors, and committee chairmen.

The Council will hold a public meeting on Friday, September 25, in the Council Chamber of City Hall, Senator See reported.

The meeting will be held from 9:45 to 11:30 a.m. and letters of invitation to attend went out yesterday to the Board of Allegany County Commissioners and the officials of all municipalities in Allegany County.

Final plans for the Legislative Council visit will be completed next week, Sen. See said.

Chamber Offers To Open Cabin For Students

The Cumberland Chamber of Commerce is offering to arrange visits to Washington's Cabin for school groups of the county.

The offer was made yesterday in a letter to Ralph R. Webster, superintendent of schools, from Robert C. Petersen, manager of the Chamber.

Mr. Petersen said the Chamber of Commerce kept a staff member at Washington's Cabin during the summer and that many children, as well as adults, took advantage of the opportunity to see the historic items there.

He said the Chamber does not plan to open the cabin on a regular schedule until next summer but that it will be glad to arrange to have it open to any school groups.

"Cumberland is extremely fortunate in having such an important historical attraction and we do not want our children to be deprived of the opportunity to see it," the Chamber said.

Records kept by the Chamber show that 725 persons including a number of tourists, visited the cabin on Wednesday afternoons from mid-June through September 2.

Due to lack of personnel, the City of Cumberland keeps the cabin open only two days a year but has always made arrangements to make it available to interested groups.

Woman Is Hurt In Headon Crash

A local woman was treated last night in Memorial Hospital for injuries suffered when two cars collided headon on Oldtown Road.

She is Mrs. Erma Jean Mawhinney, 26, wife of Alvin Guy Mawhinney, 608 North Mechanic Street, who was treated for cuts and bruises on both legs and a possible left elbow injury.

City police said the accident occurred about 8 p.m. when the brakes of a car driven by Rose Anna Sirbaugh, Jane Frazier Village, failed as she was driving east in the 500 block of Oldtown Road.

Officer Royce J. Clayton, who investigated with Officer Kenneth L. Henry and Detective Kenneth Morrissey, said the woman cut across the street to avoid traffic in her lane and collided headon with a car westbound driven by Mr. Mawhinney.

Both drivers and several children in each car escaped injury, police said.

Health Unit May Find Space Outside City

Officials Meet To Solve Dispute

Allegany County officials last night held out a prospect that the County Health Department might be moved to an undisclosed location outside the city limits.

That prospect was raised at a generally friendly meeting at the Court House of the Board of County Commissioners and the Mayor and City Council of Cumberland. This meeting was called in an effort to reach an understanding concerning the matter of rent for the County Health Department facilities in the city-owned Public Safety Building.

A few weeks ago, the Mayor and Council wrote the county commissioners that, effective October 1, a rental of $6,000 a year would be charged for the use of the second and third floors of the Public Safety Building. No rent has been charged.

The county commissioners in turn wrote back that the entire third floor of that building was occupied by the State Health Department laboratory, so that half of the rent should be paid by the state. The county also showed that it paid more for janitorial and window washing service at the building than the $3,000 rent for which it could be obligated.

Not Forcing

Last night, City Attorney William R. Carscaden stressed that the city was not forcing the county to vacate the Public Safety Building although the City Engineering Department could use the space. He did say that the city officials considered it urgent that the clinics now being held in the City Hall basement be moved elsewhere.

County Commissioner John J. Rowan suggested that the city was forcing the county to find facilities outside the city limits. The building which the county might lease outside the city could take care of the entire Health Department needs. There also would be adequate parking facilities there. The location was not divulged.

Mr. Rowan and Commissioner William A. Wilson said the building in question was not the old Hammond Street School building in Westernport which is no longer used. When Mr. Carscaden suggested the possibility of using the Carver School building, not now being utilized, the commissioners said that the County Board of Education still retains control over that structure for possible future use.

County Decision

The city attorney also pointed out that the city has no say in the matter if the county sees fit to provide space outside the city limits.

County Attorney Leslie J. Clark acted as chief spokesman for the commissioners. He raised the question as to whether the city actually needed the space now being used by the Health Department.

Four basic conclusions were reached at the meeting, which lasted about 45 minutes. The first is that there is no emergency requiring the Health Department to vacate the Public Safety Building. Second, the city does feel an urgent need to reclaim the City Hall basement space now used for clinics. Third, the city is willing to defer for several months the collection of rent for the Health Department facilities. Fourth, the question of a fair rental will be left up to real estate appraisers.

Messrs. Rowan, Wilson and Clark represented the county last night. Appearing in behalf of the city were Mayor J. Edwin Keech, Mrs. Lucile W. Roeder, finance commissioner; G. Ray Light, water commissioner, and Mr. Carscaden.

County Commissioner John T. Mason and Councilmen John J. Long and Philmore Fleming were absent.

Authorities Check Burglar Tools

An array of burglary tools found in an automobile after the arrest of three men charged with conspiring to attempt to break into the Montgomery Ward Store here recently is examined by local and county authorities. James S. Getty, state's attorney for Allegany County, is shown on the right examining a black book containing a detailed index of how to open any type of safe manufactured. City Police Officer Harold Gibson, center, who made the initial investigation which led to the men's arrest, and Donald Mason, left, assistant state's attorney, look on. Mr. Getty said the tools are the most complete set he has ever seen. Among them are electric drills, bolt clippers, vise, tape, hand saws, pliers, screwdrivers, various-size bits and drills, sanders, and a .38 and a .45 calibre pistol. Gibson has received a citation for his work.

Warrants Sent To Cincinnati To Hold Bartell

Extradition Hearing Set September 30

Two state warrants issued here against Nathan Bartell, 42, of Cincinnati, who was arrested recently in that city in connection with an attempted breaking and entering of a local store, yesterday were forwarded to the Cincinnati Police Department.

Trial Magistrate F. Allan Weatherholt issued the warrants to City Police Detective Lieutenant James E. Van and County Investigator Edwin R. Lilya.

The warrants, according to Van, charge Bartell with unlawfully attempting to break and enter the Montgomery Ward Store here with the intent to steal goods of the store and also of being "a rogue and vagabond" in violation of Section 490 of Article 27 of the Maryland Code.

Van forwarded the two warrants to Lt. Col. Henry Sandman, chief of detectives of the Cincinnati Police Department.

Meanwhile, State's Attorney James S. Getty has mailed papers of extradition to Governor Tawes in order that Bartell may face another charge here of possession of burglary tools.

An extradition hearing has been set for September 30 at 10 a. m. in the Cincinnati Superior Court. Assistant State's Attorney Donald Mason will represent the state's attorney's office here.

Also expected to attend the hearing are Lt. Van and Sheriff Paul C. Haberlein.

Three other men involved in the case were given a preliminary hearing here recently and were ordered held for the grand jury of the October term of Allegany County Circuit Court. Each was freed on $500 bond.

The defendants are Albert Samuel Wright, 42, and Charles Isaacs, 32, of Newport, Ky., and Andrew Joe Forkes, 51, of Phoenix, Ariz. City Police arrested the three men here on August 27 about 11 p. m.

Ohio authorities, who conferred with local and county authorities, this week, said that Wright had recently been convicted of possession of burglary tools, but had appealed the decision.

They said two courts of appeals had upheld the sentence in the case and that Wright was released on $60,000 bond pending another appeal hearing in Cincinnati on October 1.

City Sells 117 Water Meters

Cumberland residents are taking advantage of the biggest bargain in town—water meters.

The Water Department reported yesterday that its flat rate accounts have dropped from 803 to 639 since August 20, when plans for a new rate schedule were announced.

During the period, the department has been asked to install 117 meeters which will eliminate 164 flat rate accounts.

Ten meters, eliminating 20 flat accounts, were sold by the department Thursday, according to James Twigg, chief clerk.

Under the new city rate schedule, flat rate users must convert to meters by January 1, 1961 to conserve water supplies.

The rate ordinance boosts flat rates, which used to range from $7.02 to $11.35 a quarter depending on the number of outlets, to a minimum of $12 a quarter from September 1. To this is added a sewage treatment service fee of $9, boosting the minimum flat charge to $21 a quarter.

No change was made for metered customers within the city limits, who are allowed to use 2,000 cubic feet of water a quarter for $5.40 and are charged $4.05 for sewage service, making the total bill $8.98 a quarter, if paid within the discount period.

The total bill for metered customers who use the minimum amount of water is just 10 cents a day, almost a third the cost to minimum flat rate users.

Defenders' Day Observed Today

If you have any business today at the Allegany County Court House you might as well forget about it.

Today is a state holiday, Defenders' Day, and as a consequence the entire Court House will be closed. The only offices usually open on Saturday are the county commissioners', the assessment department, tax collector's, county agent's and home demonstration agent's.

Quench Auto Fire

Central Fire Company was called to Bow Street yesterday at 7:59 p. m. when the car owned by Jack Moore caught fire. Firemen used about 100 gallons of water to quench the fire, which gutted the interior of the vehicle.

First Concert In New Series Scheduled For October 8

Members of the Tri-State Community Concert Association yesterday received letters from Peter A. Lukas, president, announcing the schedule of four concerts for the season starting Thursday, October 8.

Opening the series will be a program by the Manhattan Concert Orchestra on October 8. The other concert this fall will be presented by Mary McMurray, a mezzo soprano, on Tuesday, November 10.

Two late winter programs will round out the schedule. The American Ballet Company will be presented on Friday, February 12. Finally, Alec Templeton, the famed blind pianist, will be heard on Tuesday, March 8.

"Our campaign was a successful one and therefore we were able to secure a concert series which we hope will satisfy every taste of your artistic desires," Mr. Lukas wrote. The concerts will be held in the Fort Hill High School auditorium.

Other officers of the association are J. William Hunt, vice president; Mrs. R. Finley Thompson, vice president and membership chairman; Dr. Lillian C. Compton, assistant membership chairman; Rev. Wayne Eberly, vice president, publicity; Mrs. N. A. Golladay, executive secretary; Mrs. James M. Pitkethly, assistant executive secretary; Ronald J. Downey, treasurer, and Mrs. Marion Hull, corresponding secretary.

Eighth Teacher Soon To Get Added Pension

Commissioners Take Action

An eighth Allegany County educator who retired July 1 is entitled to the $40 a month supplemental pension authorized by Senate Bill 58 and soon will be added to the list to receive the monthly checks from the county treasury.

Superintendent of Schools Ralph R. Webster sent a letter to Leslie J. Clark, attorney to the Board of County Commissioners, yesterday explaining that Miss Olive P. Simpson, 1206 Holland Street, former Allegany High School teacher, also is entitled to the $40 supplemental pension. Her application for the pension apparently had not been received at the same time as the other seven.

The other seven were mailed their first checks July 31. They include Miss Nellie F. Dowling, who was principal of Westernport Elementary School; Mrs. Jessie A. Smith, former Midland Elementary School teacher; Arthur W. Taylor, former Allegany High School teacher; Mrs. Dora Malcolm McLuckie, former Beall Elementary School teacher; Miss Florence Aldridge and Miss Agnes Aldridge, both former Mt. Savage Elementary School teachers, and Miss Grace Swanson, former special music teacher.

At yesterday's meeting, Mrs. Lula Hendrickson, South Woodlawn Avenue, LaVale, asked the commissioners if they could do something about trucks parked in front of her house. Commissioner John J. Rowan said that street is not in the county roads system and the county is powerless to do anything about it. He suggested that the first step should be for all property owners there to deed rights-of-way to the county.

A delegation from 21st Lane in the McCoole area appeared to ask for road repairs. Mr. Rowan told this group that this road work was not in the 1959 program but probably would be done in 1960.

The commissioners set the bond of Mrs. Joyce Zimmerly, Cresaptown, new Trial Magistartes Court clerk, at $1,000. She began her duties August 24.

20-Inch Gas Line Blows During Test

Crews Are Trying To Locate Break

A new section of 20-inch gas line being tested with air pressure blew up last night on the east side of Evitts Mountain, causing a loud rumbling noise which was heard in the Cumberland area.

No one was reported injured when the section of pipe blew up.

A spokesman for the Manufacturers Light and Heat Company pumping station at State Line (Ellerslie) said the air pressure had been cut off and crews were attempting to locate the section of damaged pipe.

Volunteer firemen from Bedford Road were called to Hazen Road when they were notified that a section of gas pipe had blown up. However there was no danger of fire, since no gas was involved.

The line which was being tested runs from the vicinity of the pumping station for a distance of 25 miles from Ellerslie east of Cumberland.

The line blew up about 9:30 p. m., according to the spokesman.

The Times-News switchboard was swamped with calls following the blast, and the loud rumbling noise was described by some as sounding like jet planes flying over the city.

A check with the municipal airport at Wiley Ford indicated it was believed that one or more planes was flying over the city at about that time.

The two trucks of the volunteer fire company were back at the fire hall by 10:30 p. m. and one of the volunteers said no fire resulted.

He said residents of the area where the pipe blew up were concerned and called the firemen, who also had heard the blast at the fire hall about three miles from the scene.

The theme will be developed to help the cub scout families to relive with their boys a unique episode in American history.

Scouters To Meet

The Boy Scout Roundtable will be for all adult scouters and will open with the October program theme, "Scouting The Air."
